CAPONE 'DEAL' RULING TODAY

CERMAK SIGNS 23 YR. GRANT TO PHONE COMPANY

Ordinance Put Into Effect.

Mayor Cermak at the city council meeting yesterday signed the ordinance granting a new franchise to the Illinois Bell Telephone company as passed by the city council ten days ago. The franchise went into effect immediately.

The action of the mayor came as a surprise near the close of the meeting, as he previously had indicated to aldermen that he would let the ordinance become effective without his signature. It has been the policy of the mayor to sign only emergency ordinances, even though he favored them, but he decided to sign the telephone grant after a last minute conference with Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee which studied it.

Arvey Advises Mayor.

"The mayor had not planned to sign the ordinance, but I advised him to do so rather than let the impression get out that he was opposed to it," Ald. Arvey said.

Before the meeting the mayor received a 15,000 word opinion from Corporation Counsel Sexton, holding the ordinance to be legal in all its details. The measure is a valid exercise of the power of the city to permit use of the streets by the Illinois Bell Telephone company, and does not contravene the state public utility act or interfere with the control of the company by the Illinois commerce commission, the opinion states.

Found Free of Flaws.

It says further that "the ordinance contains no ambiguous language likely to cause future controversy or litigation, and it reserves to the city hall all powers it may hereafter acquire by legislation extending municipal powers or by a statutory or constitutional grant of home rule."

The ordinance was passed by the council on July 20, after a prolonged fight in committee and on the council floor, by a vote of 37 to 12.

The ordinance fixes the term of the telephone franchise at twenty-three years from the expiration of the old franchise. This made the term end in 1953. After that six months' written notice by either city or company is sufficient to terminate it.

Compensation to the city is fixed at 3 per cent of gross revenues, whereas the old ordinance specified gross receipts. Under the new phrasing the comptroller's figures show that the city stands to lose at least $27,000 a year, and that was one of the points raised by opponents of the measure.

Seen to Pay Five Million.

However, proponents of the franchise pointed out, the ordinance fixes a minimum compensation of $2,000,000 a year, whereas 3 per cent of gross revenues for 1929 would be $1,945,000. The telephone company is expected to pay into the city treasury within a few days approximately $5,000,000, compensation for 1929, 1930, and the first half of 1931, which had been withheld pending negotiation of the franchise. During the negotiations, however, the company purchased $1,500,000 worth of tax warrants to assist the city in meeting pay rolls. The old franchise expired in January, 1929.

The new franchise is more lenient than the old in fixing the obligation of the company to pay for relocation of poles in connection with subway building or other public improvements. The old measure obligated it to pay the full cost, while the new one provides that it shall pay no greater proportion than the Commonwealth Edison company or the Chicago Local Transportation company.

Three Appointments Approved.

The council approved three appointments of the mayor. Ernest J. Kruetgen, a former member of the school board and a leader in German-American societies, was made a member of the board of local improvements. N. S. Piotrowski, who was city attorney in the last administration of Mayor Dever, was named a member of the library board, and George F. Getz, chairman of the board of the Globe Laundry company, a member of the police pension board.

The mayor named five members of the commission to revise the city building code, created by an ordinance which received final council approval at the meeting. The members and their terms are: Corporation Counsel Sexton, 5 years; Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, 4 years; Martin Roche, representing the Building Trades council, 3 years; Robert C. Thorpe, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, 2 years; and John McKeone, a member of the old zoning board of appeals, 1 year. Commissioner Sprague will be chairman.

ROUND WORLD PLANE SPEEDS ON TO MOSCOW

A Day in the Clouds

Russell Boardman and John Polando acclaimed in Istanbul, Turkey, after nonstop flight from New York, in which they covered 4,984 miles, a new nonstop distance record.

BULLETIN.

MOSCOW, July 31.—(Friday.)—(AP)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr., American airmen making a round-the-world speed flight, landed at Moscow from Berlin today at 11:52 a. m. (4:52 a. m. Chicago daylight time.)

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 30.—A world's record nonstop flight was completed today by two Americans, Russell Boardman and John Polando, when they landed here at 1:15 p. m., after having flown their Bellanca monoplane, Cape Cod, from New York for 49 hours without a break across the Atlantic and Europe.

They estimated the distance flown at 4,984 sea miles, thus breaking the record established by the Frenchmen, Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, in September, 1929, when they flew 4,901 miles from Paris to Manchuria.

After the trans-Atlantic crossing their route was over Ireland, thence to Croydon and Paris, and more or less direct to Istanbul. Apart from fog over the Atlantic they hardly saw the sea at any time.

Cars Stream to Airport.

Yesterday evening news reached Istanbul that a Bellanca monoplane had been heard over Ireland in the afternoon and from midnight onward cars were to be seen bumping out on one of the world's worst roads to Yeshilkeuy airdrome.

As dawn broke and the day wore on a greater portion of the crowd returned to Istanbul to snatch a hasty nap before going to their offices. The braver ones, conspicuous among whom were American Ambassador Joseph C. Grew and his daughter, remained. Just after 1 o'clock the monoplane was sighted approachiug the airdrome.

The plane descended steadily and made a perfect landing. The flyers, their faces wreathed in smiles, walked across the airdrome to be congratulated and welcomed by Ambassador Grew and the governor of Istanbul.

Their very scanty gear was collected and Mr. Grew's car took them to Istanbul. Bent on sleeping the clock around, they left the airdrome amid loud cheers of the crowd.

Flyers Describe Journey.

ISTANBUL, July 30.—(AP)—One of the greatest flights in the history of aviation ended here today when the American flyers, Russell Boardman and John Polando, gently eased their plane, Cape Cod, down on Turkish soil after a nonstop flight from New York.

"It was a fine trip," Boardman said, "and naturally we are very happy at having accomplished our purpose of beating the world's nonstop record. The hardest part of the journey was last night's flying over the Alps.

"The trip over the Atlantic was fine. We had no storms or bad winds, but we did encounter a great deal of fog. As a matter of fact, we saw the water only once, near Newfoundland, but after that we just floated along in a sea of fog which totally obscured the ocean."

Polando sketched the route from New York.

"It was over New York, Newfound-

LONDON, July 30.—The prince of Wales was badly shaken this afternoon when his automobile struck another while he was returning from the Sunningdale Golf club, and three women occupants of the other car were injured.

Two of the women injured were Miss Daphne and Miss Beryl Riggs, actresses, one of whom lost several teeth. The other woman in the car was their cousin, who was driving. The prince leaped out of his machine after the cars collided and offered his aid. The women were rushed to a hospital, while the prince was taken home by a friend.

Kills Divorced Husband as He Invades Room

Mrs. Bernice O'Connor, 34 years old, petite and comely, divorced wife of Edward J. O'Connor, shot him to death early this morning when he broke into her rooms in the Lake Manor apartments, 4330 Lake Park avenue, after warning him that she would shoot if he continued to advance toward her. He fell dead with two bullets in his body. She telephoned her sister and the police and calmly awaited the arrival of the latter.

O'Connor had jimmied his way with a screwdriver through a service door into the kitchenette of Mrs. O'Connor's two room apartment shortly after 4 o'clock. She heard the noise and surmised, she told the police, that the intruder was her husband, who, she said, had threatened her recently. She jumped from her bed and seized a Mauser pistol. As he appeared at the door of her bedroom she ordered him not to come in, according to her story.

Warns Him to Keep Back.

"I'm coming in, and how," she says he replied. She repeated her demand that he leave and told him she would shoot if he continued to advance.

"You haven't the nerve," was his defiant retort, and she fired one shot, which missed. He came on toward her, she said, and she fired twice. Both bullets took effect and her husband fell dead.

The O'Connors were married four years ago, the slayer told the police, and a year ago she obtained a divorce from him on the grounds of cruelty and drunkenness. During their married life she said she had lived with her husband only five months because of his brutality and failure to provide for her. He was an expert lather, she said, and made good money. He was 31 years old and lived at 4207 Ellis avenue.

Cigaret Girl in Café.

Recently Mrs. O'Connor had been employed at the Via Lago café, 837 Wilson avenue, as a cigaret girl. She quit her job there last night, intending to go to New York today to take a position there. She had been previously married and has an 8-year old daughter, who lives with her sister, Mrs. Adele Zepp, 2101 Warren boulevard. It was to Mrs. Zepp she telephoned after the tragedy, and Mrs. Zepp immediately went to her home. Because of her child Mrs. O'Connor lived at the Lake Park avenue address under the name of Fletcher, which was that of her former husband, from whom she was divorced.

U. S. SENATOR SCHALL DEMANDS AN INQUIRY INTO CAPONE PACT

Minneapolis, Minn., July 30.—(AP)—United States Senator Thomas D. Schall, Republican, of Minnesota said tonight he would demand a congressional investigation to determine what arrangement, if any, was made by the department of justice for leniency in the sentence of Al Capone, Chicago gangster.

Senator Schall said tonight he had wired government agents in Washington and Chicago asking for full details of correspondence between George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney at Chicago, and the department of justice in Washington.

"Any arrangement," said Senator Schall, "such as I understand was made between the department of justice and Al Capone, the king of gangland, is almost unbelievable."

Board Orders Showdown on Tax Spending

The city council yesterday appropriated $50,000, at Mayor Cermak's request, for a survey of all city departments with a view to effecting the 15 per cent horizontal cut in expenses. Details on page 3.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Gov. Emmerson's revenue commission last night unanimously adopted a resolution of Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railroad, asking the city and the county, school and drainage boards to make a clean breast of their financial affairs. The commission asked in the resolution how much expense and income each government will have in the last three months of this year, in addition to the data already received on July, August, and September.

In addition the governor's commission requested estimates on 1932 income and expenses and how each government expects to finance its next year's budget under present law and conditions and on the assumption there will be a decrease of from 5 to 30 per cent in real estate taxes.

May Delay Special Session.

Upon the answers will probably depend the future course of the commission. One member interpreted the commission's action to mean that it will proceed with much caution and will probably not ask for a special session of the legislature in October, as has been generally expected.

Some of the members of the commission are reported—last night's session at the Union League club was executive—to have collected information which indicates that the city, county, and school board cannot pay expenses this year, at the rate they are spending, from the probable income from taxes, supplemented by miscellaneous revenue.

In addition it is said that members of the commission have been told that neither the city, county, nor school board, as a result, will be able to make a balanced budget next year.

From Bad to Worse.

An official of one of those governments is reported to have told a member of the commission that his government cannot make a budget for two-thirds of 1932, if it is compelled to appropriate for its debts first, as the new budget law requires. In a word, it is said that some members of the commission feel the financial troubles of the government agencies are in much worse shape than has been suspected.

The 43,000 to 46,000 employes of the city, county, school system, and drainage district, and their families, as well as contractors, supplymen, and merchants, will necessarily be affected by the apparently changed attitude of the governor's commission.

Text of the Resolution.

The resolution of Mr. Sargent briefly summarizes the commission's view. It reads:

"Soon after the governor's commission was organized certain information was asked of the city, county, school and drainage boards regarding their estimated income and expenditures for July, August and September and other data regarding current debts. It has been received and studied.

"It now seems advisable to request each of these same local governments to supply the commission with like information for the months of October, November and December; and also a second financial statement, indicating as nearly as can be estimated how each will finish the year of 1931, on the assumption that taxable real estate values will be decreased 5 per cent, 10 per cent, 20 per cent, and 30 per cent, for the tax year of 1931.

"In addition it appears advisable to request each of these local govern-

JUDGE REFUSES TO BE BOUND TO EASY SENTENCE

Gangster Seeks to Drop Guilty Plea.

Al Capone was informed by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday that "it is utterly impossible to bargain with a federal court."

The gangster's hopes of escaping with a two or three year sentence through an arrangement with the government were shattered, and his attorneys quickly moved to change their pleas from guilty to not guilty on the income tax evasion and booze conspiracy indictments against Capone, who is No. 1 on the list of public enemies.

The motion to back out on the pleas of guilty, which can be done only with the court's permission, was continued for consideration until 2 p. m. today, when the judge will rule as to whether Capone may withdraw his plea and go to trial or be sentenced on his plea as it stands.

Capone Stalks Into Court.

The porcine Capone stalked into the courtroom at 10 o'clock in the morning, beaming with the visible assurance that "everything was all set," that the prosecutors would say a few words to the court and he would be sentenced on the terms which he had accepted to plead guilty.

The arrogant manner had gone when the gangster slipped stealthily away with his attorneys at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The collar that had been white and fresh in the morning was wilted, and his greasy hair was disarranged by the nervous mopping of his brow during the colloquy at the bar. The ear to ear grin was displaced by a sullen countenance as he slunk from the courtroom at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

Gang Chief's Hopes Upset.

The dramatic upsetting of all that Capone had confidently expected came after Defense Attorney Michael Ahern made a statement to the court at the opening of the afternoon session. He explained that the pleas of guilty were entered into after conferences with District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and with the understanding that recommendations as to punishment would be made to the court.

Mr. Ahern also asserted that the agreement was entered into with the approval of the United States attorney general and an assistant secretary of the treasury. Attorney Ahern was prompted in this explanation by a statement from the bench during the morning, in which Judge Wilkerson set forth in unequivocal language that he was not bound by any understanding between counsel.

Court Refuses to Be Bound.

Judge Wilkerson repeated at the afternoon session that, although the court could not be bound by an understanding between the prosecutor and the defense, it was the court's right and duty to hear such recommendations as the government wished to make.

"But we cannot start a hearing in which there is an understanding that the court is bound as to the judgment it will impose by the recommendations of the district attorney," said Judge Wilkerson.

"There have been some unfortunate things in connection with this case. There have been some publications which were contemptuous in character, and tending to bring the administration of justice in the federal court into disrepute. They have even gone so far as to announce in advance what the period of punishment would be.

"It is time for somebody to impress upon this defendant that it is utterly impossible to bargain with a federal court."

Judge Is Emphatic.

Judge Wilkerson leaned forward over the bench as he made this assertion, and his eyes glinted with feeling. He was apparently referring to articles published at the time of Capone's pleas of guilty that the government had "made a deal" with the gang chief, and that the punishment would be two and one-half years in the penitentiary.

Attorney Ahern informed the court that the approval of the agreement between counsel by the attorney general and an assistant secretary of the treasury was of paramount importance in the decision to plead guilty.

"We were led to believe that the recommendations would be approved by the court," he said. "That department (treasury) has the power to compromise both civil and criminal liability in income tax cases. This constituted an inducement to us. Unless we had been confident that the court would act according to the rec-

Prices of Food at Retail the Lowest in 15 Years

Not in fifteen years has the average cost of feeding the family required so little money in Chicago as it does today. Uncle Sam says so. How does he know? It's like this: On the 15th day of every month the Bureau of Labor Statistics at Washington makes a shopping tour through stores selling groceries in 51 cities. In Chicago the Bureau finds out the actual selling prices in neighborhood stores, downtown stores, department stores, and chain stores. When the figures for June 15 this year were all in, the government found that food prices on the average in Chicago were 19% lower than on the same date last year. And when this year's prices were compared with the figures of earlier years, the Bureau had to dust off the book for 1916 to find anything that compared with present average prices. On some items the bureau had to go back much farther than that. Sugar, for instance, is cheaper than it has been in any year since 1913. Butter hasn't been so low since 1906. And when it comes to eggs you have to go back to 1902 to find a comparison, they're that cheap.

Not all items, of course, have slid that far. On the whole, however, food prices are lower than they've been in a decade and a half. Now is a particularly good time to stock your pantry and refrigerator.

commendation agreed upon the pleas of guilty never would have been entered."

United States Attorney Johnson, whose triumphant campaign with the income tax prosecutions against hoodlums and crooked politicians was to have been climaxed with the sentencing of Al Capone, was manifestly distressed with the turn of events. Soft spoken and mild of manner, the federal prosecutor, who seldom participates personally in court proceedings, was crushed against the bar with Capone and the other counsel in the only vacant space—six feet square—in the courtroom.

What Mr. Johnson had to say was frankly and straightforwardly put.

"It seemed very desirable on the part of the officers of the government who are charged with this responsibility," he said, "that, if we could avoid the hazards of a trial, this defendant might at an early date be imprisoned in the penitentiary."

Dispels Hopes for Defense.

Any hopes entertained by the defense counsel of prevailing upon Judge Wilkerson to accept their terms of pleading guilty were quickly dispelled by the court. As Attorney Ahern reached the end of his opening remarks, telling of his former belief that judgment would be entered according to the district attorney's recommendations, Judge Wilkerson frequently cut him short. The following colloquy ensued:

MR. AHERN—The recommendation of the district attorney was not only with respect to the duration of the punishment but to the punishment on each count, and he agreed to recommend that all penalties on each count run concurrently.

THE COURT—You have not any doubt that I stated the law correctly this morning, have you, as to the duty of the court in the imposition of sentence on a plea of guilty?

Lawyer Replies to Court.

MR. AHERN—I draw a distinction between the act of a court in imposing penalties and the act of a court in prejudging a case. Now the defendant here, by a plea, would prejudice his own case on the facts. If the court would follow the recommendation of the district attorney as made, and if we could have the assurance of the court——

Judge Wilkerson interrupted the lawyer and fairly snapped at him: "I suppose the court does not agree with that."

MR. AHERN—Well, then, that is what I was coming to, if it please the court.

THE COURT—Certainly it is an unheard of thing in a criminal proceeding, that anybody, even the court itself, could bind the court to the judgment which is to be entered after the hearing.

MR. AHERN—Well, as I say, I make a distinction, and I can conceive well, of course, that a court cannot bind itself to enter judgment on the facts; but when a defendant enters a plea, he himself decides the facts.

Refuses to Be Bound.

THE COURT—The court will listen, as I said this morning, to the recommendation of the district attorney. The court will listen to the recommendation of the attorney general. Whether it adds anything to that of the district attorney is not material, because the district attorney is an officer of this court. But the thing that the defendant cannot think—must not think—is that in the end—the recommendations of the attorney general and of secretary of the treasury, all considered—the court is bound to enter judgment according to those recommendations.

The defense and government counsel crowded closer to the bench and the audience swayed forward in an effort to hear what was going on. Capone shifted his weighty bulk from one foot to another and mopped his face with a soaked handkerchief.

"Not in Court's Power."

Judge Wilkerson continued: "Now it is well settled—a party who makes that kind of agreement with the officers of the government is not without protection. But it is not for the court to carry it out. The executive officers have the pardoning power.

"As far as these income tax prosecutions are concerned, the executive officers have the power to compromise both the civil and criminal liability, but they cannot transfer to the court the duty of putting upon the record a judgment which does not represent the sober conclusion of the court as to what the record requires."

MR. AHERN [now speaking hopelessly]—Well, it may be that the matter was overstressed, but in any event, if it please the court, the defendant feels that there has been a serious misapprehension of the whole matter, and that——

Discusses Question of Judgment.

THE COURT—When you were here the last time, when this case was continued, you commenced to argue to the court as to what the judgment should be. You seemed then to regard it as an open question upon which the court was to exercise its judgment.

MR. AHERN—I might say, if it please the court, that I did that upon the suggestion of somebody else. It was not my better judgment, but I do not care to go into it.

THE COURT [with finality]—Well, I do not think there is any misunderstanding about it, about the law here, and there can be no misunderstanding about the situation.

Judge Wilkerson then indicated that he had apprehended the intention of the defense to withdraw the pleas of guilty. He observed that if the hearing were opened and the district attorney made a showing of his evidence, there being a possibility that the court would not follow his recommendations, the government's case might be seriously affected on a change of plea.

MR. AHERN—Well, I will make a motion now, if it please the court, before the government attempts to introduce any evidence, to withdrew the pleas.

THE COURT—What is your attitude, Mr. District Attorney?

Johnson States U. S. Stand.

MR. JOHNSON—It would be impossible for the government to present its case and then permit a withdrawal of the pleas. For that reason we feel the motion should de disposed of now. And I further feel, your honor, that I owe it as a duty to the court, and as a duty to the defendant's counsel, to make a statement here of the facts that led up to the United States attorney's saying he would make a recommendation in this case.

Mr. Johnson spoke excitedly and his hands trembled as he addressed the court. His statement was as follows:

"After the first indictment was returned in this case, which was returned at an earlier date because it was necessary to avoid the running of the statute of limitations, in some way unknown to me the defendant became acquainted with the fact and advised his counsel.

Confers with Defense Counsel.

"The defendant's counsel then asked me for a conference, which was held, and I advised counsel that there would be further indictments. However, I did not advise counsel as to the nature of the offenses under investigation.

"Then, after the final indictments were returned, a number of conferences were held with the defendant's counsel. The head of the intelligence unit came here from Washington and participated in those conferences and I reported them to my superiors in the department of justice.

"The United States attorney stated to the defendant's counsel that he had sought the permission of the court to make a recommendation. The suggestions for recommendation made by the defendant's counsel were not agreeable to the government. They sought a much shorter recommendation than the government's counsel was willing even to suggest to the attorney general.

"But these conferences reached a stage where I stated to the defendant's counsel that I had conferred with my superiors in the department of justice, and with permission of the court, I was prepared to make a recommendation, the full information of which I imparted to him.

"The defendant's counsel inquired of the United States attorney what the attitude of the federal judges had been towards recommendations which the United States attorney had made. I stated to him that in the few instances where I had had occasion to make a recommendation to the court, and where the court found upon a hearing that I had faithfully represented the facts as they were, the courts in those cases had followed my recommendation.

"I think I owe this further duty to the court and to the defendant's counsel, to say that if they had not understood that I would make the recommendation, I do not believe they would have pleaded guilty."

Asks for Communication.

Judge Wilkerson interposed to ask the federal prosecutor whether he had the communication from the attorney general with him.

"Are you willing to let the court see the communication?" he asked.

"Yes, your honor, I will let the court see it. But in giving this to the court, I should add that there is one minor—not one minor, but one further—recommendation," Mr. Johnson replied.

"I assume," said the court, "that like all departmental communications, they relate to government business and are privileged."

MR. JOHNSON—Yes, your honor.

THE COURT—And of course should not be disclosed unless presented to the court for action.

Agrees to Present Document.

MR. JOHNSON—Yes—well, I will present it to the court.

THE COURT (smiling)—And I shall so treat them, because all these communications are privileged, and should not be disclosed unless presented formally for action, and if you have no objection I shall look at them.

The handing of this communication to Judge Wilkerson occasioned much speculation, but questions as to its contents were futile. It was conjectured, however, that it made reference to the length of sentence to have been recommended for Capone.

Attorney Ahern then took up the colloquy with the court, a discussion on his motion to withdraw the pleas.

MR. AHERN—I never doubted what the court's attitude would be. My impression was at the time that we had these conferences and up to the time that the plea was entered that the court would acquiesce in the recommendations of the district attorney.

THE COURT—Well, you never had any conferences with the court and nobody had any right to make any such assumption for the court.

Reason for Plea, Lawyer Says.

MR. AHERN—Well, I thought I had, and if I had not had that belief I would not have recommended a plea of guilty in these cases.

The defense lawyer then disclosed another agreement with the prosecution which he said was entered into and which disclosed Capone's fear of being put upon the witness stand for the first time in his life. Mr. Ahern said:

"There is one other thing I want to say to the court—I did not want to say it—but at the time, or long before the plea was entered, I attached a condition with the district attorney, and that was, we thought at the time, that no evidence would be adduced.

"We never contemplated offering any in mitigation and it was expressly stipulated by me as a condition of the plea that the defendant should be asked no questions."

This statement referred to Judge Wilkerson's remark during the morning session that if the defendant sought leniency he should be prepared to answer all questions put by the court concerning the charges he had confessed.

A possible dispute between the defense counsel and Mr. Johnson was precluded by the interruption of Judge Wilkerson as the prosecutor replied to Mr. Ahern.

"Now, we are getting into details that I do not care to go into," remarked the judge. "That was between you."

In further explaining his view of the case Judge Wilkerson said:

"It is an unqualified plea, as the decord stands. It may be withdrawn on a proper showing. It does not appear here that there is any question about the propriety of this recommendation that the district attorney is to make. That is not unusual; it is done in criminal cases every day. He understands, of course, that while courts receive and give weight to such recommendations, sometimes things transpire at the hearing which make it impossible for the court to follow the recommendations.

Johnson's Attitude Asked.

"Your plea was not induced by any representation which the district attorney is not carrying out in good faith. He is doing everything he told you he would do, and the court is doing everything that he had the right to tell you that the court would do."

Mr. Johnson was asked whether he would consent to the withdrawal of the plea.

"If the court please," he replied, "I would have to take the position that I am not objecting if upon my statement the defendant has been misled or mistaken in any way. But I would not want to take the responsibility of consenting without conferring with the attorney general."

"Very well," said the court, "I will take this motion under advisement, and dispose of it tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock."

Capone Appears Shocked.

The next remark seemed to be a shock to Capone, who had turned from the bench and started away. He stopped short and stared at his attorneys when Judge Wilkerson said:

"In the meantime, the defendant is remanded to the custody of the marshal." This meant the lockup for the gangster, who has been at liberty on bonds of $50,000.

But Judge Wilkerson withdrew the order remanding Capone to custody until 2 o'clock today when Attorney Ahern declared the defendant had been out on bail and that he has a wife and child. Judge Wilkerson explained that he thought he was doing something for the protection of the defendant, in view of the guards who accompanied him to and from the building.

"If somebody chooses to attach guards to him, may it please the court, that is their business," said Attorney Ahern. "I don't believe the defendant is requesting those guards."

Judge Wilkerson indicated that he would consent to a withdrawal of the guilty plea only upon a proper showing of the necessity. The courts in such instances, federal prosecutors declare, allow a withdrawal only when it appears that the pleas of guilty were entered through ignorance or inadvertence, or through the holding out of some false hope or inducement.

The Outlook for Gangster.

If the gang chief is not permitted to change his plea, Judge Wilkerson may impose whatever penalty he chooses under a possible maximum of thirty-four years' imprisonment and fines totaling $90,000. If a change in plea is allowed and Capone goes on trial he faces the virtual certainty of conviction. The government has not lost a single income tax prosecution, and its investigators declare that the Capone case is as strong as any of the others.

If convicted, he would be subject to the same possible maximum penalty. Jack Guzik, Capone business manager, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on his conviction of tax fraud. Capone, in addition to the tax evasion charges, is under indictment for conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, which carries an additional maximum penalty of two years and $10,000.

Reason for Prosecutor's Stand.

One of the reasons attributed as causing District Attorney Johnson to agree to a recommendation if Capone would plead guilty was the aim to get him into the penitentiary as soon as possible. It has been the prosecutor's prime objective to rid Chicago of Capone before the World's Fair in 1933.

If the gangster goes on trial, it probably will be in September, early in the fall term of court. If convicted, his case would be disposed of by the Circuit Court of Appeals during the spring, and the Supreme court would have time to act on his petition for a writ of certiorari the next fall, or little more than a year from now. All propositions of law involved in the case have been upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals, so that Capone would have slight chance on an appeal.

Crowd Wait To See Hoodlum.

The crowds at the federal building in the morning craning their necks for a glimpse of the hoodlum king, exceeded those which came during Capone's trial for contempt of court last spring. Capone was escorted from his hotel by a squad of police under Lieut. William McCarthy. He was driven into the mail tunnel entrance of the federal building on Adams street. Thousands awaited his arrival, and the crowds were there again at 2 o'clock.

The court room was filled to capacity, although no one unknown or bearing convincing credentials was allowed to pass through the improvised gate in the court corridor. The federal grand jury filled some of the benches in the rear, and there were many wives and other relatives of federal officials and employés—the usual privileged few.

"Jake" Factor in Court.

John [Jake the Barber] Factor, was in the court room when Capone entered. The former Halsted street hair cutter was there trying to get a writ of habeas corpus in fight to escape extradition to England as a swindler.

Judge Wilkerson heard Factor's attorneys and continued the case until this morning. He heard half a dozen routine motions before tatking up the Capone case, and then adjourned it promptly after reading his own statement.

Capone listened intently and exhibited grave concern during the brief morning session as Judge Wilkerson read his statement, making it plain that he was not bound by any agreement. The gangster was accompanied by his lawyers, including, besides Mr. Ahern, Leopold B. Meinick, to his suits in the Lexington hotel, where they discussed their plans during the noon recess.

The gang chieftain was on his way out of court thirty minutes after the afternoon session opened, surrounded by a cordon of police as he entered the curious crowds by taking an elevator. He appeared glum over the prospects of a trial or a sentence with no strings attached.

The government agents who developed the cases against Capone were in the court room, prepared to summarize their evidence had they been called upon. A. P. Madden, head of the intelligence unit, which handles all tax fraud cases, was there with Frank Wilson, ace investigator of the intelligence unit from Washington.

Young Eliot Ness, the special prohibition agent who with a half dozen others gathered the evidence on which Capone and 68 of his henchmen in the beer business were indicted, was also there.

Besides Mr. Johnson, the prosecution staff in the court room included Assistant United States Attorneys Victor E. La Rue, Dwight H. Green, Jacob Grossman, Samuel G. Clarke, and Special Assistant Attorney General William J. Froelich. However, the court, Mr. Johnson, and Attorney Ahern did all the talking.

The indictments against the chief public enemy charge attempts to evade payment of $215,000 in taxes on an income of $1,038,000 for 1924 and 1929 inclusive and conspiracy with 68 of his henchmen to violate the dry laws for ten years.

Judge Wilkerson's Statement

Judge Wilkerson's statement upon the opening of court yesterday morning, in which he declared he would not be influenced in his decision by any agreement between Al Capone and the government in passing sentence on the gang chief, was as follows:

"The United States attorney has stated that he wishes to offer suggestions with reference to the judgment to be entered in these cases. The pleas of guilty, I am advised, were entered upon his understanding to make such recommendations. Of course, the court will receive his suggestions and give to them the weight to which the views of counsel for the government are entitled.

"Court Not Bound," He Says.

"It is always understood, however, that in consenting to receive these suggestions the court does not bind itself to adopt them or to enter judgments in conformity therewith. There can be no exception to this rule. The parties to a criminal case may not stipulate as to the judgment to be entered. That duty rests on the court, and no one may relieve the court of that responsibility. That duty can be performed only after the court has acquainted itself with the facts by a hearing.

"The court may not now say to the defendant that it will enter the judgment suggested by the prosecutor. Obviously the court has no knowledge of the facts except that afforded by the indictments and the pleas. Obviously the court cannot anticipate what facts may be developed at the hearing. It is the duty of the court to hear all the facts, consider the suggestions of the parties, and then pronounce judgment in accordance with the record as it is made when the case is submitted for decision.

"This defendant must understand that he cannot have an agreement as to the judgment to be entered in the case.

"Pleas of guilty must be taken as unqualified admissions of the essential facts charged in the indictment. They do not foreclose the defendant on questions relating to the legal effect of these facts. They may not be acted on by the court unless they are voluntary and unconditional. The power to compromise cases involving criminal liability, when it exists under federal law, is not vested in the courts. It has been conferred by the congress upon other officers of the government.

"The court upon a plea of guilty should hear evidence in aggravation or mitigation of punishment offered by either the prosecution or the defense. The court may require the production of evidence which it may desire to aid it in fixing the penalty. If a defendant asks leniency of the court he should be ready to answer all proper questions put by the court touching the matters which he has confessed by his pleas.

May Determine Degree.

"While the court may determine the degree of guilt or the seriousness of the violation, it is obliged under a plea of guilty to assume the guilt of the defendant as to the matters charged in the indictment. The plea of guilty makes a formal judicial record that the defendant did the things charged in the indictment and the court has no right to proceed on any other basis.

"Of course, in passing upon the suggestions of the prosecutor the court may properly consider difficulties in proof and doubt on questions of law."

MAYOR'S $50,000 ECONOMY SURVEY WINS IN COUNCIL

Fund Approved as Clark and Cermak Clash.

Mayor Cermak won $50,000 from the city council yesterday to be expended on a survey of city departments by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer, with the object of effecting the 15 per cent cut in the 1932 city budget which the mayor says is possible.

Earlier in the day the expenditure was authorized by the council finance committee only after the mayor and Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the committee, had engaged in a spirited dispute. Other aldermen brought the controversy to a close as the two principals faced each other, red faced with anger, across the table at which they sat.

Transfer Fund for Survey.

Mayor Cermak was accompanied to the committee meeting by Corporation Counsel Sexton, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, and D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store, who is vice chairman of the mayor's advisory commission. All three advocated the appropriation for the economy survey, which was accomplished by transferring $50,000 from the fund for payment of interest on tax warrants to the mayor's contingency fund.

The controversy between Ald. Clark and the mayor started when the alderman spoke of the mayor's statement earlier in the week, in which Mr. Cermak estimated that it would be possible to trim 15 per cent, approximately $10,000,000, from the city budget without decreasing service to the public.

"That is impossible," the alderman told the mayor. "You ought to familiarize yourself with the budget before you make a statement of that kind. I want to know if you stand by that statement."

Stands Firm on Statement.

"Yes," retorted the mayor, "I made it and I'll stand by it, and I'll make some more statements, too."

"Well, I'll say that Mr. Jacobs, and you in approving what he has told you, don't know what you're talking about," declared Ald. Clark. He pounded the table as he spoke.

"You're just sore," declared Mayor Cermak. "You're doing everything you can to throw sand in the track. Go ahead and pump it out of you."

"Don't you get angry with me," the alderman shouted.

"I'll get angry with you if I want to," the mayor replied in an equally loud tone.

"You just happen to be mayor, that's all," snapped Ald. Clark.

"Yes, and you didn't help me any, either," replied the mayor.

"Well, only to the extent of 6,000 votes," replied the alderman, referring to the 30th ward majority for Cermak in the mayoralty election.

Nelson Hails Dispute.

At that point Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [4th] interrupted. "Here, you're only making politics," he said.

"Yes, let's get down to business," added Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th].

In explaining Jacobs' work, Mayor Cermak said the efficiency expert was to go into every department in the city hall and confer with department chiefs regarding economies. On Wednesday, he said, a conference with Health Commissioner Bundesen resulted in an agreement to abolish more than sixty jobs in the health department next year with a saving of $[illegible].

The mayor mentioned other departments in which savings have been accomplished or can be accomplished. As he did so Ald. Clark said, "Those are only details. The whole saving won't amount to more than $1,000,000."

The committee approved the transfer of funds by a unanimous vote, Ald. Clark, as chairman, did not vote.

Hit at Court Officials.

Failure of a majority of the Municipal court officials to agree to include themselves and their staffs in Mayor Cermak's economy plan for cutting two weeks' salary from the pay of all city employes caused Ald. William J. Rowan [10th] to introduce a resolution asking the severance of the Municipal court from other city activities.

The resolution, which was passed, was in the form of an appeal to Gov. Emmerson. It asked that in the call of any special session of the legislature he include the question of establishing a special tax for the maintenance of the Municipal court. As demonstrated in the refusal of court officials to apply the pay cut, the alderman pointed out, the city must appropriate for the court at present, but has no power to limit the appropriation.

Ald. James B. Waller [43d] introduced a resolution calling on the mayor to appoint a representative to go to Washington and request of President Hoover the income tax returns of Chicago residents, for use in assessing personal property taxes. It failed by two votes to receive the two-thirds majority necessary for passage under suspension of the rules, and was sent to the committee on efficiency.

The council adopted without debate a resolution sponsored by Ald. Nelson requesting the board of assessors to publicly indicate what its policy was to be in assessing personal property in connection with the 1931 quadrennial reassessment.

ments to prepare another financial statement showing their floating debts, secured and unsecured, at the end of this year, the estimated income and expense for 1932, and the means and methods to be employed to finance their respective budgets, under present laws and conditions—including the payment of taxes, and upon the assumptions recited on possible decreases in taxable real estate values.

"Accordingly the secretary has been instructed to prepare a questionnaire which will elicit the information outlined in the preceding paragraphs, and to request like information from the three major park boards of Chicago. It is desirable that the information sought shall be obtained as soon as practicable, and the secretary will correlate and distribute the data to the members of the commission immediately after its receipt."

Promise Real Estate Totals.

The commission has been promised by the board of assessors an estimate within two weeks of approximately how much the real estate taxes for 1931 will be reduced, if any, under the quadrennial reassessment. The local governments are now spending those taxes or accumulating obligations against them.

The county, city, and school board budgets have been passed on the assumption that 90 per cent of the taxes levied will be collected, although the loss and cost on collecting the 1928 taxes was more than 19 per cent and the 1929 tax loss at present is much higher.

"With a possible decrease in real estate valuations of 5 to 30 per cent, with a consequent decrease in the taxes levied, and then a 20 per cent loss in collections, how is it possible," asked one member of the commission after the session, "for the city, county and school board to pay out this year? But maybe they have a way. If so, we would like to have it."

Much of the discussion at last night's session was devoted to a proposal to issue bonds which would make the collection of 1930 taxes unnecessary. A lawyers' committee reported its view and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, and H. L. Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co., discussed the matter at some length.

The commission decided to consider the matter further at a later meeting, which indicates probably that the majority view of the lawyers and bankers was not highly favorable to the proposal. But Chairman Joseph K. Brittain declined to disclose the trend of the expert recommendations.

TRANSIT PLAN LEGAL, DECISION OF KLARKOWSKI

Upholds Ordinance and State Legislation.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski of the Circuit court decided yesterday that Chicago's local transportation program is legal and valid. In his opinion the enabling legislation passed by the general assembly—the terminable permit act, subway act, amendment to the corporation act, and to the railroad act—are constitutional.

JUDGE KLARKOWSKI.

The judge held that the terminable permit ordinance, passed by the city council on May 19, 1930, under the authority granted is valid. On two other major issues the court said:

"It is apparent that the city has the power to construct the subway in the manner and form set forth in the ordinance, and the Chicago Local Transportation company—organized to consolidate and improve the surface and elevated lines—is a company duly organized under and by virtue of the laws of the state."

Decision in Test Case.

This decision came in a case to test the validity of the transit program, with Attorney General Carlstrom opposing the ordinance and the city's lawyers, Walter L. Fisher and Allan T. Gilbert, defending it. All important points were decided in favor of the transportation plan.

These same contentions for and against the laws and ordinances were previously presented to Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court in another case. This was a taxpayers' suit, in which the complainants were Elizabeth M. Bass and August Olson, and their attorney is Stephen A. Foster.

Lindsay Decision Due Tuesday.

Judge Lindsay is expected to announce his decision next Tuesday. Judge Klarkowski announced yesterday he will enter his order next Monday.

The quo warranto suit, decided by Judge Klarkowski, will be appealed by the attorney general to the state Supreme court; and it has been intimated that Stephen Foster will appeal his suit if the Lindsay decision is strongly adverse to his clients.

It was announced by Attorney General Carlstrom that one of his chief reasons for starting the quo warranto proceedings was to speed up the litigation and obtain a decision.

VOTE ACCIDENT VERDICT.

A coroner's jury yesterday decided that Cornelius Bowler, 66 years old, who drowned in the lake at Fullerton avenue, was a victim of accidental death.

CANNON ASKS COURT TO BAR NYE INQUIRY; ATTACKS AUTHORITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr. thinks that a judge and a jury and not a quintet of United States senators ought to hear charges against him for his alleged violation of the federal corrupt practice act in the 1928 anti-Smith campaign in Virginia.

BISHOP CANNON JR.

And so today, as he was sailing away to Europe, he applied to the district Supreme court here for writs to prevent Senator Gerald P. Nye and his four associates on the Nye committee from continuing the hearing, set for the last of August, on charges brought against the bishop by Representative George H. Tinkham of Massachusetts.

Usurping the functions of the judiciary, and infringing on the duties of the grand jury are the counts on which Attorney Robert H. McNeill, counsel for Bishop Cannon, bases his petition.

Justice James M. Proctor, to whom the application was made, declined to issue the writs, insisting that the five senators, Nye of North Dakota, Robert F. Wagner of New York, Porter H. Dale of Vermont, Rocco C. Patterson of Missouri, and Clarence C. Dill of Washington, be given opportunity to present their views and set the hearing for Aug. 12.

CHICAGO BROKER DIES IN CRASH OF OWN PLANE

Jack Shepard, 34 years old, formerly an investment broker at 120 South La Salle street, was killed yesterday when his airplane, a small Cardinal monocoupe, crashed near Florrisant, St. Louis county, Mo. He was flying from St. Louis to Kansas City.

JACK SHEPARD.

Just before the accident Shepard was sighted flying about 1,500 feet above Florrisant. Henry Rickelmann, a witness, said the ship dropped after a part of it had broken away and fallen. He said he thought this part was the propeller.

The plane was the same one in which Shepard won two first prizes at the air meet held last Sunday at Curtiss field by Aviation post of the American Legion, in which Post and Gatty, world flyers, also took part. Shepard won his prizes despite an under powered plane, according to Capt. B. B. Lipsner, pioneer air mail pilot.

Shepard was married and the father of one son. His home was at 422 Melrose street.

One Man Coup Boosts Price of July Corn; Pit in Flurry

Frantic shorts were struggling in the Board of Trade pit yesterday to buy July corn at 72½ cents a bushel—corn that a great many of them had sold at 60 cents or even less.

All the corn that was wanted was sold, and by brokers said to represent Thomas M. Howell, who in recent months has become the most noted as he is one of the most mysterious of all the great plungers the grain exchange has known since the days of Benjamin P. Hutchinson, "Old Hutch."

He Backs His Judgment.

Reports have it that Mr. Howell, who has been a trader in the grain market for twenty years, went single handed into corn a few weeks ago, when its price was weak and declining, backed his judgment with his accumulated wealth, and turned its course upward, making perhaps one more million for himself and quite a few millions for farmers and others who had corn to sell.

His foresight was rewarded. July corn rose 15 cents a bushel in little more than a week; and Mr. Howell is credited with buying anywhere from 6 to 10 million bushels when the price was between 60 and 70 cents. The sellers of this corn must fulfill their contracts by delivery of corn or by money settlement before the expiration of trading today, the last day of July.

Price too Low, His Belief.

Mr. Howell's position was due to his firm belief that the price of corn was too low. About two months ago he told a friend:

"If corn is not worth more than 50 cents a bushel I am willing to lose some money buying it." Then his orders to buy went out.

One story has it that in recent months he was short in wheat and Arthur Cutten was long. The bear side won out and Mr. Howell, possibly, cashed in heavily. Then Bear Howell and Bull Cutten met in a brokerage house.

"Well, it's all over now," Mr. Cutten is reported to have said, "and why can't we be friendly?"

"I go it alone. I don't ask any quarter and I don't want to give any," was the uncompromising retort attributed to Mr. Howell.

In Chicago Since 1907.

It was in 1907 that Mr. Howell came to Chicago. He was a native of Cedar Rapids, Ia., but had been an advertising solicitor in Lincoln, Neb., before coming here to engage in the brokerage business and speculation. He is only 49 years old.

Legends are already growing up about him in the grain trade. Estimates place his wealth in the millions. It was gossiped that he was one of the wheat shorts to whom President Hoover appealed several weeks ago.

Reports are that he is short in September corn and that he has made another fortune as a short in the New York stock market. Moreover, he is assumed to be one of the largest bank stock holders in Chicago and New York.

Mr. Howell became a pit trader for Jackson Bros. & Co. in 1915. His home is at 2708 Lake View avenue.

AN ACCORDION TUTOR BUILDS UP A SIDELINE

Last night he left his home at 1916 South Damen avenue and boarded a Douglas Park elevated train for the loop. He carried with him his $650 accordion, bearing his name in luminous letters. He also carried a letter.

Spranzo sat down in a crowded coach. He spread his feet apart, and set down his accordion between them for safe keeping. Then he took his letter from his pocket. It was a welcome letter. It was from his attorney informing him that an automobile device he had invented had been filed with the patent office in Washington. Spranzo was thrilled. He forgot everything else. He read the letter once, then twice. He reread it as the trains rolled along.

At Laflin street Spranzo folded the letter. He looked down between his feet. Where his $650 accordion had been were only floor and feet.

Make 370 Mile Flight in 3½ Hours.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 30.—[Special.]—Two and a half hours after leaving North Branch, Maine, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 4:36 p. m. [Chicago time] on the first lap of a flight to the orient.

The plane was brought down on the Ottawa river at Rockliffe airport after circling the city several minutes. They were greeted by civil officials and officers of the dominion air forces.

Just before landing Mrs. Lindbergh radioed their arrival by the plane's set to the Pan-American Airways offices in New York. During the trip she radioed their progress several times.

Calls Trip "Enjoyable."

Th trip of 370 miles was made at a speed of 105.6 mile an hour, but Col. Lindbergh said no attempt had been made to make fast time.

He said the flight had been uneventful and enjoyable. He added that the next leg of the flight, to Moose Factory, would not be made until Saturday at the earliest, and possibly later. Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh tonight were guests at a dinner given by Hanford MacNider, at which several Canadian aviators familiar with the country the Lindb... he will fly over were present.

Canadian arctic flyers are alarmed over Col. Lindbergh's plan to fly via Bathurst inlet, Coronation gulf and Aklavik, claiming it is a highly dangerous route and no unaccompanied airplane should attempt it. They endeavored tonight to persuade him to take a southerly route, via Beverley lake to the junction of the Thelon and Hanbury rivers, thence to Artillery lake, Fort Reliance and the MacKenzie river to Aklavik, at the mouth of MacKenzie river.

Test Radio, Then Start.

North Haven, Me., July 30.—[Special.]—To a salvo of cheers from a flotilla of small boats carrying summer residents of the region, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off for Ottawa, Canada, this afternoon on the first leg of their 7,000 mile vacation flying trip to the orient. The colonel said he expected to average about 100 miles an hour on the 370 mile hop this afternoon.

Preliminary to the takeoff the Lindberghs spent nearly an hour testing out their wireless with WOAO, the Pan-American Airways station at the Glenn Curtiss airport, North Beach, L. I.

The Lindberghs spent the night at the summer home of United States Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, where their 13 months old son will stay until their return from the far east. They arrived at the plane's anchorage in a small yacht, accompanied by members of the Morrow family and some friends.

FLYERS, FAR BEHIND TIME OF POST-GATTY, CREEPING UP SLOWLY

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon were far behind the time of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty on their way around the world today, but already, like Æsop's tortoise, they were creeping up on the fleeter hare.

Pangborn and Herndon got to Berlin today just 56 hours and 12 minutes out of New York; Post and Gatty had taken only 34 hours and 34 minutes. So on their landing Pangborn and Herndon were 21 hours and 38 minutes behind schedule.

But Post and Gatty stayed in Berlin 11 hours and eight minutes. Pangborn and Herndon took off 3 hours and 19 minutes after landing, thus picking up 7 hours and 49 minutes on their rivals. This put them only 13 hours and 49 minutes behind schedule.

On the 1,000 mile flight from Berlin to Moscow they were expected to drop back some more, for their plane is far slower than the Winnie Mae of Post and Gatty, who made the leg in 8 hours and 52 minutes.

But in Moscow again they hoped to take in a lot more slack. Post and Gatty stayed in Moscow 11 hours and 30 minutes. By staying just long enough to fuel Pangborn and Herndon could jump 10 hours toward their rivals' mark all at once. And that would put them within 4 hours and 57 minutes of the Post-Gatty time up to the point of departure from Moscow.

$2,500 Monthly Alimony to Katherine MacDonald

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 30.—[Special.]—A ruling by Superior Judge William Dehy was recorded today, setting aside a motion to vacate the interlocutory divorce decree obtained last Saturday by Katherine MacDonald, former film beauty, from Christian Holmes, local millionaire. It developed that part of the couple's property settlement provides $2,500 alimony a month for the actress until she marries again.

TURKEY CHEERS RECORD BREAKING YANKEE FLYERS

land, Ireland, London, Paris, and the Alps," he said. "Between the Alps and Istanbul we crossed, during the night, a lot of places which we ourselves could not distinguish, but two of which may have been Belgrade and Sofia."

At the airdrome they ate cake and drank punch, in which they were toasted by Turkish officials.

The Turkish Aviation league plans to present medals to the flyers. Invitations were given them to attend a banquet given by the league tonight at which Dieudonne Coste, French flyer, was present, but the flyers asked to be excused and went to bed instead, promising to attend banquets later when they have caught up on their sleep.

The flyers said they dropped many messages over France, but they had not learned whether any had been picked up. (One of the messages, it was learned later, had been picked up by a mechanic at Le Bourget flying field, near Paris.)

In discussing the flight afterwards, the aviators disclosed they had just enough fuel to reach Istanbul—718 gallons. Only ten gallons was left in the ship's tanks when they landed.

REACH BERLIN, SPEED ON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 30.—Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, who yesterday completed a flight across the Atlantic, tonight are speeding for Moscow in their Bellanca monoplane in quest of a new round the world record.

They made a forced landing in Wales last night, hopped to London this morning, and then to Berlin. They took off for Moscow from the Tempelhof airdrome at 10:40 p. m. [4:40 p. m. Chicago daylight time]. Before departing they announced they expected to reach Moscow in about 12 hours.

Herndon and Pangborn, who had raced Russell Boardman and John Polando across the ocean, had intended to fly to Moscow without a stop. After their forced landing in a farmyard in Cardigan, Wales, the flyers took off for London, where they spent six hours.

They hopped from London for Berlin at 2:13 p. m., and covered the 575 miles in five hours and twelve minutes.

Policeman Spies Plane.

The plane arrived in Berlin at 7:25 p. m., just at dusk. A tremendous crowd was at Tempelhof field and was gathered about the Graf Zeppelin, German dirigible, which had returned from a flight over the Arctic a few minutes before.

No one paid any attention to the Atlantic plane as it settled down until it was spied by a lone policeman.

The crowd rushed to the plane and cried "Hoch" as Herndon and Pangborn stepped out.

"We're going on to Moscow at once," the Americans told airport officials.

They were advised there was stormy weather over at least 70 miles of the route, but the flyers insisted they would not wait and repeated their determination to beat the round the world record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

The plane left Berlin without navigation lights. Anxious to get going, they waited only long enough for mechanics to refuel the plane and install new batteries, which would give them instrument lighting. While the mechanics were at work the flyers grabbed a light meal. Still munching their food, the two climbed into the plane and soon were off.

GRAF LANDS AT BERLIN

Germany's gadabout dirigible, the Graf Zeppelin, landed at Tempelhof airdrome at 6:38 p. m. [12:38 p. m., Chicago time] today, after a six day cruise of scientific exploration which carried it far into the frozen north.

Thousands of Berliners were on hand to greet the big ship when it circled over the city and then swept down to a perfect landing. As the ground crew hauled the Zeppelin to earth a band burst into "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and the throngs cheered.

The Zeppelin, after its brief stop here, took the air for Friedrichshafen, its home port, landing there at 5 a. m.

Amy in Deep Siberia.

MOSCOW, July 30.—(AP)—Amy Johnson, British aviatrix who is on her way from England to Tokio, landed at Kurgan, Siberia, tonight after a flight from Sverdlovsk, according to reports received here. She expects to take off tomorrow for Omsk and hopes to arrive in Tokio Aug. 2 or Aug. 3.

Clyde Pangborn, World Circling Flyer, Was "Bad Boy" of Army Aviation During the War

Wenatchee, Wash., July 30.—(AP)—Stunting operations of Clyde Pangborn, now flying around the world with Hugh Herndon Jr., earned for him the name of "Peck's bad boy" in army aviation circles during the world war, his mother, Mrs. Opan Pangborn, said today.

Young Pangborn was grounded most of the time for stunting, she added, and hence wasn't permitted to go overseas during the war. Stationed at Fort Sam Houston, he passed many hours on the ground, "sunning himself," while his mates were in the air. Another time he flew through a hangar to win a bet.

Likes Number 13.

Number 13 has always been a lucky one for her son, Mrs. Pangborn recalled, mentioning many events in his career in which 13 played a part. Pangborn and Herndon flew the 13th plane eastward across the Atlantic.

The aviator performed an unusual midair rescue in San Antonio in 1924, she said, when Roselyn Gordon, a girl parachute jumper, "bailed out" during an exhibition and caught in the landing gear. Pangborn pulled her up to the ship.

Herndon's Mother Not Worried.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—If Mrs. Dixon Boardman, society matron and mother of Hugh Herndon Jr., ever worried about her son before he started this flight around the world, it was seven years ago when he escorted 20 unbroken horses from Banff, Alta., to Jasper National park.

Mrs. Boardman is not related to Russell Boardman, who also flew to Europe yesterday.

"I was to meet Hugh at Banff," Mrs. Boardman said, "but when I got there I found he had left with two other youths and the 20 unbroken horses for Jasper National park. He was gone three weeks, but he did a fine job of it."

Hugh has one sister, Mrs. W. R. Shillaber, 32, and three brothers, John, 25; Robert, 19, and William, 15.

Herndon's Wife Confident.

Albany, N. Y., July 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Hugh Herndon Jr., attractive blond wife of the trans-Atlantic flyer, said today she believes only "the worst sort" of weather can prevent her husband and Clyde Pangborn from completing their 'round the world flight in less time than it took Post and Gatty.

The former Mary Ellen Parker, prominent Albany society girl, and Herndon were married secretly on the eve of Herndon's first attempted take-off which failed.

Flyer's Wife Is Calm.

Mattapoisett, Mass., July 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Boardman, wife of Russell Boardman, received the news that her husband had successfully completed a record nonstop flight to Turkey calmly today.

"I knew he would do it," she said. "Why, I was so confident I didn't even lose a night's sleep."

With Mrs. Boardman here is their two year old daughter, Jane.

Lynn, Mass., July 30.—(AP)—The Polandos declared a 24 hour moratorium on work today and sat themselves down to talk of a son and brother who flew from New York to Turkey.

The mother, brother and sister of John Polando, mechanic of the plane, Cape Cod, slept peacefully last night while the rest of the world wondered and worried over the whereabouts of the flyers.

SMOKERS! DON'T BLAME YOUR BRAND

SCIENCE calls them papillae—those thousands of clusters of sensitive taste-buds on your tongue.

Your papillae ::: when functioning properly, give flavor, zest to your cigarette—your food.

Like other parts of your body, they become tired by over use :::

So when everything goes tasteless—look to your papillae! They probably need refreshing.

Care for your taste-buds, your papillae. Care for them by avoiding dry mouth, a condition of recognized prevalence.

If you enjoy smoking a lot—and who doesn't!—chew Wrigley's frequently. Wrigley's between smokes, by stimulating a free flow of saliva, keeps the taste-buds moist and fresh and definitely relieves dry mouth. Thus, scientists say, the sensation of taste is intensified.

If you'd like more enjoyment of your cigarette and your food, keener appetite and better digestion, chew Wrigley's regularly between smokes and between meals.

At the cigar stand, take your change in Wrigley's.

Wrigley's JUICY FRUIT—the delicious fruity flavor that you get alone in Wrigley's Juicy Fruit. There is only one Juicy Fruit Gum. There is nothing that is even nearly like its rich, full fruity flavor. If you have never tried Wrigley's Juicy Fruit, you have missed a real taste treat! MYRTLE NAMED IN WARRANT; GAY PARTIES ALLEGED

Mrs. Blacklidge Accused by Neighbors.

A warrant charging disorderly conduct was issued yesterday by Judge Matthew Hartigan in the Felony court against Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue in the Chicago district until forced to resign last January after she had involved Edward R. Litsinger in a faro game at Springfield which cost him $30,000.

The complainant against Mrs. Blacklidge is Mrs. Cora Rowe, 940 East 52d street, occupant with her husband, Frank R. Rowe, a railroad official, of the apartment below that occupied by Mrs. Blacklidge. Other complainants who will appear in court against Mrs. Blacklidge are Mrs. Charles C. Fiske, 8159 Ingleside avenue, resident in the same building, and U. S. Greene, occupant of the apartment above Mrs. Blacklidge's.

Warrant to Be Served Today.

The warrant was given to South Chicago police and will be served upon Mrs. Blacklidge today.

Mrs. Rowe told Judge Hartigan that hilarious parties staged every night in her apartment by Mrs. Blacklidge had driven the neighborhood to a united protest. Repeated appeals to the police brought no cessation to the revelry, she declared.

Mrs. Blacklidge moved into apartment 2 of the 30 apartment building last May 1, Mrs. Rowe told the judge. On the second night of her occupancy, according to Mrs. Rowe, streams of noisy men and women came and went from the Blacklidge apartment, and piercing yelps from the celebrants continued until 8 a. m.

"The neighbors decided it was just a housewarming party," Mrs. Rowe declared. "But if it was, it has been going on ever since. Every night has been like New Year's Eve. Nightly, a procession of taxis draws up to the building. Scores of men, in age from 25 to 70, come and go as well as numbers of women. One gray-haired man, well dressed, has a bodyguard who goes ahead each time to see if the coast is clear.

Tell of Police Calls.

"The police were called five times. Each time, the party would quiet down for a time and then go on worse than before. The police never did more than visit the place.

"Finally, three weeks ago, the complaints became so numerous that the police brought a patrol wagon along. But they made no arrests."

Some of the men attending the Blacklidge parties blundered into other apartments in the building, Mrs. Rowe asserted. Complaints to the agents, Peterson and Sutton, brought no results, she said.

Mrs. Blacklidge first used the name of Beasley when she moved in, it was said, but later placed her own name on the mail box.

Girl, Father Ask $600,000; Charge Failure to Marry

Miami, Fla., July 30.—(AP)—Semmes W. Parish of Miami Beach was named defendant in two damage suits aggregating $600,000 filed in Circuit court here today. The suits were filed in the name of Mrs. Omah Hill, Tulsa, Okla., seeking $400,000, and Walter A. Hill, her father, seeking $200,000. The plaintiff's attorney said the actions were based on alleged promises of Mr. Parish to marry Miss Hill, his former secretary.

INHERITANCE TAX ON ANTE-MORTEM GIFTS HELD VOID

Ruling May Bring Refund of Millions.

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—A decision was handed down today in the United States District court which, it upheld in its final appeal to the Supreme court will involve the return of between fifty and one hundred million dollars to various estates taxed under a 1926 revenue law. The ruling was by Judge Alfred C. Coxe in favor of the estate of the late Col. Henry A. Guinzburg, philanthropist, who died on Nov. 16, 1928.

JUDGE D. C. COX

Judge Coxe, in a short opinion, held that section 32-C of the revenue act of 1926 is unconstitutional. This section provides that the government, for the purpose of taxation, may presume that gifts made by any one within two years prior to death were made in anticipation of death and that the estate of the deceased may be taxed accordingly.

The present case, which is only one of thousands pending against the government in every district in the United States, was selected as a test case and will be appealed immediately to the Circuit court and to the Supreme court for a decision on the law.

On July 1, 1927, a little over a year before he died, Col. Guinzburg presented to his son, Harold K. Guinzburg, and his bride a home valued at $70,000. The government, after Col. Guinzburg's death, collected a tax of $2,000 from the estate as the assessment against this property.

In discussing the two year period provided in the section, Judge Coxe said: "The period is purely arbitrary, and the gift is taxed without regard to the fact or the actual intent. This is enough to bring it, that being the law, within the constitutional bar."

The constitutional bar alluded to by Judge Coxe is the fifth amendment of the constitution prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law.

CERMAK WARNS POLICE TO END "HOME GUARDS"

Tells Captains They May Face Trial Board.

Mayor Cermak announced yesterday that police captains assigning policemen to guard private home without furnishing sound reasons for their action may find themselves facing the trial board. The mayor ordered Capt. John A. Hogan of the Hyde Park station to make a written explanation of the assignment of police to the home of Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, at 1028 East 46th street.

Capt. Hogan will also be asked to explain the assignment of police on a number of other special details in his district. One policeman was reported to put in all his time acting as chauffeur for the captain and he has two policemen as secretaries.

Another policeman is stationed at the Gateway garage, 56th street and Stony Island avenue, for several hours each morning. Capt. Hogan has his car washed at this garage.

An endeavor to reach Capt. Hogan was made yesterday but repeated calls at his office failed to find him in.

Mayor Cermak reinforced his statement concerning the slowness in obeying his order that all available policemen be placed on the streets and nonessential details be eliminated.

"That order means what it says," he declared. "If a captain is found violating it, he will find himself in trouble and may be called upon to face the trial board. If any detail is made, it should be fully explained in a written report. We need men on the streets much more than acting as guards for the homes of private citizens."

Commenting on recent transfers of policemen from one district to another, the mayor declared:

"There was a lot of crying about the transfer of men known as connivers and collectors, but against whom not enough evidence can be gathered for presenting the cases in court or before the trial board. The recent transfer is notice to thieving policemen who have grown independently rich. There are some who have been transferred and placed in uniform who return to their old haunts and continue their old tactics.

"Merchants who are in a legitimate business need not be afraid but those who are in rackets had better be careful. They should not deal with these collectors and connivers. It is the policemen's duty to arrest burglars and thieves and not to harrass the legitimate business men."

SENTENCED FOR THEFT.

Mrs. Helen Daneliah, 28 years old, 1051 Milwaukee avenue, was sentenced to 10 days in the Bridewell and fined $1 by Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday for the theft of 700 handkerchiefs from a loop store where she was employed.

LOSS OF LISTS HOLDS UP WORK ON TAX REVISION

The revision of personal property valuations by the board of review has been delayed for more than two weeks, it was learned yesterday, because the assessors' lists for Oak Park taxpayers whose names begin with E, F, and G have been lost. The Magill-Weinsheimer Printing company has not been able to complete the lists, Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk for the board, said all the other lists in the county had been published and sent out three weeks ago.

An official of the printing company said the names had not been received from the assessors. Sam Flaxman, clerk from the assessors' office, who had charge of the lists, said he had receipts to prove that they had been delivered. John E. Conroy, secretary of the board of assessors, ordered new lists sent to the printers.

The board of review so far has heard 300 of the 40,000 personal property complaints. Beginning Monday, it will hear 500 complaints a day.

1932 STRENGTH KEEPS PILING UP FOR ROOSEVELT

Political Opponents Find Outlook Gloomy.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—The presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York appears, like "Ole Man River," to be just rolling along. Sundry Democratic leaders who have set out to check it are beginning to despair.

And as the young governor—he is only 48—looms larger and larger as a presidential possibility, the field of Democratic possibilities grows smaller. The only other outstanding figures are Newton D. Baker of Ohio and Owen D. Young of New York, neither of whom will allow his name to be used as an aspirant to the office, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Al Smith, who is believed to be hankering for the nomination, but harboring no illusions as to his ability to get it.

All of these potential nominees are wet, so it may be recorded as a safe bet that the Democratic nominee will be a wet. Such dry contenders as there ever were have faded away. About the only ones left are Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, a political star of favorite son magnitude and fast losing luminosity at that, and Gov. George White of Ohio, who may not be able to make even the favorite son class. Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who was a favorite son at Houston, has looked the course over and decided the going is too wet for any dry this time.

Smith and Raskob Unenthused.

The Roosevelt candidacy has been developing momentum at a rate which suggests that the band wagon jumping stage may be close at hand. He is about as far advanced toward the nomination now as Al Smith was a year before the 1928 convention, when it began to be said that it was all over but the shouting.

It has been common knowledge for months that neither Mr. Smith nor John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, is enthusiastic about nominating Gov. Roosevelt. Their first choice is Smith, and second, Young, but as both are New Yorkers nothing much can be done in behalf of either so long as the New York governor is in the running.

The events that have been accelerating the Roosevent candidacy have fairly been tumbling over each other of late. Not a great deal of significance was attached to the assertions two weeks ago of James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee of New York, upon returning from a western tour, that western Democrats are overwhelmingly for Roosevelt. He is managing the Roosevelt boom and naturally would find Roosevelt sentiment everywhere.

Pennsylvania Joins His Train.

But when Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic boss of Pennsylvania, announced soon thereafter that 66 of Pennsylvania's 72 delegates would be for the nomination of Roosevelt, there was a great pricking up of ears in political precincts. This was a bolt from a clear sky, for the anti-Roosevelt leaders who had been counting on Pennsylvania for effective aid in stopping the New York governor short of the requisite two-thirds of the convention.

It gave Mr. Smith and Mr. Raskob no comfort to reflect that those Pennsylvania delegates are yet to be elected, for it was the same Joe Guffey, who in 1927 had announced that 66 Pennsylvania delegates would be for Mr. Smith and he only missed it by one—there were 67. Mr. Guffey, nephew of the Guffey whom William Jennings Bryan had kicked out of the Denver convention, has a reputation for delivering.

Cermak Adds Indorsement.

Next along came Mayor Cermak of Chicago to see a New York prize fight, and incidentally talk a little politics. He called on Gov. Roosevelt and lunched with Mr. Smith. After which the mayor told the reporters that Roosevelt is wet enough to suit the Illinois Democrats, that Smith, in the mayor's opinion, is not looking for the nomination, and that Smith is not unfriendly to Roosevelt. From what the mayor said it was inferred that Illinois entertained no serious notion of garnering the nomination for Senator James Hamilton Lewis and was putting him forward for trading and advertising purposes with an eye to second place on the ticket.

Other parts of the country were soon heard from. Congressman Edgar Howard of Nebraska, a dry, gave the Roosevelt candidacy a boost. Virginia leaders made it known they would be for Roosevelt after observing the amenities with respect to their favorite son, former Gov. Harry Byrd. From across the mountains came word that West Virginia is in line for Roosevelt. Georgia has been in the Roosevelt camp for some time.

Arouses Anti-Saloon League.

With the south tumbling into the Roosevelt bandwagon the drys took alarm and the Rev. Arthur J. Barton of Georgia, chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon league issued a blast against the governor which was hailed with glee by the Roosevelt partisans as proof for the wets that the governor is sound on the burning issue.

Senator T. H. Caraway of Arkansas, a dry, predicted that 90 per cent of southern delegates will be for Roosevelt. Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee said Roosevelt leads in his state.

There is one hurdle ahead of Roosevelt. That is Tammany, just now in worse repute than ever by virtue of the exposures of graft in New York City. Tammany will control the New York delegation. If Roosevelt were to repudiate Tammany he would lose the majority of the delegation.

MOORE IS SEEN BY LEWIS AS PERIL TO ROOSEVELT HOPES

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—The man Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt must watch, if he wishes the Democratic presidential nomination, is former Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

None other than United States Senator Elect J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois—affable and picturesque individual—made this surprising statement during an interview at the Pensylvania station today upon his arrival aboard the Broadway Limited.

Mr. Lewis suggested the possibility that Tammany might support Mr. Moore, who, incidentally, is again his party's candidate for governor.

"Rather than have a split in the Democratic party in New York, the opponents of Gov. Roosevelt may back another man, say, such a man as Harry Moore of New Jersey, an easterner, a wet, and a man right across the river," said Mr. Lewis, who just the other week paid a personal visit to Gov. Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

600 MILLIONS IN CLAIMS AGAINST MEXICO IN MIXUP

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Private American claims against Mexico, amounting to more than 600 million dollars, have been thrown into a serious tangle.

Approaching the end of its legal life the general claims commission, set up to handle these cases, shows no indication of concluding its business satisfactorily. It expires Aug. 31 unless again renewed.

The commission has led a troubled existence. The American member, Fred K. Nielsen of Nebraska, finally took exception to some of the simple methods employed by his Mexican and Panamanian colleagues in disposing of important American claims by dismissing them.

Inside Story Never Told.

The inside story of the disagreement never has been told. It is known, however, that Nielsen registered determined objection to the methods of the two other commissioners, who, standing together, found ways of eliminating the American member from deliberations on the work of the commission. His objection caused the other commissioners to interrupt the last session of the group.

Recently the state department disclosed that Nielsen intended to resign and that he had been designated two months ago to undertake another important arbitration proceeding, the adjudication of claims pending between the United States and Egypt. His resignation from the Mexican-American commission has not been presented as yet, however to President Hoover.

Situation Complicated.

Should Nielsen withdraw from the Mexican-American commission and further efforts at settlement through a commission be attempted, President Hoover will face a difficult task in naming a successor. Presumably in the event of further extension of the commission, Dr. Fernandez MacGregor, Mexican commissioner, and Dr. Horacio Alfaro, neutral Panamanian third member and presiding officer, would continue in office. Any new American commissioner would find a complicated situation confronting him.

The Washington government has not disclosed whether Nielsen's impending retirement from the general commission heralds the end of the American effort to settle these long standing claims of Americans against Mexico through an arbitral commission.

Also Arlington Handicap which brings racing's distance champions – more than $100,000 in purses for this great racing day.

THE greatest thoroughbreds in America have gathered together at Arlington for one of the finest days of racing ever scheduled for an American track. Attracted by the two brilliant feature races, these distinguished blue bloods are trained fine for their effort to win rich purses and undying fame.

For two-year-olds, there will be the Post and Paddock Stakes, the richest race for horses of this age ever run in the West.

Must beat Sun Beau

For the older horses, the Arlington Handicap, as its name implies, gives entrants an equal chance through weight adjustments. For instance, the great Sun Beau, which won the Arlington Cup last week and the third money winner of all time, will be handicapped with a weight of 128 pounds. Whether or not this seasoned thoroughbred will be able to get to the finish line ahead of a large field is the question. If he does, Sun Beau will become the largest winner of money ever seen on the turf. To do this he will have to beat the able Gallant Knight, the sturdy Mike Hall, Spinach, The Nut, Paul Bunyan and many other champions.

Speedy horses competing for the rich Post and Paddock purse will probably be: W. R. Coe's Osculator, winner at Belmont Park of a National Stallion race and, at Aqueduct, of a Great American stakes; also Polonaise, winner of the Fashion revival at Belmont Park; John Hertz's Pair by Pair, winner of a Hyde Park at Arlington; Victor Emanuel's Morfair, which astonished the trainers and clockers by an exhibition of speed Wednesday morning; R. M. Eastman's Cathop, Mike Hall's half brother; John Schorr's consistent colt Etcetera and smart filly At Sunrise; the Three D's costly Liberty Limited.

Last chance at Arlington

Here is your final opportunity to see horse racing at its best—sport for sport's sake only and the breeding of the thoroughbred. Arlington on this day closes a most successful season, made so by the non-profit policy found nowhere else in America. Sportsmen, horse owners, trainers and lovers of the thoroughbred have endorsed this unique policy by giving their best to this great racing meet.

Come for the final day of racing. It will provide spectacular racing thrills at no increase in admission cost.

Arlington is the famous racing shrine conducted without profit by a group of Chicago's foremost citizens. It is a monument to high class sport.

Missouri Valley, Ia., July 30.—[Special.]—The death sentence has been passed on a devastating horde of crop hungry grasshoppers, as a result of a gathering of state and county officials with farmers of western Iowa here today. Death is to be by arsenic, and will be administered from a fleet of airplanes cruising over the breeding grounds of the pests along the Missouri river bottoms.

Faced with heavy losses from great fields of corn stripped to shreds as if by hailstorm, the farmers are hearkening to reports brought back today from South Dakota and Nebraska.

The Dakota and Nebraska grasshopper situation is reported beyond control, with sixty-three of ninety-two Nebraska counties seriously infested. Several counties in South Dakota will not have a bushel of grain or hay of any kind, and farmers are turning from prayer meetings to Gov. Green for help.

$50,000 Fund Available.

The Iowa officers were told today by State Agricultural Director Mark Thornburg and State Entomologist Carl Drake of lessons to be learned from methods attempted by western states, and of the appropriation Tuesday of a $50,000 fund by the state, left from former battles with the corn borer, to be used to help check the hoppers' inroads. Federal Entomologist Parker from Washington has been making futile attempts to control the Nebraska and Dakota hoppers for weeks.

The Iowa campaign plans, set in motion two days after they were approved by the attorney general in Des Moines, are said to be aimed at preventing the present crop of hoppers from reproducing into what would become a state-wide scourge next year. This morning barren alfalfa and corn fields were alive with the hoppers, all stomachs and with jaws all out of proportion to their size. Two counties, Weotone and Harlan, have been designated as the first line trenches of battle maneuvers.

Nests Will Be Attacked.

Under the direction of Assistant State Entomologists G. C. Becker and F. R. Paddock, great acreages of sand, into where the hoppers are beginning to bury their eggs will be flown over this week-end with airplanes loaded with a sweet bran mash in which Paris arsenic is the business agent. The flyers will drop about 10 pounds of poison to the acre.

It seems these droves of what in normal times might be hailed by school boys as ideal fish bait, sleep in windrows during the night. Between six and eight o'clock in the morning they attack a nearby cornfield en masse with empty stomachs, as many as two hundred hoppers to a hill of corn. Early morning is considered the time to apply the deadly poison.

Field Stripped of Grain.

An oat field near here, with ripened grain in shocks, was entirely denuded of grain yesterday, and when the farmer came out to thresh he found only the straw remaining.

Two orchards north of Missouri valley have been stripped of leaves by the vicious insects, which in the Egyptian days of Bible history were called locusts and made history as the chief of pests that caused the seven plagues.

The state plan is to provide poison for airplanes with which to treat all waste lands, highways and drainage ditches, where breeding would be done during August. Farmers will be provided poison to treat their own fields at cost by the state. County agents, highway commissioners and county highway supervisors were here today to get their instructions. An estimated fifty carloads of the poison will be shipped in at reduced rail rates and railroads are being importuned to grant their own rights of way.

Drought Damages Corn.

Almost as serious, and of wider concern today among the famers of Iowa, is a drought which has already hurt every cornfield in northwestern counties of the state. Estimates are that what was forecast as Iowa's record corn crop will be cut in half, at least, in the northwest and southwest sections of the state.

Dr. Raymond Hughes, president of Iowa State college, who was shown the riddled Nebraska and Dakota crops by airplane last Sunday, is said to have called back from vacation all specialists who might be pressed into service on the battlefront against grasshoppers.

STUDENT IS SHOT BY FATHER AS HE DEFENDS MOTHER

William Vondrasek Jr., 28 years old, a student for the priesthood at Notre Dame university, was shot and probably fatally wounded yesterday by his father in their home at 958 North Homan avenue.

The son had stepped in front of his mother when the father, enraged as a result of a family quarrel, opened fire on her with a pistol. The mother, Mrs. Ida Vondrasek, suffered a minor wound in the left leg. Her son was shot in the chest.

Police found the elder Vondrasek standing, apparently dazed, over his son, who lay on the kitchen floor. Neighbors said that Vondrasek and his wife had been quarreling for several days and he asserted that his wife had threatened to kill him.

JUDGE PROTECTS DOG RACES, BUT NOT GAMBLING

Also Refuses to Rule on Betting System.

Judge William V. Brothers in the Circuit court yesterday entered a temporary order restraining the state's attorney's office from interfering with dog racing at the Thornton Coursing club and the Sportsmen's Park club of Chicago Heights. At the same time Judge Brothers announced that the order did not restrain the state's attorney from arresting gamblers. The judge refused to pass on whether pari-mutuel betting was to be considered gambling.

JUDGE BROTHERS.

Former Judge Harry Olson and Attorney Leo Weil, representing the track owners, said they regarded the temporary injunction as a victory.

"The state's attorney is personally liable if he violates that order and raids the tracks," Attorney Olson declared. "Pari-mutuel betting on dog races cannot be classed as gambling any more than pari-mutuel betting on horse races."

State's Attorney Swanson said: "I have not looked over the bill yet, but it is my belief that if they open the tracks I will raid them."

Judge Brothers' temporary order is only effective until Judge Michael Feinberg returns to the bench in the Circuit court. The case was originally assigned to his jurisdiction.

According to Attorney Olson, the order of Judge Brothers binds the state's attorney's hands pending the ruling of the Illinois Supreme court on the legality of the pari-mutuel system of betting on horse racing. The petition for the temporary order stated that the law permitting pari-mutuel betting only on horse races is unconstitutional in that it does not afford equal opportunity to all businesses.

MACARONI ADS TO BE PLACED IN NEWSPAPERS

Macaroni manufacturers plan to shift their coöperative advertising campaign from magazines to newspapers in September, the beginning of the second year of the four year campaign in which the National Association of Macaroni Manufacturers plans to spend $1,500,000, it was announced yesterday.

The announcement was made by R. B. Brown, chairman of the association's committee of advertising trustees, before the executive committee of the body in the Palmer house.

The industry enjoyed a $55,000,000 business last year, Mr. Brown reported, in discussing the results of the first year of the campaign.

PHONE FRANCHISE PUT INTO EFFECT AS MAYOR SIGNS

Opinion by Sexton Holds Ordinance Legal.

lice Commissioner Alcock to stop the operation of all street carnivals in Chicago yesterday. The mayor has received hundreds of complaints from citizens and merchants regarding gambling devices at the carnivals and the raffling of merchandise in competition with neighborhood stores.

Calls Them Racketeers.

"Carnivals are operated by men not living in Chicago," Mr. Cermak said before the council meeting. "These racketeers offer some church or charitable organization a few hundred dollars for the privilege of operating under its name, and then take away thousands of dollars."

An ordinance prepared at his direction giving the city the power to license such carnivals was introduced in the council.

The council passed a resolution introduced by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], instructing the acting police commissioner to start enforcement at once of the ordinance prohibiting use of "I gotta drag" stars on automobiles in the streets of Chicago.

Ald. Hodes, who introduced the ordinance, passed May 6, complained that police have taken no measures to enforce it. Even some city officials, he asserted, are still using official stars on their cars contrary to the provisions of the ordinance.

Council Accepts Tract.

The council accepted from A. W. Harris the gift of the tract at 49th street and Dorchester avenue, long famous as the "Dunham cow pasture," to be used as a playground. Mr. Harris purchased the land recently when courts authorized trustees of the Dunham estate to sell it.

U. S. INVESTIGATING BOOST IN PRICE OF CIGARETS BY 4 FIRMS

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—A simultaneous advance in the prices of popular cigaret brands has precipitated an investigation by the anti-trust division of the justice department to determine if price fixing in restraint of trade is involved.

Although formal announcement was withheld, it was disclosed in high official sources late today that the inquiry had been in progress for several days.

It could not be determined at this time, officials said, whether action would be taken.

Four of the world's largest tobacco firms are involved in the investigation. They are the American Tobacco company, the P. Lorillard company, Liggett & Myers, and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company.

SOLDIERS UNDER FIRE; MISTAKEN FOR KIDNAPERS

Lieut. Earl C. Mertes, First Sergeant Herman Kellar, and five privates of Company I, 131st infantry, Illinois National Guard, started out last night on an errand of rounding up A. W. O. L.'s."

Their outfit is leaving today for Camp Grant for summer training, and orders were issued to report with full strength. The roundup squad, in civilian clothes, stopped in front of 1015 North Wood street, the home of Thomas Knight, 18 years old, who had not reported for drill for two months.

They found him in front of the house, and without formality, yanked him into their car. A small boy standing nearby saw the incident. He ran into the house. A moment later a youth, afterwards identified as Ed Kedzior, 18, a cousin of Knight, appeared on the porch, revolver in hand. He aimed at the guardsmen's car, and opened fire. None of the bullets reached their mark.

"A. W. O. L." Knight was taken to the detective bureau and locked up. Police were notified of the shooting, and it was learned that young Kelzior mistook the soldiers for kidnapers. Knight will be taken to Camp Grant today.

MALONE DISOWNS POLITICAL DEALS AS HE OPENS RACE

Declares Campaign Will Be on Real Issues.

Opening his campaign from his own front porch in Park Ridge, last night, William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission, asserted that he will not deal with politicians in his race for the Republican nomination for governor.

"I have been asked from time to time," he said, "what politicians are going to support me in this campaign; and my answer has been, and is tonight that I will make no deal with any one.

Blames Politics for Deficit.

"Politicians are now doing the very thing they always do prior to a campaign—negotiating, dickering, closing deals to benefit only themselves without regard for the real issues and problems that so vitally affect the people in general.

"Politicians whose business is politics and who live on political spoils, have always followed this course; and in my opinion that is the chief reason why our treasuries are empty and the public debt piled mountain high."

The greater part of his speech was devoted to the tax situation. He charged that "everything wrong in the taxing situation in Chicago under the present revenue law" is due directly to the boards of assessors and review.

Group Pledged to Tour State.

As chairman of the "Malone committee of 1,000," Mayor William A. McKee of Park Ridge notified the candidate that at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the total of volunteers ready to tour the state by motor in his behalf had reached the 2,700 mark.

Among those present on the Malone lawn were Alexander Fyfe, Royal C. Allen, Sylvester J. Konenkamp, and August Knickels. Most of the crowd came from the northwestern suburbs.

BOMB DROPPED FROM THE AIR WRECKS HOME

Belleville, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—A bomb, apparently dropped from aircraft, tore a hole through the roof and second floor and partly wrecked a first floor bedroom of the home of J. C. Weil, farmer living near Scott field, Ill., army air post, early today.

Mrs. Baetha Weil, the farmer's wife, was in the basement at the time and was uninjured. A 15 year old son and his cousin had been sleeping in the bedroom a short time before.

The house is about 1,000 feet from a tract on Scott field where blimps practice bombing. Weil said officers from the field had photographs made of the damage done.

Col. John A. Paeglow, commanding officer at Scott field, said he was informed the bomb accidentally fell from a blimp cruising in the vicinity.

EXPERT WOMAN DRIVER FINED FOR RECKLESSNESS

A woman honor graduate of Evanston's school for automobile drivers and a former assistant corporation counsel were fined yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry H. Porter of Evanston, the first for reckless driving and the second for speeding. Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, 55 years old, 700 Forest avenue, Evanston, who recently passed with a high average the theory course in automobile driving, was fined $10. She was arrested July 17 after her car had collided with one driven by Edward Vick, 2709 Canton avenue. She admitted that she had tried to beat Vick across the intersection at Dodge avenue and Greenleaf street. Attorney Paul O'Donnell, who at one time was assistant corporation counsel, drew a $10 fine with costs. He said he was "only playing" when on July 22 he swerved his automobile and almost knocked Policeman Edgar Fellows off his motorcycle. O'Donnell apologized to the policeman and the charges of assault with a deadly weapon and resisting arrest were dismissed.

THREE WOMEN, ONE WITH GUN, ROB DRESS SHOP

Dowager of 50 Leads Two in Holdup Raid.

Three women, well dressed and with carefully modulated voices, entered the St. Clair dress shop at 164 East Ohio street yesterday afternoon. One was of the dowager type, about 50 years old. The second was a bright blond of generous proportions, about 30 years old, and the third was a four foot high brunette, possibly 22 years old.

"Really," said the dowager, "my dears, there seem to be some things here that might be satisfactory."

Clerk Hastens to Please.

There was a hint of Oxford, or at least of Boston in her accent, and Miss Dorothy Mack, the clerk, hastened to do her best. She displayed dresses for the elderly one, for the big blonde, and for the sprightly brunette.

"Perhaps," said the large blonde, "we should look a little farther before we decide."

Her voice had a rich, throaty tone.

Big Blond Draws Gun.

By this time the three customers and Miss Mack were all near a door leading to the basement. All of a sudden the gentility dropped from the big blond. Out came a pistol from her purse, a blue steel revolver with a black handle. It was pointed right at Miss Mack. And when the gunwoman spoke her voice was still rich and throaty, but her grammar slipped just a little.

Pushed Down Stairs.

Miss Mack was a little slow. So, while the dowager opened the door, the biggest one of the three musketeeretes gave her a shove and she went down face first.

From the basement Miss Mack hastened out a rear entrance and into the St. Clair hotel. But when she and the excited hotel employes got back to the store the three women were gone and so was a $1,500 mink coat belonging to the owner of the store, Miss Frances Hegeman. Miss Mack's purse, containing $27, also was missing.

Raiders Arrest 5 Men as Fake Prohibition Agents

Five men and a quantity of fictitious federal warrants and badges were seized in a raid by police and federal agents yesterday at 4149 School street. At the Warren avenue police station several victims of shakedowns identified the men as having represented themselves as prohibition agents. Those under arrest are: Michael G. Kalameyer, 33 years old; his brother, Frank, of the School street address; Patrick J. Connelley, 35 years old, 4750 North Whipple street; Charles J. Carney, 52, 3838 Broadway, and Joseph Dorsch of Kansas City, Mo.

Naval Flyer Is Killed When Bomber Breaks Up

San Diego, Cal., July 30.—(AP)—Naval Lieut. T. G. Fisher, commanding officer of VF-6 squadron, was killed today when the plane he was flying broke up during a power dive in bombing exercises on the U. S. S. Stoddert. The accident happened southeast of San Clemente island, naval officials said. The body was not recovered.

CAPTURE TWO JOLIET ROBBERS.

Two robbers who held up Louis Knyart of Joliet, only a few feet away from the Joliet police station early yesterday were pursued by the police and captured. They are Nicholas Kline, 21 years old, of Lockport, and John Sullivan, 19 years old, of Joliet.

SNOWDEN WARNS BRITAIN BUDGET OUTLOOK SERIOUS

Tells Commons Economy Only Hope for Safety.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 30.—A serious pronouncement on the condition of Great Britain's national finances and a grave warning of the need of national economy was made by Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden in the house of commons tonight. The chancellor admitted that his hopes for a substantial improvement in trade had not been realized.

"I frankly tell the house that the outlook for the next budget, unless very considerable economies can be effected, is a very serious prospect, indeed," he said, "and it is a prospect which the government and the house of commons will have to face."

Declaring that it is necessary that the people be told the truth, Snowden said: "We have private company directors being prosecuted because they have not given sufficient information to shareholders. I ask if it isn't equally important that the people of the country should have sufficient information to enable them to judge the true position of the national finances, in order that they may see where they stand."

Asks Help of Parties.

An appeal to opposition parties for cooperation was made by the chancellor, who referred to a report of the government economy committee which will be published tomorrow.

"The responsibility for carrying out any recommendations must be shared by the house of commons as a whole," he said, indicating that the government could not carry on drastic reductions in expenditures on its own responsibility, thus reviving recent talk of the formation of a coalition government to tide over the financial crisis.

Every possible effort to balance next year's budget will be made, but, Snowden warned, "it may involve rather disagreeable consequences to certain classes and certain people, but the necessity is so great and so urgent that it will have to be done."

Snowden declared he had prepared a scheme for huge conversion of the war loan.

Despite his impressive warning, the chancellor declared the position of London as a financial center was fundamentally sound. He said it "still remains the best money market for the foreign investor."

"Freezing Commission" Quits.

BERLIN, July 30.—(AP)—The "freezing commission," which was expected to formulate a plan for stopping the withdrawal of credit from Germany, ended its labors tonight and foreign delegates left to return home.

The cabinet has been working in almost uninterrupted sessions to plan a way out of the nation's economic difficulties and it was said today that Chancellor Bruening might make public a comprehensive plan of action by the end of this week.

The Berlinger Tageblatt said tonight a full agreement had been reached with British banks and an argument "on essentials" with Americans. It also said a plan had been drafted to be submitted by banks of issue to other foreign banks for approval.

The reichsrat today approved the coining of $25,000,000 worth of five-mark silver pieces.

Art Dealers Offer Loan.

PARIS, July 30.—(AP)—The Havas agency said tonight that the principal art and antique dealers of Paris are forming a syndicate to offer a loan of $40,000,000 to Germany on advantageous terms. The loan would be secured by the works of the masters in the galleries of Berlin, Munich, Dresden, Cologne, and other places.

It was said the plan called for exhibiting the pictures in France, while they were being held as collateral and charging admission fees.

"Lost" Girl Found

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A small girl who, upon being found wandering on the Glencoe beach said she was "a poor waif," was found yesterday to be Virginia Barrett, 10 years old, the foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barrett of 716 Clark street Evanston. She had enjoyed a day of great mystery until the Barretts, hearing of "the waif" decided to have a look at her after reading of her in the newspapers.

30 PICNICKERS ARE POISONED BY PARK FOOD

Reading, Pa., July 30.—(AP)—More than thirty persons were stricken with ptomaine poisoning today while on an outing in Carsonia park here. Eleven were in hospitals, two of them in a serious condition.

Picnickers collapsed on amusement devices, along the Midway and in various sections of the park. The first aid station at the park was overtaxed and some of the victims were hurried away in ambulances.

The source of the poisoning was believed to have been potato salad eaten at a restaurant. The manager of the place said 600 persons had been served during the day but he did not know just how many had eaten of the salad.

The outing was that of the Lancaster Automobile club.

END CLOTHIERS' STRIKE; WALKER ASSAILS RACKET

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—The New York Clothing Manufacturers' exchange and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union signed a new agreement today at the city hall, with Mayor Walker as mediator. Thus ended the three day strike in the clothing industry, involving 20,000 men and women.

"You have done a big thing socially and you have taken the first step in cooperating with the police, who could do little toward breaking up the gangs preying on your industry without your assistance," declared the mayor.

The depredations of the guerrillas had been the basis for most of the union protest against the employers.

Seized After Holdup, He Confesses Two Others

John Nelson, 20 years old, of Miami, Okla., started robbing in Chicago on Monday. Carrying a toy pistol, he entered the Fannie May candy store at La Salle and Lake streets and took $10. On Wednesday he held up the Martha Washington candy store at Madison street and Crawford avenue and got $14. Yesterday he tried to rob another Martha Washington store at 130 West Monroe street. The manager, Mrs. Kathleen Whiteaker, screamed and Nelson fled. A clerk, Miss Mary Searle, followed him to the street and called to Sergt. Eugene O'Connor of the detective bureau, who arrested Nelson. The prisoner confessed the earlier stickups.

CAPTIVE TRIES TO END LIFE; SEE MURDER SOLVED

CRIMINAL COURT.

Joseph Hessing, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Philip Finnegan.

John Fitzpatrick, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Gradual breakdown of the silence of three youthful prisoners suspected of several beer war murders was reported yesterday by Chief of Detectives Norton after one of the youths attempted suicide. In addition, Norton said, several other arrests had been made and a gunmen's hideout on a farm near 187th street and Wolf road had been found. The chief also was certain that he had solved the murder of James Janis on June 18, which was supposed to have resulted from a beer war.

WILLIAM ARCHER.

The three important prisoners are Michael Mattola, 20 years old; William Archer, 21, and Roy Anderson, 19. It was Archer who yesterday afternoon was stopped from killing himself in his cell at the detective bureau after he had torn the handle off a tin cup and tried to sever the artery in his left wrist.

The three young men were captured in the basement of Mattola's home. Two machine guns, two shotguns, and many rounds of ammunition were found there.

"There may be other murders charged to these three later," said Chief Norton last night, "but I am certain we will be able to prove the Janis murder against them."

COPS INTERFERE WITH HONEYMOON ON NORTH SHORE

By way of social note it may be set down that Albert Meier, 26 years old, 2103 Washington avenue, Wilmette, a refrigeration engineer, and his bride, the former Dorothy Brunke of Niles Center, resumed their honeymoon last night.

The couple were married yesterday by Justice of the Peace Henry Wallenwein at Waukegan. With their witnesses, Miss Alva Campbell of Sparland, Ill., and Peter Gross, 311 Ridge road, Kenilworth, they started southward. Meier was at the wheel.

In Willow road, Winnetka, they saw approaching the automobile of Albert C. Landgraf, 6237 North Maplewood avenue. Landgraf saw them also and discreetly veered his car's two wheels off the road. But the wedding car hit his. Miss Campbell and Gross, suffering from rib fractures, were taken to the Evanston hospital.

Meier was taken from his bride and to the lockup in the Winnetka station, where he was charged with driving while intoxicated. He was held for several hours until bond of $1,000 was furnished. Meier dashed to Niles Center where he found his bride at her parents' home. Another disruption in their honeymoon will occur today when he is scheduled to appear in court in Winnetka.

KING BORIS SAVES LIVES OF SIX IN BLACK SEA GALE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 30.—(AP)—A dispatch from Varna said that King Boris of Bulgaria, at a great personal risk, today saved the lives of six persons who were threatened with drowning in the Black sea.

The king, the dispatch said, saw the people from the window of his palace at Euxinograd, near Varna, as they battled a stormy sea in a small boat.

Boy Patient Kept Alive in Hospital Respirator

Fighting against death, Edward Gall, 13 years old, of 1520 North Wells street, was kept alive last night in the artificial respirator at St. Francis hospital, Evanston. His condition is critical, Dr. Robert A. Coombs said. The boy was stricken with infantile paralysis July 13 and taken to the Grant hospital. On the recommendation of Dr. Coombs he was removed to St. Francis hospital three days later and placed in the lung machine. Another victim of the same disease, George Durgan, 10 years old, of 513 Main street, Evanston, is at the Evanston hospital. There has been no necessity thus far of artificial respiration in his case.

ARMY ATTACHE ARRESTED FOR FRAUD.

Canton, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—Dorwin C. Morin, attached to the United States army service at Rantoul, Ill., was arrested today on a charge of operating a confidence game in connection with the sale of a piece of real estate.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. ©1931, Carter Medicine Company.

Old Style Candy Pull Makes the Family Stick Together

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Aunt Jenny says that what folks need these days isn't so much a Wickersham commission, or a good five cent cigar, or a debt moratorium, but a few old fashioned "candy pulls." She made taffy at our house last night. We pulled it. And ate it. And agreed.

About this time every summer Aunt Jenny comes in from the country to pay us a visit. There isn't anybody we would rather see. Not even Santa Claus. Not so many years ago we used to believe that between the two there was a close relationship. At that maybe we weren't so far wrong.

Baby Jane of the cherub face and Betty and Billy, the tow headed 8 year old twins from an apartment across the street, and Bobby, who is freckled and 10 and lives next door, turned pirate last night. When Aunt Jenny looked from the window with many a lusty "Heave ho!" they were digging up buried treasure out of the creeping bent lawn that Bobby's dad has been nursing carefully all summer. They were lured away with a promise of candy making.

The Crowd Gathers.

Billy is the young man in our neighborhood who gives promise of developing into a champion broadcaster. His enthusiastic comments upon what was about to transpire resounded for a block or two up and down the street. The chemistry professor from the flat above us casually dropped in to smoke a friendly pipe with Uncle Jim. The little stenographer from one of the kitchenette apartments on the corner ran in to borrow a cup of sugar. The radio singer bethought him of a new song we might be interested in. With this one and that one we were a large family gathered together in the kitchen.

Aunt Jenny enjoys conversation while she is cooking. She injects her sage counsels into a discussion with little emphatic shakes of the long handled mixing spoon and clinches her arguments with irrefutable quotations from the scriptures or her favorite "Standard American Authors." Beaming pleasantly, with a blue checked apron tied about her, she presided over the boiling kettle of corn sirup and sugar.

The Taffy Emerges.

At the right moment, when a bit poured from the tip of the mixing spoon congealed into a soft mass in a glass of cold water, onto a huge buttered platter descended a pale golden torrent. By the time all the hands had been washed, from Jane's grubby little paws to the professor's long, aristocratic fingers, the taffy had cooled and ready for pulling.

There is something in the spirit of people pulling taffy together. If you are skeptical you should try it out for yourself.

Betty spun her piece into a long slender cable that she wound around and around into a nest with three small spheres for eggs. The stenographer fashioned hers into a heart with a dart piercing the center, and the radio singer made a bow and another arrow. Bobby twisted his into baseball bats. I don't know why, but Uncle Jimmy rolled his into golf balls.

Nine Pullman coaches filled with 200 farmers from Pennsylvania rolled out of the Chicago union station yesterday afternoon for a 9,000 mile vacation tour of the west.

They are spending more than $80,000 for the tour, which was arranged by the Pennsylvania Farmer, an agricultural publication, with the Northern Pacific railroad. M. M. Goodsill, general passenger agent for the railroad company, called the trip a good illustration of what is taking place in many parts of the country.

"The farmers are the ones who have the money to travel and the optimism to spend it. They feel better than they have for nearly two years," said Mr. Goodsill. "A few more evidences of this sort and optimism will be back, sure enough."

LEAKING BOILER BARES STEAMED OYSTER'S SECRET

Delicate Flavor Is First Learned by Accident.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—If we were given to puns, we'd have a lot of fun with valve and bivalve when we told you the story, as we presently shall, of the leaky valve that caused the first steamed oyster.

But since we're merely a conscientious cook diligently seeking food facts for you we'll make it a straight away yarn.

Back in 1858 the Harvey brothers, George and Thomas, opened the first oyster house in Washington; opened at what had been a blacksmith shop, opposite the fashionable Carusi theater. Business boomed. The old sloop that previously had, once a fortnight, sleepily supplied Washington's oyster needs, traveled fast and frequently now. Three hundred men opened oysters daily for the Harveys. In the center of the enlarged quarters, other men boiled oysters in a huge iron caldron.

And when the civil war came many a soldier went A. W. O. L. to go on an oyster orgy.

Here's the Story.

Now for the genesis of the steamed oyster.

One morning Old Man Harvey [that is what they called the genial George] went down in the basement to find that a leaky valve in the boiler had let enough steam escape to make the place a turkish bath. And there, half hidden by the vapor, were barrels and barrels of oysters. Ruined, of course, he assumed.

But he picked one up, tasted it. Smacked his lips. Tasted another. Why, the oysters were cooked, and how they were cooked! What a flavor!

Then he ran upstairs and announced that hereafter they'd serve steamed oysters at the oyster bar. There was no restaurant then.

The town went crazy about the new dish. Mrs. Seward, wife of the secretary of state, asked Harvey if he wouldn't fix up an impromptu dining room so she could have a dinner for the President and Mrs. Lincoln. He did, with flags and bunting and steamed oysters.

Leads to Restaurant.

After that he had to open a restaurant, and in 1866 he went into the building still occupied by Harvey's. It is to be torn down to make way for government buildings, but next month the restaurant, the old waiter who served celebrities, the old time pictures, the guest book, and the Lulley brothers, Julius and Charles, who worked under Old Man Harvey and who now run the business, are moving into new quarters.

"And how do y u steam oysters?" we asked Julius Lulley, in order that we might tell you.

"Well, here we steam them with live steam."

"What's that?" we asked, for we'd never heard of "live steam."

"Steam that is being made, right out of a boiler," he explained.

Tips for the Cook.

"We do them in large iron jars; steam them for from five to seven minutes. When the shells open we put them in wire baskets and let the liquor run off. There's a mistake many chefs make. They think that because you retain all the juice in steamed clams you ought to do the same with oysters. That's all wrong. The natural excretion of juice from the oyster, if it's been properly steamed, is all that is necessary."

Another mistake, he pointed, is getting up steam and then putting a lot of ice cold oysters into the jar and expecting the steam to keep up its temperature.

Then we wanted to know how you and I could steam oysters, not by the sloopload, but just a few in our own kitchen.

The best way, advises Mr. Lulley, is to put them in a very hot pan, with just as little water as possible. Here again, remember about not putting them in ice cold and expecting the steam to do its full work. Have the top of the stove hot, red hot. Cover the pan and let the steam do its work. It may take ten minutes, perhaps more, at home. They will have been opened by the steam.

And the famous sauce? Well, that's a specialty of the house and there are no carbon copies of the recipe. But unofficially this would not be far wrong. Take half a pound of light salt butter, one half a lemon, one tablespoonful of L. & P. sauce, a dash of red pepper and mix thoroughly. Serve on a very hot plate.

Of course there is something else that the old timers had with their peck of "rough and ready oysters"—which was the menu name for the steamed oysters and that was a "mug of musty on the side."

Grant used to come there almost every day for lunch—a peck of rough and ready, a mug of musty and one of his famous big black cigars.

Others, too, have come through the years. Diamond Jim Brady came there often. Nicholas Longworth's tribute is preserved in the guest book. Ralph Waldo Emerson thought so much of it that he mentions it in his essays.

And if you're going in for this sea food menu, remember Julius Lulley's warning. The heavy desserts are an insult to a shore dinner. Raspberry water-ice is the best top-off.

Household Hints

Six or eight cups of jelly is a good amount to cook at one time. The capacity of the preserving kettle should be much larger than the amount of juice to be cooked, so that it will not boil over.

GLACED FOODS ARE CHEAP WHEN MADE AT HOME

Here Is Recipe for Best Crystallized Fruit.

Glaced or crystallized fruits of high quality are expensive when one must buy them. The only way, then, for many of us to be able to indulge is to make our own. The cost of preparation is small. Sugar, fruit, and water are the only ingredients, and the technique of preparation is so easy that an amateur can turn out a delicious product. It takes time, of course, to glace fruit correctly. The process which gives the most satisfactory results is spread over several days.

The principle of osmosis makes the glacing of fruits possible. A heavy sugar sirup is prepared and the fruit is dipped in it. The osmotic pressure causes the concentrated sugar solution to move into the fruit tissues, which have a less concentrated sugar solution. This action goes on to the point where the concentration of the sugar in the fruit is equal to that in the sirup. Of course this pressure or movement of the sugar sirup into the fruit is prolonged, because the boiling evaporates the water, keeping the concentration of the sirup quite high.

In successful glacing the fruit should lose a little of its natural color and become almost transparent. The flavor should be that of a natural fruit, plus sweetness. One of the most beautiful and useful of glaced fruit is pineapple, and right now is a good time to glace it.

Here Is Good Method.

A satisfactory home method for glacing is as follows: Cut the pineapple into ¾ inch slices. Remove core from the center, then the peeling, being sure to remove any of the deep seated, brownish eyes. Cut each slice of the fruit so that it is uniform in thickness and round in shape. Put into a preserving kettle, preferably of enamel or aluminum, four cups of fine granulated sugar and 1½ cups of water. This makes sufficient sirup for one pineapple. Wipe down any crystals from the side of the pan and stir until the sugar is partly dissolved. Boil sugar until it reaches a temperature of about 233 degrees F. This will take about 8 minutes of boiling at a moderate heat. It is best to use a thermometer for this work.

While the sirup is cooking, wipe the pieces of pineapple perfectly dry on a towel and place them on a platter near the kettle of boiling sirup. When sirup has cooked to the right stage, lay fruit in the boiling sirup one piece at a time. Never pour fruit into the sirup and never put the individual slices in so rapidly that the sirup stops boiling at any time. Wait a few seconds after the first piece is in before putting in another. This enables the sirup to boil up well over the fruit. Boil each piece of fruit rapidly for one minute, then remove the pieces in the order they were placed in the kettle. Never use a fork for lifting out the slices or for testing them. A slotted spoon or a wire egg whip is much better for skimming out the pieces.

Keep Free of Crystals.

When sirup drains off, place fruit on a heavy waxed paper and put in a cool place. The next day repeat the process of putting the fruit into the hot sirup [use the same sirup as was used the preceding day] and heat it to the same temperature. If sugar crystals collect on the side, wipe them down. It is important that the sirup be free from sugar crystals each day before the fruit is put in the pan. Allow each piece to boil for one minute and remove as before.

It takes about eight days for the fruit to absorb enough sugar. That is why it is not allowed to cook for a continuous length of time. When the glacing process has been finished, line a broad, shallow jar with waxed paper and lay the fruit in, piece by piece, not allowing them to touch each other. Put waxed paper between the layers. All other fruits may be treated similarly.

To hasten the process of glacing and to decrease the discoloring effect of too much boiling, the fruit may be put in the sun each day following the one minute of cooking. The sun does not discolor, but it does keep up the evaporation of water from the fruit tissues, and it decreases the process by at least three or four days. When drying in the sun be sure to protect the fruit by putting it in a place where it will not come in contact with dust or insects.

WATERMELONS MAKE UP INTO TASTY TIDBITS

Delicious as Pickle or Preserved.

BY MARY MEADE.

Mrs. J. K. asks, "Aren't watermelon pickles and watermelon preserves the same thing? If there is a difference, will you give full directions for making each."

The terms "watermelon pickles" and "watermelon preserves" are often used interchangeably, but they are two distinct products and are used in two distinct places on the menu. The pickle is used as an appetizer on the dish with all other kinds of relishes, while the preserve is a confection and is used like any preserve, jam or marmalade.

The preparation of the watermelon rind for both the preserve and the pickle are similar. The outer green skin is first peeled from the rind, then the rind is cut into strips. All the pink flesh may be removed or a thin layer of it may be left on to give color. The rind is next cut into strips, then into dice or fancy shapes.

Preparation Differs.

From this point on the preparation of the pickles and the preserves differs. For pickles the rind is either soaked or boiled in salt water. Soaking requires at least 12 hours, while boiling in salt water until tender requires only 20 to 30 minutes. In either soaking or boiling the rind is thoroughly drained of all salt water.

Then a sugar and vinegar sirup is prepared and the watermelon rind is boiled in this for 15 or 20 minutes. A common and popular flavoring for these pickles is stick cinnamon and whole cloves, which are put into the sirup and cooked with the pickle. The tender, almost transparent pieces of pickle are then filled into jars and the sirup is concentrated and poured over the fruit.

Favorite Flavoring.

In making preserves the peeled cut rind is either cooked in salt water or soaked in salt water. Then it is cooked until clear in a simple sugar and water sirup flavored to suit the taste. A favorite flavoring for these preserves is lemon and ginger root. The latter is the common variety of ginger root which may be obtained in all drug stores or groceries. The rind is put into the sirup and cooked until transparent.

Some cooks prefer to have a tough preserve rather than a tender one and this quality can be obtained by soaking the peeled, diced rind in salt water for two days, then soaking out the salt, and adding just enough alum to give a crisp quality. Then drain and boil in the same sugar solution which we have described above. We have found the following recipes excellent.

WATERMELON PRESERVES.

6 cups water
2 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon powdered crystal alum
Clear water
6 cups sugar
2 cups water
4 pieces ginger root [2x1x½ inches]
3 lemons sliced thinly

A watermelon with a thick rind is most desirable. Leave a thin layer of the pink on but trim evenly. Cut into strips about 1½ inches wide and then cut into dice, diamonds, or triangles. Or the entire rind of the watermelon may have the green rind peeled off and then be cut into fancy shapes with the fancy cutters like stars, round, halfmoons, spades, clubs, etc.

Make a solution of the water and salt and cover the rinds. Let stand two days to go through a mild pickling process. Drain off the salt water and change to clear water several times to remove the salt, and then add clear water to cover and 1 teaspoon alum. Let stand 2 hours or until rind becomes crisp. Drain off the water and dry rind between folds of towels. Then drop into the following sirup:

Dissolve the sugar in the water, add the ginger and the lemon and boil in a three quart kettle for ten minutes, then add the melon rind. Cook at a moderate rate of speed until the watermelon is transparent. After 20 minutes of cooking remove the lemon and ginger. The entire cooking requires approximately 50 to 60 minutes. Lift the melon carefully into sterile pint jars and then fill up with the thick sirup. Seal as any other canned fruit and label.

My preference is pint jars for the ordinary sized family. When presented in reasonable quantities to the family the confection can be consumed while it is still new and intriguing and the reaction is to want more rather than less of this delicious preserve.

Yield: 2 pints.

WATERMELON RIND PRESERVES.

Rind of 1 watermelon
¼ cup salt
1 pt. cider vinegar
1 stick cinnamon, broken up
3½ lbs. sugar
1 tablespoon whole cloves

Pare the rind, remove the red meat and cut into strips, then into squares. Add enough water to the squares to cover, then add salt and boil until tender. This will require 25 to 30 minutes. Let drain over night. The next morning boil the sugar and vinegar for 5 minutes. Add cinnamon and cloves, and then the rind and boil about 15 minutes or until the watermelon is clear. Remove the rind to jars with a perforated spoon. Boil the sirup down and pour into jars. Cover air tight and keep in a cool place.

ORANGE JELLY CAKE.

½ cup fat [half butter and half hydrogenated fat]
1 2-3 cups fine granulated sugar
2 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon pistachio flavoring
½ teaspoon vanilla flavoring
½ cup egg whites [4 large eggs]

Cream the fat until smooth and plastic. Add the sugar in four or five portions, creaming well after each addition. Sift the flour before measuring, then resift twice with baking powder and salt. Add the flour in four or five portions alternately with milk to the creamed mixture, beginning and ending with the flour. Beat one minute after flour is all in. With this amount of beating the batter should be smooth. Add the flavoring. Beat egg whites quickly until stiff, but not until they lose their shininess. Turn into batter and carefully fold in whites until they have almost disappeared. Then add four or five extra vigorous sirts to distribute the whites evenly. Pour the batter quickly into two round nine inch cake tins—bottoms lined with paraffin paper and sides rubbed with butter. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] to a delicate brown and until cake loosens from sides of pan. Turn on to cake cooler and when cold spread with orange jelly. Spread the top also with orange jelly. When ready to serve garnish the top and sides in lattice fashion with whipped cream. Some ground pecan meats may be sprinkled against the sides to add a beautiful touch and a pleasing flavor.

Yield: 10 to 12 large servings.

FREEDOM OF PRESS COMMITTEE' FORMED BY EDITORS OF U. S.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Prominent newspaper men headed by Claude G. Bowers, who represented several hundred editors, met on board the liner Ile de France tonight under the direction of the Jefferson Memorial foundation and formed a "freedom of the press committee."

This group will devote itself to the protection of a free press as defended by Thomas Jefferson.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was chosen honorary chairman, because of the fight led by his paper against the Minnesota "gag law," held unconstitutional recently by the United States Supreme court.

Marlen Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, and Frank Parker Stockbridge, editor of the American Press, were named vice presidents.

Mr. McCormick called by long distance telephone and expressed his sympathy with the aims of the committee.

Everything Else Is Only Trimming.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Those of you who are city-born and city-bred can't know what you have missed if you never got in on a real, first class county fair—a place to which the thousands flock from all around the countryside. A mile east of Carrolltown, Ill., is the Greene county fair grounds, seat of one of the oldest county fairs in Illinois. It was there that I received my education in fairs and first learned what they mean in the realm of food.

This fair usually is held in the first week of October, so I missed it during my years away at college; and vacation's two weeks never fall at that time. As a result, I have not been on hand for seven years. Therefore, my appetite is all whetted up because the fair is being held the third week of August this year and I'll be home then.

It All Depends.

It may be asked, "Why is a county fair, anyway?"

Some of the men will tell you, with tongue in cheek, that it is for the afternoon racing program. Others, farming minded, will say for the stock and machinery exhibits. The feminine voice will be raised to mention the fancy work—also the home baked goods and jars of jams, jellies, and preserves all set to be decorated with blue ribbons.

And there we begin to get an answer. That's why the men had their tongues in their cheek. They know that the real object of the county fair is to show everything produced—grown—within the county. All of those things which have given rise through the years to that term, "the festive board."

Food Angle Persists.

Just what would a fair be without food? Not much. Ask any grade schoolboy why he will be out at the fair grounds every day of the fair. To him, that row of makeshift stands slung together out of old scraps of lumber, is as Mecca to the Mohammedan. Many are the hours I've spent wandering up and down figuring out which place had the best pink lemonade, which gave the biggest "hamburger with," which one sold that mowy, fluff confection, where there was something new to eat.

As one grows a little older his horizon changes somewhat, but the food angle always occupies a spot in the foreground. I have graduated a bit, but I can scarcely wait to make numerous strolls strough the old home arts structure. There won't be the usual pumpkins and incomparable Hubbard squashes this year; the season for them won't be here for another six weeks or so. But just about everything else will be displayed to appeal to man's ever sensitive palate. The male will pick out special dishes he will "order" from wife or mother for months to come. The woman will pick up new wrinkles, have new dishes suggested to her by the exhibits. The fair means a new era each year in things for the table. And, why shouldn't it?

There, spread out in plain sight, on the hoof and in the raw, are the multitude of products which mean food, a full stomach, and the proper outlook on life. The crook-necked squash, associated with pies what are pies. Pop corn, suggesting what to do with dull evenings or Sunday afternoons in winter. That incomparable, though socially ostracized king, the onion. Carrots, full, long, and tempting. Beets of a nearly royal purple. Cauliflower. Cabbages swollen to watermelon proportions. Melons of all sorts, too. (I have a special penchant for honey dew melons.) Turnips. Potatoes—both Irish and sweet—curious big fellows.

Speaking of pop corn reminds of the regular contest for the tallest stalk of corn on exhibit. Now that is a sight! To see the countenance of a farmer who is right proud of his 13 footer, when some upstart comes trooping in with a stalk 22 feet long. I remember one year the prize winner was just a few inches under 24 feet. Residents of the state "where the tall corn grows" please note. (Yes, I know the first liar hasn't a chance, but this is true.)

Apples—ready to be made into sauce or the good old reliable pie. And plums that look too good to be true. See that bunch of youngsters over there? Just waiting for some one to turn his back so they can swipe a few grapes from the tempting, big bunches. I know; I've been there.

And the Church Dinner.

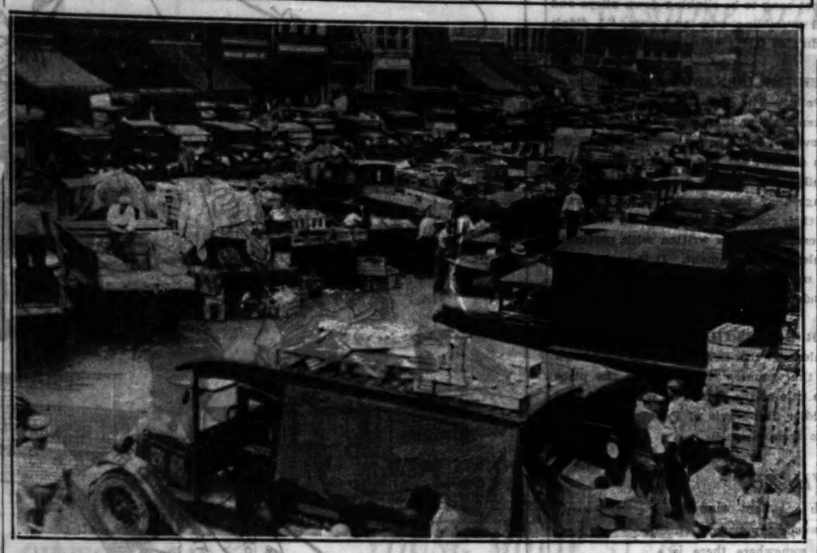
Then, just a bit to one side, we find the finished products—specialties of proud cooks for miles around. Every one of the pies, cakes, and jars of home canned stuff is worthy of a prize. And how flustered is that one wonderful cook who didn't win a prize because the judges found her nuthread haun't got baked clear through in the rusn and excitement of getting the loaf to the fair in time! You can pick up a lot of pointers on what's fit tor kings around here. Masculine shortness of memory and inadequacy of expression prevent further elaboration.

One other phase of the food situation at the county fair must not be overlooked. The dinner served by several of the local churches under time honored, patched tents. It is one of those things which defies accurate and fair description. This is a case where the table actually does groan and sag under its weight of edibles—it usually being of light boards spread across carpenters' saw horses set too far apart. Nor are the hard, folding chairs a bar to enjoying yourself. Food is food, and there is no way to escape the fact. Well meaning, large hearted women keep shoving things at you so fast that you have to keep a sharp eye out to see that your plate doesn't start running over the sides.

You'll probably have at least three kinds of meats to choose from—and no doubt will choose all three. The same goes for about four kinds of vegetable and fruit salads. The story you will tell afterwards is that you took them all because you didn't want to hurt the feelings of any of those who prepared the delicacies. The kind of mashed potatoes you read about—huge dishes of them. Probably some homemade bread—and some of the jam you've been looking at in the exhibits and longing for all the time. Any vegetable you think of. And one thing you can count on is homemade, flaky crust pie to finish off with.

Now you have the proper background for finding yourself a seat in the grand stand to enjoy the trots.

FARMERS MARKET FRESH PRODUCE



Randolph street market at an early morning hour. Farmers bring their produce here, making it possible for the city dweller to purchase fresh vegetables and fruits. Hucksters have been infringing on the rights of the farmer at the market. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Cermak Proposes Aid

On the complaint that so-called scalpers were usurping places on the Randolph street market intended for farmers, Mayor Cermak yesterday suggested an amendment to the city markets ordinance which would fix an annual fee for stalls rather than the present system of a daily fee.

The complaint was made to the mayor by August Gewecks, president of the Cook County Truck Gardners' association, who said that owners of trucks purchased loads of fruits and vegetables from farmers and from other wholesale markets and then remained on the market to retail the food to the public.

Mayor Cermak said: "I feel the producers should be protected and that the only way to protect them is by licensing, no person to get a license unless he receives the approval of the truck gardeners' organiation. I tried to do the same thing when I was an alderman, but did not succeed. The license fee should be graduated, but should not be more than $25 a year."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

FOUR MILLION A MONTH TO DEPRESS THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

Board of Trade analysts find that it is costing the taxpayers of the United States $4,000,000 a month just to carry the wheat bought by the farm board's agencies. That is at a rate of well over $100,000 a day merely for such items as storage and insurance. In addition, of course, the taxpayers have dropped something like $100,000,000 in the decline of wheat prices. Some of the wheat which the government owns cost as much as $1.23 a bushel. September wheat sold in Chicago the other day at a fraction over 50 cents.

Whether they knew it or not, and whether they liked it or not, the taxpayers of the United States have engaged in a colossal wheat speculation and they are still in the market. The grain trade estimates from the storage space now controlled by government agencies that the farm board has picked up in all and is holding no fewer than 235,000,000 bushels.

The chairman of the farm board has said he will sell 60,000,000 bushels this year in addition to other sales which may be made as the result of private negotiations with foreign consumers and perhaps with foreign governments. That will mean some relief for the taxpayers, but not much. If it costs the taxpayers $4,000,000 a month, or approximately $50,000,000 a year, to carry 235,000,000 bushels, it will cost between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 to carry all but 60,000,000 bushels. And meanwhile the remainder will hang over the market and depress it almost as much as the government holdings do at present.

But even that slight relief for the taxpayers is resented by the politicians representing the wheat farmers. They insist that the treasury continue to pour out $4,000,000 a month until the price of wheat again approximates 75 cents or a dollar a bushel. They overlook the plain fact that as long as the government's wheat exists as wheat the possibilities of a marked recovery in prices are limited.

It is becoming increasingly clear that the free movement of prices on the Board of Trade, far from being a menace to the farmer's welfare, as the politicians have often said, is, in reality, his salvation. The government's interference prevented wheat from reaching the level last year at which it would have moved into consumption. The result is that last year's surplus is piled upon this year's prospective surplus with the inevitable consequence that prices today are close to the lowest in American history. The government has not meddled in the corn market and corn today commands substantially more than wheat.

Rather than pay $4,000,000 a month indefinitely for carrying the surplus, the farm board would be better advised to destroy its holdings. As that is a political impossibility because the unemployed in the cities also have votes, the taxpayers are justified in insisting that the government offer its wheat as rapidly as the market will absorb it without wide open breaks in the price. It is possible, of course, that within the year wheat prices may rise materially as a result of crop failures in other countries, but the government is not justified in taking the gamble. Certainly it is not in the interest of wheat growers to do so, for if the gamble fails and the farm board is obliged to continue holding its enormous line, wheat prices next year will be no better than they are this.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT AT YORKTOWN.

Something of the little Yorktown mystery has been cleared away by the congressional celebration commissioners who talked pageant plans over with the Virginia local sesqui commissioners and discovered that it is Yorktown peninsula sentiment which desires to omit the surrender scene from the ceremonies. The reason has not been made altogether plain, but the Rev. Dr. W. A. R. [no kidding?] Goodwin of Williamsburg said that the event, taken in a broad view, was the celebration of a birthday anniversary of the nation and that one did not bring the obstetrical instruments in with the birthday cake.

None other than our favorite Vermonter, Calvin Coolidge, once said that the colonies won their freedom through the reawakening of the British sense of justice and right, but Calvin, at the time, was using a moonbeam as a mechanical horse. It was his Trenton speech in which he proposed to give the navy away and put the army cleaning streets or something of the sort. Evidently he had lost his wooden nutmeg pocket piece. Virginia might use as the final tableau in the pageant one showing the reawakening of British justice—center, Lord North descending from the clouds, cherubic, with a full port complexion, bearing in one hand a wreath and in the other a scroll indicating the constitution of the United States, attended by George Sackville with a cornucopia pouring out benedictions; above, the head of George III. [before it got addled] beaming; left, foreground, Lord Cornwallis, Gen. O'Hara and Gen. Tarleton with gifts of myrrh and frankincense; right, foreground, George Washington, La Fayette and Rochambeau as skin clad shepherds with pipes, leading a dance of happy rustics welcoming Reawakened Justice.

The gaffers can tell the children, then, how it all came about, and what a pretty little tale it will be of the good, the true and the beautiful, but the tidewater Virginians should close up the cave in the York river bank where they say Cornwallis hid during what used to be called the bombardment, and stop the slander against that gallant and honorable man.

The ceremonies will be concluded with morris dances by the English Speaking union, a collection for Sulgrave Manor, three rousing cheers from the tenantry for the House of Hanover and a toast by the gentry, "Gentlemen, the King!"

LAWLESS POLICE.

The inquiry of the grand jury into the operation of speed traps in Cook county is a recognition of the fact that no felonies are as abhorrent as the use of power by police officers to commit crimes. There can be no security of life and property in the community if the officers of the law are permitted to use their authority to maltreat, prey upon and blackmail citizens. So far as the speed traps are concerned, the menace of an undisciplined police authority is coupled with the even greater menace of a conniving judiciary.

The price of liberty, as has been often said, is a constant vigilance in its defense. If the speed-trappers were allowed to get away with the profits of their lawlessness there is no doubt that they would seize the first opportunity to levy tribute upon others than motorists if, indeed, they have not done so already. A few exemplary punishments should serve to teach these rural constables and magistrates that it does not pay to abuse their power.

THE FACE THAT DOCKED A THOUSAND SHIPS.

Europeans these days are indulging in a good deal of self-searching to discover why American tourists are no longer crowding the liners. The English, for instance, are discovering that their food is not palatable. A writer in the Saturday Review describes dinner in an English country town as "generally served in an ill-lighted room by a waiter who appears to be slightly moth-eaten." There is "soup probably out of a tin and brought to you on a cold plate," and "small portion of an unpopular fish with some of the paste employed by paperhangers by way of sauce. Second rate frozen or chilled meat with vegetables that have been boiled alive follows; then you will be lucky if you escape stewed fruit with synthetic custard followed by cheese that was flavored in a soap factory and biscuits that have suffered from an all-prevailing damp. Undrinkable coffee brings the meal to a dismal end."

True, all too true. As Mr. Stimson well said, the conference will be brief because the French cannot long put up with English cooking. Neither can the Americans. But that is not the whole story of American discontents. The English should pursue their researches at the source.

Have they ever sat trustfully for a passport photograph? Have they ever, while doing so, said to themselves that the oddities and perversions of previous passport photographs were to be explained as mechanical failures in the camera or the developing room which long since have been corrected? And then, upon seeing the result of the latest effort, have they suffered that sinking of the spirit which comes with the realization that the bearer of that face is doomed to go through life without friends and without even enemies?

Somebody ought to conduct scientific researches into the passport photographic processes. What is it that distorts the features? What is it that turns the platinum blond into a slightly soiled mulatto? What, above all, is it that furnishes that appearance of pop-eyed idiocy? Are passport photographers a race of disappointed men, resolved to pass unhappiness around?

European governments could well afford to run the facts to earth. Americans who can look forward without a tremor to seasickness, English food, French fleas and Italian guides cannot bring themselves to undergo the horrors of photography again.

Editorial of the Day

BASEBALL, THEN AND NOW.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Baseball scores indicate that a fair balance has again been struck between offense and defense, batting and pitching.

The official ball is obviously less lively than it was a year ago. Batting averages are lower, home runs fewer and scores again look like those of baseball rather than football.

Good batters of today, like the good batters of Lajoie's, Wagner's and even Eddie Collins' time, are nevertheless able to take care of themselves. Their averages remain well above the .350 mark to prove that the best pitchers are no more unhittable now than were Matthewson, Plank, and Addie Joss in their prime.

Fewer games are won by a slender margin than were won by a run or two twenty years ago. This suggests either that pitching is not as good or that batters are better. Experts, whose observations go back to the beginning of the century, are of the opinion that pitching has declined a bit while batting has improved, perhaps as much.

With respect to fielding some notable changes have taken place. There are probably more good outfielders today than the game ever had before, but the supply of capable infielders is strictly limited. Shortstops are rare. Few enough second and third basemen compare favorably with those of a quarter of a century ago.

But that may be because emphasis in recent years has been placed on offensive rather than defensive strength, and of the unwillingness of the manager to regard as a candidate for a regular position on his team a player whose batting is weak.

But with the latest change made in the official baseball the emphasis is likely to shift again. It is significant that the Cleveland Indians with the highest batting average are just about breaking even, and that Philadelphia and Washington with a tighter defense and less batting power are far in front.

HALITOSIS.

DR. T. B. HARTZELL thinks we libel the teeth when we charge them with responsibility for any part of halitosis. As a practicing dentist he is in a position to know what he is talking about. If a wisp of cotton is wound around a toothpick, and this is brushed over the teeth, or if a small, clean napkin is used to rub the necks of these structures, the fabric will not acquire an odor, however offensive the breath may be.

If, however, a cloth or piece of cotton is rubbed on the back of the tongue, the fabric will have the odor of the breath. If the white or brown coat be scraped off with the back of a case knife and the debris be spread on a cloth, it will have the odor of the breath. If a person has halitosis the material from the tongue will be odoriferous; otherwise it will not be.

He supports this method of testing by reporting the results of bacterial examinations of tongue débris. He suggests that persons subject to halitosis habitually clean the tongue with cotton rolls, or small gauze napkins, and that they use some efficient mouth wash, not as a deodorant but as a cleansing, disinfecting agent.

This method of treating halitosis should prove successful in a certain portion of the cases, but not in all. Tongue débris can absorb odors that it does not originate. Dr. Hartzell calls attention to some in which the odors originate in the nose, in a disease called ozena. There are others in which the odor factory is a tonsil crypt. There are still others in which the processes of digestion, absorption, and elimination are at fault. Even in the cases due to odors originating elsewhere in the body, tongue débris may act like a sponge in that it picks up the odoriferous gas and then feeds it back into the air. Therefore, even in these larger groups of cases, keeping the tongue clean and somewhat near-sterile has a place. It helps. It does more than does simple washing of the mouth by a deodorant.

A satisfactory cure of the cases in these larger groups will consist in curing ozena, or deodorising the scabs; in emptying the tonsil crypts, or in removing the tonsils; or in changing some alimentary canal processes.

Dr. Hartzell's method should cure those cases hitherto charged to teeth, and it will help somewhat with others.

A SKIN DISEASE.

2. Is it a skin, germ, or blood disease?
3. What is the cause?
4. Is a strict diet necessary?

REPLY.

1. A peculiar, chronic, sploichy skin disease.
2. Skin only.
3. Nobody knows.
4. It has not been proved that diet is of any importance in curing or causing it.
5. I wish I knew, but I never expect to.

RESULTS FROM RICKETS.

Mrs. W. writes: Does chicken-breast indicate any sickness? What is the cause? Can it be cured?

REPLY.

Chicken breast results from rickets. Those who have the trouble in adult life are found to have had rickets twenty or more years earlier.

While the rickets has been cured, and while chicken breast is incurable, there is some gain from proper exercise and work. Carrying a bucket of water or a sack of shot on the head is good. So is wrestling, rowing or swimming. Corrective exercise and corrective work should be kept up systematically for many years to be effective.

CAT HAVEN.

Chicago, July 20.—[Friend of the People.]—The woman living above us keeps eight cats in her flat. I complained to the health department about the odors and I was told that they have to give her so much time in which to vacate. This complaint was made last December and the woman still lives there. The odor is so bad that the neighbors keep their windows closed. Can something be done about this? L. K.

You are advised that, due to a former complaint, the following notice was served on the owner, agent, and occupant: "Remove garbage, old paper, and refuse from entire flat. Remove cats from flat and do not permit foul floors. Clean dishes, stores, sink, water closet bowl, and compartment. Clean bed linen. Clean floors and windows in flat, and maintain cleanliness at all times." Since a reinspection revealed that the foregoing orders were not complied with, this case has been assigned to our law enforcement division for further action.

FERBY ADAMS.

HORRIFIC IS THE NEWS that comes from Paris; the very latest styles for the gals' fall dresses have bustles! Bustles reminiscent of what grandmother wore back in 1870, which is way back. We've stood for short skirts without a murmur, said nothing about the low and behold bathing suits, and only shed a few salty tears over the pajama craze. But, bustles! No, no, no! A thousand times, no! One rustle of a bustle and we'll hustle in disgustle.

NO! WE ARE NOT GOING to Canada on our vacation (which starts the end of this week, Deo volente) just to drink a glass of wine without having our back tires shot off by a dry sleuth. We are going there just because we love to drive at no more, no less, than thirty-five miles an hour. Of course, we can keep that speed in this land of the free and the home of the brave, but rude drivers go zipping past us and yell, "Get a horse!" or "Are you anchored or something?" and other rude things like that. But up in Canada the first province we will get into will be Ontario, and the legal limit there is thirty-five miles an hour. And if you drive more than thirty-five miles an hour the judge speaks as follows: "Seventy-five dollars fine." And when you say, "But in Indiana where I live there is no speed limit," or "In Illinois where I live the limit is forty-five miles," or "I was just keeping up with the traffic," or "I'll see Mayor Cermak about this, he's my particular friend," the Canadian judge answers as follows, to wit, turn rule, and quote: "Seventy-five dollars fine." They're so funny about their laws in Canada; they enforce 'em. What a quaint country.

THERE'S A PERFECT GENIUS in camp with the 110th field artillery of the Maryland National Guard undergoing war time training in western Pennsylvania. Usually in battle practice the mythical enemy is denominated the Reds or the Blues, but the genius directing affairs down at the Maryland camp calls the enemy the Drys. The idea is that the Dry army mobilized in Kansas and containing troops from many of the mid-western states is marching east to impose the federal dry laws on New York with the bayonet, and the Maryland regiment is supposed to be one of the eastern army trying to turn the Drys back. It's a grand idea and ought to put a lot of pep into the Maryland guardsmen. The trouble will be, after they get all worked up, to keep 'em from going over the top and carrying the war into Kansas.

PRAIRIE MOON.

The time is now long since, O prairie moon,
When creeping wagon trains slept under you,
And waking sensed the pepper-minted dew,
Refreshing pearls of hope, O prairie moon.

When thin clouds touched by evening's splendor, keep
Rolls back to empty grasslands; sloos aseep
And hollows greened; the faintly curving trail . . .
Glad willows of the swale in silver mass,
Red viking lilies flare in mystic rune
Above the blushing berries in the grass,
There youth adventured, ever seeking boon.

Old memories crowd thick, O prairie moon;
Progress has claimed the plains, through sweat and strain,
Yet hearts still sing, still sigh and dream again,

JULY 31, 1915.

CHICAGO.—Developments before Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield's "self-investigation" of the government steamboat inspection service last night induced Harry Moir, owner of the Morrison hotel, to make public the facts about Mr. Redfield's secret appearance before the coroner's jury. Mr. Moir, who was a member of the jury, prefaced his statement with a demand that President Wilson recall the secretary from Chicago at once—a demand that found expression in several quarters during the day. "Redfield should be driven out of town if President Wilson doesn't recall him at once," said Mr. Moir, enraged over the secretary's statement that he had not been treated fairly, made to the coroner's jury. "It was simply astounding. This man, at the head of the great department of commerce and a member of the President's cabinet, actually made a two hours' speech to us in which he said that steamboat building was still in an experimental stage," said Mr. Moir. "Think of it. Here in Chicago, with 1,000 of our people dead as the result of what must be apparent to every one as criminal negligence somewhere, this man Redfield makes a plea to the coroner's jury to consider steamboat building in the experimental stage."

LONDON.—The Russians are now facing the problem of evacuating Warsaw and the surrounding country without losing their armies, while the Austro-German forces are making a supreme effort to get across their line of retreat. The Teutons are said to have been partially successful in this attempt.

WASHINGTON.—Capt. Thomas F. Schley, 23d infantry, eldest son of Admiral Schley, who has arrived at his station in Fort Douglas, Utah, may get into trouble as a result of his remarks to the newspapers, reported in Salt Lake last night. The friends of Admiral Sampson in the navy department are greatly incensed over young Schley's comments, especially that portion of the interview in which he claimed Sampson has suppressed important correspondence which, on being disclosed to the court of inquiry, will show Schley was acting under Sampson's order when he delayed off Cienfuegos. Some of the officials were in favor of having the navy department call the attention of the secretary of war to the reported interview.

PITTSBURGH.—J. Pierpont Morgan's proposition to President Shaffer and Secretary Williams for a settlement of the steel workers' strike was not accepted by the members of the general executive board of the Amalgamated association. A counter proposition was made to Mr. Morgan. Unless Mr. Morgan changes his terms the strike will not only be continued but will be extended to the mills of the Federal Steel company, National Steel company, American Steel and Wire company, and other subsidiary interests of the United States Steel corporation, President Shaffer threatened.

CONCERNING THE MAHONEY ESTATE.

Chicago, July 27.—I have read the letter of J. J. Mahoney appearing in your column on Saturday last wherein Mr. Mahoney attempts to criticize the Hon. Henry Horner, judge of the Probate court.

In this article Mr. Mahoney stated: "An attorney for the administrators of the estate of the late John J. Mahoney asked the judge what should be done with $20,000 worth of fine old whiskies and wines included in the property. The heir of the estate, Patrick Mahoney, a brother, is in Ireland. 'We can't ship it to Ireland; it would cost too much. We can't sell it under the law. Evidently Patrick will have to come over and drink it,' said the attorney. 'That shouldn't be a hardship for a Mahoney,' said Judge Horner."

I am the attorney for the estate of John J. Mahoney, deceased, and had the privilege of discussing with Judge Horner the manner of disposing certain assets in this estate and neither at that time nor at any other time did Judge Horner make the statement "That shouldn't be a hardship for a Mahoney" referring to the disposal of certain wines in this estate. Possibly Mr. Mahoney received this information from a press item. I read this item, but it was not an accurate account of the proceedings before Judge Horner.

Mr. Mahoney is entirely misinformed about Judge Horner. If he knew the judge he couldn't be misadvised regarding him. He is not the kind of judge that would make any remarks on or off the bench that would affect the sensibility of any individual or people in an attempt to be witty. He is respected by the members of the bar and the people. I have appeared before him a number of times and at no time did he speak disrespectfully of any creed, class or race.

Mr. Mahoney, a great injustice has been done to Judge Horner.

THESE HARPIES.

Chicago, July 28.—One of the sad commentaries on present day civilization is the ease with which so many women put their lovers, husbands, and sweeties on the spot and then shoot them down. Then juries, made up of feeble minded saps, are so blinded by a well turned ankle that they free these harpies, so that they may continue their murderous careers.

If these women are so anxious to be with the men they have slain [as they so often exclaim] why does not some right thinking jury put them there.

It seems peculiar that they always have a pistol handy when they are swept by their murderous lusts. Why do these babies never take the rap for carrying a concealed weapon?

WILLIAM RAYMOND HERRMANCE.

WHOSE IPSE DIXIT?

Washington, D. C., July 23.—I am inclosing a communication which I will thank you to publish in your column at an early date:

My attention has been called to an editorial in a recent issue of THE TRIBUNE, entitled "Ipse Dixit," in which it is stated that "Bishop Cannon, speaking at San Francisco, says if the Democrats nominate a candidate who favors tampering with the eighteenth amendment, President Hoover will win the 1932 election by 10,000,000 votes. . . . However the redoubtable clergyman has spoken. Ipse dixit likewise Q. E. D."

This editorial is a blend of the inaccuracy [to call it nothing worse] and prejudice which characterises all the utterances of THE TRIBUNE concerning Bishop Cannon. I never made this statement, as the editor would have known had he read the report of the it carried in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The report in the Chronicle was as follows: "Bishop Cannon had high praise for President Hoover. He said that the President was a sincere dry. 'If the Democrats adopt a wet platform or nominate a wet presidential candidate, the south will put moral purpose above party loyalty and repeat its vote of 1928 for the Republican party' [I said "candidate," not party], the bishop, a Democrat himself, said. 'Gov. Roosevelt, Gov. Ritchie, or Al Smith, titular head of the party won't do.'"

Then the report clearly states "President Hoover will win by 10,000,000 votes if any wet is nominated against him," predicted Dr. Wilson. Wilson warned the Republicans, however, that if they 'monkey with Vice President Curtis, or if there is a suspicion that Hoover wants young Teddy Roosevelt on the ticket, we'll leave him by millions.'"

The above is quoted exactly from the San Francisco Chronicle. Dr. Wilson is fully competent to answer for himself, and I shall have nothing to say concerning what he said. But so many inaccurate statements have been made about me by THE TRIBUNE that I decided to answer this one.

PARKING ON WACKER DRIVE.

Chicago, July 25.—I believe your attention should be directed to the ban put on parking on Wacker drive between Wabash avenue and Michigan avenue on the north side of the street. This particular location is outside of the loop and in no way interferes with traffic. The ban, in my opinion, is nothing more than a promotion on the part of lot owners in this vicinity to secure a revenue by parking cars. L. W. CARPENTER.

IN CICERO.

Cicero, Ill., July 13.—The election judges and clerks in the town of Cicero have had some publicity recently on account of their wages not being paid. But how many people know that the town employes in Cicero have not been paid since the last half of March? Firemen, policemen, laborers—none of them have been paid for three and one-half months. Just how the town officials expect them to live is a mystery, as the business men cannot give them goods on "tick" for ever and a day.

God in the Straw Pen" Is the Title.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

JOHN FORT, the author of "God in the Straw Pen" [Dodd Mead], which is the August choice of the Book League of America, gives one an idea of his inspiration for his story in the following words:

"Ten years ago I was a somewhat [illegible] and probably [illegible] reporter on the Chatta[illegible] news. I had only one virtue. I would work myself to death and if happily, for things which interested me. I, as an [illegible] and assigned reporter I heard by name of a pending convention of Holy Rollers in Cleveland, Tenn. I went probably without notifying the city editor I went to Cleveland. Holy Rollers in convention should be interesting.

"There were perhaps 5,000 of these Holy Rollers gathered in a big frame building, built in the outskirts of Cleveland. They were, for the most part, unaffected, sincere mountain folks who took themselves and their religion quite earnestly, as I soon discovered.

"I have tried many times to tell people about what happened that night. I have lacked words. I cannot really describe the queer, unforgettable strangeness of 5,000 close-packed human beings who surrendered themselves in entirety and without restraint to a group worship of God.

"Out of that night, caught in a [illegible] surgon of shouted sounds, the [illegible] babbling in unknown tongues, I remember more than all else the unwanted, the truly terrible struggle of a poor woman near me."

This woman gave Mr. Fort the idea for his book. An inarticulate, half-starved mountain woman, she used no words, like the other wild worshipers, to express her prayers and her fierce joy. She was in misery.

"God in the Straw Pen" is the story of a revival meeting in a rural religious community, back in the early part of the 19th century. The simple folk, most of them leading a poverty stricken, work ridden existence, looked forward to such an occasion as they might to a local fair. They came from miles around, on foot, carrying their young children in their arms, by wagon, by mule or horse, and they camped there until the meetings were over.

The revival was held outdoors, the congregation seated on squared off logs, in front of which, and before the pulpit, was a crude sort of inclosure, tar or pen, thickly carpeted with straw. It was in this pen that the people fell, twisted and writhed, shouted and foaming at the mouth when the preacher had worked them up to a certain pitch of emotional frenzy. It seems that the storm hit them all at the same time, so to speak. They would listen, spellbound, to sensational thoughts of hell fire, eternal damnation, and, as if getting a sudden whiff of brimstone in her nostrils, some woman would suddenly scream out, "Save me, Lord! Have mercy, Lord!" Immediately, like wind beating down a field of wheat, a gust of hysteria would sweep over the entire multitude and in a moment all the people would be shouting, screaming, falling on the ground. Some of them would get "the jerks"; others lose consciousness and look as though they were dead; still others would crawl off into the woods on all fours like animals.

And this was called "coming to the pen." Mr. Fort describes such a revival with utmost vividness. Very briefly he shows you many of the members of the congregation before they had left their homes to attend the meeting, and he also gives you a follow-up of the Methodist revivalist, Sam Lowe, and his assistant, John Hope, so that you are ready for the last scene when it takes place, well toward the end of the book. Had he ended his story with the camp meeting he would have lost the effect of the [illegible] which he succeeds in building by first acquainting the reader with some of the "sinners" and "saved."

Although Mr. Fort's prose is a trifle unusual; he glibly dispenses with "a" and "an" and "a," using them without preceding articles, he achieves a certain poetic quality of [illegible] simplicity of thought and terminology that is peculiarly adaptable to the subject matter of his narrative. Sometimes his prose is almost free verse. His style is all his own, whether you like it or not, certainly distinctive.

Sam Lowe, the self-confident exhorter at "Devil wrastlin'" and soul saving, stands out clear and strong, a picturesque figure. John Sample, his assistant in the "work of the Lord," is at heart a lonely soul, hating the crowd and the confusion of the revival meeting and longing for solitude and a chance to live his own life in a normal, unrepressed way. The character is in violent contrast to that of Lowe and helps to heighten the drama of the story.

Sam Lowe, the self-confident expert at "Devil wrastlin'" and soul [illegible], stands out clear and strong, a picturesque figure. John Sample, assistant in the "work of the Lord," is at heart a lonely soul, hating the crowd and the confusion of revival meeting and longing for solitude and a chance to live his own life in a normal, unrepressed way. This character is in violent contrast to that of Lowe and helps to heighten the drama of the story.

Scotland Yard's Deputy Chief Engaged to Wed

LONDON, July 30.—A love story in Scotland Yard figures in the news today in the announcement of the engagement of the honorable Sir [illegible] Higham, deputy commissioner of police, to Miss Edith Drysdale, O. B. E., who has been private secretary to the chief commissioners of police, and who probably knows more police secrets than any other woman in the world.

Good morning!

There are excellent and there are terrible pictures. Then, there are dull ones. And a dull movie is as hard to stand as a dull person—which is pretty hard. "The Common Law" brings to mind what Shelley said about Peter.

I was surprised to find so "weary, stale, flat, and unprofitable" a picture the censors had been kicking up such a fuss about. Surely, one thought, here must be something racy, to say the least! Not so.

When Robert W. Chambers, who was, with a difference, the male Ursula Parrott of his day—1915—wrote "The Common Law" it was considered QUITE risque. Today the problem raised in the novel of almost two decades ago, is just horse and buggy stuff—and so is the film with its endless mental retchings enlarged upon in endless conversations. In this movie people are forever getting off in pairs and talking about it. If they ever said anything . . . ! But they don't.

The story is about Miss Valerie West, who, after living for a while in Paris with a genial man about town, falls old fashionedly in love with a young American painter, who cares for her like that, too. He believes her pure as the driven snow, and, in sooth, the maid is that at heart. Then, he learns of her past—which she gallantly admits, the while vowing that she has forever eschewed that past together with all thoughts or desires bearing on it.

Constance Bennett, looking adorable, struggles nobly to maintain her reputation as a first lady of the screen—and it's a shame to see so much beauty and ability wasted. Joel McCrea, as her male vis-à-vis, conducts himself like a crude, bad tempered schoolboy. I thought him unbearable. Law Cody is sleek and Tom catty, as the one time lover. Hedda Hopper plays another sort of cat as the painter's sister. It's unusual for Miss Hopper to be affected and posy—but she is in this number.

The film is well enough staged, photographed and recorded. The director is more to be pitied than censured, I guess. You can't make peach pie out of a lemon.

Answers to correspondents: Yes. "The Common Law" was produced as a "silent." Clara Kimball Young and Conway Tearle had the featured rôles.

See you tomorrow!

PARIS, July 30.—(AP)—Michel Clemenceau, son of the late statesman, and Mrs. F. Martin Aiken of Los Angeles, Cal., were married here at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the town hall of the Eighth ward.

The witnesses were Madame Jung Clemenceau for the bridegroom and Mrs. Patricia Sands for the bride. Mrs. Mendenselle of San Francisco was another guest.

The mayor of the Eighth ward told M. Clemenceau that he bore "one of the most glorious names in France," evoked the war time premier's memory, and congratulated the bridegroom on his Croix de Guerre.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 30.—[Special.]—In recording "The Brat," not yet released, Director John Ford wanted to make the film fight waged by the two girls, Sally O'Neill and Virginia Cherrill, as lively as possible.

Calling Miss Cherrill, he said: "Now, this scene is a high spot in the picture. It will have to be good."

Virginia did as directed, startling Sally with a right fist to the nose. From then on the Fox lot never saw more fast and furious action, Sally being one of the Irish Neoashs. Ford and the technical men beamed.

This fight scene, with the girls ostensibly battling over Frank Albertson, probably will make the film remembered by audiences, as well as principals, like some of Priscilla Dean's historic film fights.

Mrs. El Brendel is not such a bad gagster herself. When tradesmen, agents, and other undesired persons call on the telephone, she snaps into an immediate German dialect and the person on the other end of the wire gains the impression that the Brendels' German maid can't understand enough simple English to take a message.

Marie Prevost is cast in two of her typical hard boiled rôles at once. She has just been assigned as "Lulu," the girl that breaks up things between a young navy officer and his fiancée in "Hell Divers" at M. G. M. She supplies a similar rough touch and some comedy, as a turf follower's girl in Universal's "Twenty Grand."

Richard Dix says, "The big thing wrong with the movies is that they never film a summer picture in the summer time." They've bought Dix five changes of shirts to use daily in filming "Secret Service" at Radio Pictures studio.

Hiccoughs for 30 Days, Then Mysteriously Stops

After hiccoughing for thirty days, Christ Karzes, 53 years old, 4353 West Harrison street, stopped suddenly yesterday at the University hospital. Dr. Adolph Kraft, his physician, said that the stoppage of the hiccoughs was as much a mystery to physicians as was the cause of the attack. The attack was one of the longest in his knowledge, Dr. Kraft said. Karzes still is very weak as a result of his experience.

Siamese Visitors Fly to Janesville, Wis., Today for Week-End

Three airplanes piloted by sportsmen will zoom out of Sky Harbor at 10 o'clock this morning carrying as passengers three members of the Siamese royal family, the Prince and Princess Svasti, parents of Queen Rambai Barni of Siam, and their son, Prince Arjuna.

The destination of the royal party is Janesville, Wis., the home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker. There the Siamese will be guests over the week-end. The visitors will find time while in Wisconsin to pay a visit to the University of Wisconsin before returning to Chicago.

One plane, a Beeville, will be flown by Kenneth Parker, vice president of the Parker Pen company, who formerly was an instructor in acrobatic flying in the navy. M. C. Meigs, another sportsman pilot, will fly a Stinson cabin plane and William Boyd Jr. will be at the controls of the third plane in which the young prince is to ride.

The Siamese guests put in a full day yesterday continuing their tour of Chicago which, in Prince Svasti's words, had him "surprised and bewildered."

Mother Tells How Algonquin Looks to Her

While Fund for Similar Vacations Lags.

A mother, watching her children scamper over the grassy, oak-shaded slopes of Camp Algonquin the other day, got out a few sheets of scratch paper and a pencil and began to write a letter.

What she wrote was something she had had in mind ever since that memorable evening when she and her babies were helped out of the camp truck and welcomed by the kindly superintendent. As the days passed her reflections became more articulate. And suddenly she felt she had to write to the district worker of the United Charities who had urged her to come to Algonquin.

"It was just like you said," wrote the mother in a round, painstaking hand. "We were met at the station and taken to the beautiful Camp Algonquin and we were taken right to the dining room where we had such a good lunch. Then such a wonderful rest out under the trees.

"I shall never forget that first night. We saw such a rare sight as one sees only in a lifetime—a full moon sending its light across the river and as a canoe went swiftly up the old Fox river and the waves came scattering to shore, I really caught something which can't be explained yet, it became a part of my soul."

That letter received by the United Charities district worker compensated for all the trying hours she had spent persuading the father to allow his family to go to Camp Algonquin.

Appreciation such as this mother's letter is a testimonial to the value of a vacation at Camp Algonquin to a tenement mother and her children. And when you consider that only $10 will send a mother or a child to Camp Algonquin for two weeks, you wonder why enough ten dollar checks don't get together to send all the needy families in the city.

The Camp Algonquin fund suffered a sharp decline yesterday from the promising total of $119 the day before. Yesterday only $20 arrived, $10 from Elizabeth Maas and $5 each from Mrs. E. Thon and Grace Freeland. This makes a total of $2,507.11 in the camp fund.

One of the two gifts that came for the free ice fund was $1 from Barbara Kenney who conducted a lemonade stand. Elizabeth Maas sent $10, making a total of $3,167.90. Gifts to both camp and ice funds should be directed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Put-in-Bay, O., July 30.—(AP)—A high granite shaft erected on the shores of Lake Erie in honor of Commodore Oliver Hasard Perry's famous victory over the British fleet in the war of 1813 will be formally dedicated tomorrow with peace instead of war as the keynote.

The monument, opened in an incomplete state 18 years ago, stands as a triple memorial to Perry's victory, the northwestern campaign of Gen. William Henry Harrison in the war of 1812, and the more than a century of peace which since has existed between the United States and Great Britain.

Tomorrow morning Gov. George White of Ohio, representatives of other states which contributed to the erection of the memorial, and members of the national Perry's victory memorial commission will embark from the mainland at Sandusky on board the U. S. S. Wilmington.

Besides Gov. White and state officials, the party will include Senators Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, and James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, former United States Senators Atlee Pomerene and Charles Dick of Akron, Dr. James M. Callahan, professor of history at the University of West Virginia; Case R. Howard and A. W. J. Finck, representing the Canadian club of New York.

Rosenwald Offers Berlin Dental Clinic; May Give Million

A children's dental clinic may be established in Berlin by Julius Rosenwald along the plan of those founded in several cities by George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., if negotiations now under way are completed. This was learned yesterday from the office of the Julius Rosenwald fund.

Although Heinrich Sahm, lord mayor of Berlin, had announced, according to a Berlin dispatch, that Rosenwald will make the $1,000,000 gift, officials of the fund said they cannot confirm the announcement until the negotiations have been finished. The gift, they added, probably would be a personal one from Mr. Rosenwald rather than the Rosenwald fund, and may be announced within a few days.

Doctors Urge Early Surgery to Fight Cancer

Presenting records of breast cancer treatment, Dr. George E. Pfahler of the University of Pennsylvania, said that "instead of succumbing to dread cancer, records now show every reason for patients to hasten for treatment, as they have an increasing chance of complete cure."

Out of a total of more than 1,000 cases, Dr. Pfahler reported that 45 per cent were treated successfully, although many were advanced cases.

"Ninety per cent of breast cancer cases now are curable if taken in time and radium, x-rays and surgery are used in combination as the case dictates," Dr. Pfahler said. "Six times as many patients were well five years after operation combined with radiology than if the disease was allowed to go to a fatal course."

Dr. Albert Soiland of Los Angeles, Cal., describing the use of radium in breast cancer cases, said "the use of implantation of platinum-covered radium element needles offers all the benefits of close radiation without disagreeable reaction.

"This is the method of radium therapy we wish to present to this congress as the most promising effective means of curing breast cancer at the present time," he said.

The couple will visit Biarritz for a while and return to the United States in September. Mrs. Perry is the daughter of the late Claude Kilpatrick of St. Louis, Mo.

She was divorced early this summer. Mr. McIntosh served with the general staff of the United States army during the world war.

Chaplin Hires Czech Beauty as Translator

Hollywood, Cal., July 30.—[Special.]—In the wake of dispatches from France coupling the names of Marie Muller, Czechoslovakian beauty, and Charlie Chaplin, the latter's agents in New York today wired that the girl has been engaged as a dialogue writer and translator to aid Chaplin in preparing his next picture, and possibly would come to the United States with the film star.

Carlyle Robinson, who operates Chaplin's public relation offices, states that the girl was engaged because of her command of several languages, and discounted reports of a romance.

'Fatty' Arbuckle Engaged to Addie McPhail, Actress

Hollywood, Cal., July 30.—[Special.]—Announcement of the engagement of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle and Addie McPhail, movie actress, was published here today. Miss McPhail recently secured an interlocutory divorce decree from Lindsay McPhail, musician. She will have to wait nearly 11 months to be eligible to marry again. HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Takes Rockford College Scholarship.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 30.—A princess, great granddaughter of the Sultan Abdel Kader who created an independent kingdom in Algeria and successfully fought the French for many years, nearly a century ago, has come to London on her way to America. There she will take up a journalism scholarship at Rockford college, Ill. She is Princess Esma, 24 years old, the only Moslem girl who is a working reporter in Turkey. She is on the staff of L'Akcham ("The Evening"), a Stamboul daily paper, published in Turkish and French.

"I was born in Istanbul in 1907," she said. "There my grandfather, Prince Mouheddin Pasha, came to live when he left the Algerian colony in Damascus. His father was the great figure in Algerian history, Emir Abdel Kader, who fought for fifteen years against the armies of France in Algeria. He finally was defeated in 1847 and was imprisoned in France. When Napoleon III. became president, he at once liberated Abdel Kader and let him go to Turkey. He settled in Syria with his family. He was always a man of the widest possible sympathies, as well as being a poet, scientist, and philosopher. In 1860 he protected 1,200 Christians, and sheltered many in his house. I remember my great grandmother telling me how for a fortnight the sultan slept on a rug on the threshold so as to protect those who had come to him for safety.

"My mother, the Princess Zeineb, Prince Mouheddin's daughter, has been one of the leaders of the movement for the emancipation of Moslem women. She probably was the first Arab Moslem woman to write as a journalist. I have followed in her steps, and though there are women journalists in Turkey, for women are taking up work there in every profession, especially in law, I am the only Moslem girl who is a working reporter."

When Alice Glynn was born in Chicago 47 years ago she weighed two and a half pounds. Yesterday she returned to visit her father, Bert Glynn, at 1338 Jackson boulevard, and told interviewers that the last time she weighed she tipped the scales at 647 pounds. Her husband, she said, does well if he can ring up 50 pounds on the same scales.

Babe Alice Dudley, as she is know in the circus world, told how she enjoyed only the first seven years of her life as a normal child. At ten, she said, she weighed 165 pounds. That was when she was attending Graham school and there wasn't a desk big enough for her.

"At 13 I married a teamster and two years later my first baby came," she related. "We were living happily on the south side when my husband was killed in a railroad accident, and a year later my baby died. At 20 I married a showman. I had another baby, a girl of normal size, now 23 years old. When I was 26 and weighed 500 pounds I went into a side show and traveled all over for the next seventeen years. Five years ago my second husband died."

Her third husband, she said, "is mighty nice and does all my cooking and keeps me happy." The couple travel in a house car, which after a week here, will take them back to the open road.

BOYS' CLUB SINGERS WILL TAKE PART IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

"Throw out your chest, Set your heart to sing."

Twenty-five boys, from 9 to 15 years of age, all hearty, robust little fellows, were singing these words to a marching tune last night. Crowds gathered out in front of the American Boys' Commonwealth club, 3415 West 13th place, and applauded them. The soprano voice of Wilbert Liebling, 9, rang out above the others. His face was beaming and so was that of their director, Max Siegel, who was coaching the lads for their entry in the chorus contest division of the second Chicagoland Musical Festival contest, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and associated newspapers of the middle west.

On a blackboard in front were the words to the Pilgrim's Chorus from Tannhäuser, one of the required contest numbers. "It's a little difficult for them, but we're going to master it," said Mr. Siegel as he went over and over some of the passages. Harry Branovitz is superintendent of the club and the Young Men's Jewish Charities of Chicago sponsors the glee club.

The boys will sing Saturday night, Aug. 22, in the massed choruses at the final concert which will be given in Soldiers' field.

Correct Your Diet and Watch the Hair Condition Improve

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If your hair is getting dry, if it is falling out excessively, if its gloss is gone, if it just isn't what it used to be—look a little further into corrective treatment than the local helps usually resorted to. I know it's trite as can be to repeat constantly that the quality of your hair depends primarily on the quality of your blood.

I've just been reading of a test made on seventy patients under observation for months, and whose hair was suffering from one of the usual ailments or another. Every one of the patients, it is recorded, suffered from some gastro-intestinal disorder.

Loss of hair, especially, is traced to internal disorders. I have a theory, based on experience in this departmental work, that our better latter day understanding of food elements and food values is eliminating hair loss appreciably. Also, the education that has been extended on the effec. of a clean interior being in connection with hair health, complexion as well.

Sufferers from excessively oily hair are fairly well aware that corrected diet must be part of their cure. Physicians constantly remind us that constipation is to be found in almost every case of diseased oil glands, to which the excess of oil in either skin or hair is attributed.

We women have come to think of beauty recapturing as more a matter of local applications than getting right down to fundamentals. We'll take all manner of pains to find out about a hair lotion and believe sufficiently in its efficiency to give it a tryout. If the same principle of determination were applied to the inner needs, such as a better blood supply, better blood circulation, daily evacuations, there wouldn't be any hair ills.

The hair of anemic people—exhausted, poorly nourished, nerve-strung individuals—reflect the actual physical handicap under which they are suffering. It's the good old blood supply that does the hair beautifying trick after all.

Smart Coat from Paris Serves Many Purposes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It is possible to have one coat, and one alone, and to appear smart in it all the time. This is almost as hard as "fooling all the people all the time" but it can be done within certain restrictions. The first of these restrictions is simplicity and the second is good cutting and good material. The third is harder, but necessary. It is, don't go anywhere that you cannot dress up to. The fourth is, get a coat that you can transform in some way so it looks different on different occasions.

I have chosen the Vionnet coat, shown in the accompanying sketch, as the best universal coat to be found in Paris. This coat is made of sheenless black crepe. It could be either silk or wool, but unless you live in the tropics thin wool would be a better fabric. This coat is perfectly simple and perfectly cut; with straight, raglan sleeves, a satin- self-material belt and a slightly flaring skirt. It has no collar and closes with a surplice wrap-around closing that buttons on the left hip.

The great feature of the coat is the removable chiffon scarf of pale pink that buttons on to the inside of the closing on the right side at the waistline. This scarf, which is about twelve inches wide, is brought around the neck and down the outside closing to the left side of the belt, where it is tied through slits into a loop and long end.

If the coat is to be worn from morning until bedtime you will want a number of scarfs. A polka dotted crepe de chine scarf with a black background for morning, a pure white crepe scarf for afternoon, and the pink scarf shown for very dressy wear.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Winstead, of carpetbagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his real identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Sinclair and believes herself to be his promised wife. Sam forces Lowndes to admit, in the presence of Sally, that he is engaged to the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally decides to accept his offer. They are married at Oakleigh.

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

A WEDDING GIFT.

"You may kiss me, grandson," said grandmamma royally. "Be good to Sally! O, Sam, be good to Sally!" she breathed, against his lips.

"Never have a moment's doubt of that, grandmamma. I love Sally. I mean to make Sally happy," he whispered back. Mrs. Rutherford kissed the boy, and with a gentle, imperative movement, shoved her into the young man's arms. At the door, both of them paused to kiss their hands to her. Then she raised hers as though in blessing. Then they went arm in arm down the stately steps, and were at once surrounded by a laughing group.

"Sally, you picked the prize he man of the state. I rather wanted Sam myself!" laughed impudent Maud Lucas.

"I didn't pick him so much as he picked me," said Sally with a smile. "What is any mere mortal woman to do when Sam Winstead decides she must marry him?"

"But see how every one applauds my unerring taste!" said Sam. Still holding her arm, he walked over to Henry Winstead, standing with Mr. Sinclair and a few other of the older gentlemen present.

"You always wanted a daughter, dad," said he, and placed the girl's hand in his father's. He himself laid an arm on Henry's shoulder, and his eyes were blue wells of pure affection as they rested on Henry Winstead's face. Henry the inarticulate looked at her mutely. He couldn't have spoken at that moment to save his life.

"I am giving you the best father in the world, Sally," said Sam.

"She has chosen the best of sons," stammered Henry, his heart all but choking with its weight of love.

Old Rupert Ashley Middleton Rutherford's granddaughter looked at Henry Winstead with sick distaste. Her hand lay in his like an icy stone. What did they expect her to say to him? Cold blooded, ruthless, conscienceless, money grubber, her heart recoiled against him. Conscious of all the eyes upon her, she mumbled something unintelligible, smiled mechanically, and withdrew her hand quickly. They had Oakleigh. They had her. The old house, even, was now merged into theirs. Surely that was enough! She raised her head and met Henry's eyes, and a flash of haughty Rutherford pride for an instant blazed out at him; even though she had managed to smile her lips with a fixed smile, he couldn't fail to understand those hard eyes. Nor could Sam, who was watching her. Instantly he took her hand and drew her away, to be again surrounded by a gay and laughing group.

The qualm passed, leaving her steady.

The young man's face was calm, but as she ventured to look at him she met a stern blue flash that equaled her brown one.

Because of grandmamma's precarious condition they were to remain at Oakleigh. Besides, it was a family tradition that honeymoons should be spent at the old place, which again wore the air it had worn in the colonel's earliest days.

The last wedding guest had departed. Anne Cochrane, with tears and kisses, had driven off with Mr. Sinclair. Moses had put out the downstairs lights. Sally was in her own room at last. Her wedding dress had been taken off and she was in a lacy negligee, sitting by her dressing table brushing her hair, when Sam Winstead knocked at her door, which Della opened to him, and then, with a smile, departed.

Sally turned in her chair and looked up at him with large eyes. One hand touched the hand with the new wedding ring on it—flew to her heart as if to quell its wild beating. He was still fully dressed, and his face, quite as pale as hers, was strangely resolute. He stood leaning against her closed door, looking down at her with grave intensity. And—and he had the right to be there—he was married to Sam Winstead. He had bought her with a price. She belonged to him. That knowledge, always strange to her, went over her now like a sickening wave. The qualm passed, leaving her steady. The man and the girl regarded each other, in her eyes pride, fortitude, a touch of cold fear; in his, pity, something of pain, and even more of contempt. She feared him! She knew him no better, then. She had not protested, she would not protest!—but in her heart she resented his presence here, in her room, tonight.

He reached for a chair and seated himself, composedly.

"You and I," he said quietly, "must have a little heart to heart talk, dear. On our wedding night. I realize that you are nervous and tired. You have been under an intolerable strain. I would put the talk off, I could, but indeed I think it better that you should hear what I have to say—at the outset of what might be called our married life. For we are married. You are my wife, I am your husband—for better or for worse. Unless I go further, I wish to give my bride the wedding present I have planned to give her."

"You have been very generous, all along. I—I am grateful to you."

"I have never intended to be anything but generous to you, Sally," he said to her, and drew from his breast two or three folded, legal looking papers and placed them in her hand. Having done so, he stood up, and it seemed to her he towered taller than any man she had ever seen, that he was an elemental force, and prouder even than Rutherford pride, a nobler pride than any Rutherford ever knew.

She glanced at the papers she held, and gave an involuntary cry. She hadn't expected this, and his wedding gift staggered her with its greatness. He had given her back Oakleigh free. In her own name.

"Sam!" she cried, white to the lips. "I—O, Sam!" Something happened to her heart.

"Take it, Sally," said he quietly. "We give it to the Rutherfords, we friends—my father and I. A free gift. We never wanted it. We never meant to take it or to keep it. We only held it to save Oakleigh—and you."

"My father turned it over to me—to give to the girl I married, and the girl to whom I was giving my name," said Sam, standing before her so tall and so restrained that she looked at him in wonder. This surely was not businesslike Sam Winstead she had known, this pale, still man with bright hair and cold blue eyes, this man who was a bridegroom talking to his bride on their wedding night.

"Let me repeat, lest you misunderstand me. We Winsteads give it to you. I have married you to save you—and Oakleigh—from a worse fate—because I loved you. You do not love me, you will never love me, doubtless, but I will not stand by and see any other man interfere with your destiny. That is for me. Outside of this, you are free. Now I have but one thing more to say to you, and I do not wish to have to say it more than once. Never are you look at my dear father tonight when he sought to draw near you. I saw him wince. Never look at my father like that again. I would endure it from any one—shall he have to endure it from my wife? He is worthy of all respect. I demand it for him."

"I—I cannot respect the man who—who——"

"Who what?" he asked relentlessly.

"Who took advantage of grandpapa," said she.

"Don't force me to consider you a downright fool," he said crisply. "To take advantage of your grandfather? My father? Can't you understand that Henry Winstead, because he had a romantic liking for your grandfather was sorry for him, practically bought Oakleigh outright? Mortgaged? Paid for it, to save the place from the real estate speculators who were after it, and to whom the colonel most undoubtedly would have lost it, if his father hadn't stepped in to prevent it. Dad never wanted to do anything but help."

"That," said she, "is your side of the story. But why discuss it? You've got Oakleigh, haven't you?"

"I shall begin to wonder if it hasn't cost the Winsteads too much," said he, breathing quickly. "You strain my patience, my bride."

"Anybody would want Oakleigh," said Sally, trembling.

"The person who wants it most has it." The young man had regained his composure, and spoke in a low, even tone. "That much the Winsteads have been able to do. We want it so little that we give it back to the Rutherfords. For a wedding present."

"For that—for grandmamma's sake—I thank you. Indeed, I thank you," said she painfully.

"The first time I met you, you ordered me off Oakleigh grounds. The second time, you told me, haughtily, that the Rutherford's 'didn't know' the Winsteads. I trust that you know them now—somewhat."

"One of them has just married me," said she, and looked him in the eyes. "And gives you to yourself, Sally—as a wedding present," he told her impressively. "Did you think I would take you for my wife, except in name? I would not touch you, knowing you do not love me, to save my life. I would pay the price, because you are proud and honest—don't I know? Don't you think you are the only person who is proud and honest? Except that my name—a name you need not be ashamed to wear: my mother wore it! You are free of me!"

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Bobby, aged 3½, said to his sister Eleanor: "Do you know what I have in here?" indicating the closed door. She said, "No, what is it?" "My family," he answered, and went in his little bed he had tucked under the covers his toy cat, teddy bear, and doll. G. A. C.

Almost every morning my little 4 year old neighbor girls calls on me. A few days ago she came in just as I was whipping some eggs for an angel food cake. When they reached the real frothy stage she said: "Why, my mother never makes soapsuds out of our eggs." U. F. D.

Society Girl Finds Mastodon Relic on Ranch

BY THALIA.

THE scientific explorations going on this summer on and near their Frying Pan ranch at Amarillo, Tex., have been of great interest to Mrs. William H. Bush and her two daughters, Miss Carol and Miss Emeline. Last week they got their biggest thrill in the "digs." Miss Carol indulged in some delving on her own and unearthed a perfectly tremendous and quite remarkable specimen of a prehistoric bone.

It is the humerus of a mastodon, known as the imperial elephant, and is 42 inches long. Dr. Case, paleontologist, who is head of the University of Michigan group of scientists making its explorations near the ranch, pronounced it to be approximately 30,000 years old. With the aid of Mr. Irving White, one of the explorers, Miss Bush extricated the bone in fine condition, and shellacked and prepared it herself to be put in a museum.

The Michigan group, one of numerous similar ones from various universities all over the country conducting such explorations, began investigations in Texas last year and returned again this summer to continue. Mrs. Bush and the girls have been learning much about the work and could hardly bear to leave the ranch at the customary time because things were so exciting. Among other finds on the Bush ranch was that of the vertebra, teeth, and dermal plate of the phytosaurus.

Mrs. Bush and her daughters are to depart on Sunday to spend the rest of the summer at the Wianno club on Cape Cod.

Knollwood Country Club to Have Tank Contests.

Knollwood Country club's colorful new swimming pool and its surrounding cabanas have proved to be enormously successful and popular with the club's membership this summer. Tomorrow night there is to be a party called "St. Jean de Luz at Knollwood club" that promises to be the season's largest. At 9 o'clock there will be fancy diving and swimming exhibitions by A. A. U. champions, club members, and their guests, and afterwards there'll be dancing at the pool followed by a buffet supper and dancing in the clubhouse. Reservations for parties have been made by the Russell Sterns, the John W. O'Learys, Miss Lillian Dudley, the John Mitchell Hutchins, the Dan Peterkin Jrs., the Marshall Sampsells, and numerous others.

To encourage proficiency in the swimmers the swimming committee has worked out a series of tests whereby the ability of the contestants is ranked. Special emblems have been designed for each of the 4 classes for which tests are provided and are to be worn sewn on the bathing suits of those who qualify. To wear a tadpole, outlined in Knollwood colors on your suit, you must be able to dive from the side of the pool, float 5 seconds on your back, 5 on your face, swim across the pool with water wings, and swim 10 strokes without water wings. If you can dive from a low springboard, swim the 40 feet across the pool with front and back stroke, fetch bottom of the pool at a 9 foot depth, plunge 10 feet and swim 20 feet under water, you can wear a minnow.

When you are able to do a swan dive, back and front jack knives, and back dives, swim 75 feet demonstrating correctly the crawl, breast, side and back strokes, plunge 30 feet, and swim 40 feet under water, you are entitled to a bluefish adornment. The final class is for dolphins who have to swim a quarter of a mile, demonstrate all the lifesaving holds, carry a person across the pool, demonstrate resuscitation methods, and write a short essay on lifesaving in order to get their emblems.

Miss Patricia Schmidt and Macauley Carter Engaged.

Mrs. Owen A. West of 232 East Walton place announces the engagement of her sister, Miss Patricia Schmidt, to Macauley Carter of Chicago, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Carter of Toledo, O. WASHINGTON SOCIETY FACES DAVILA TANGLE AMONG THE ENVOYS

To make matters worse for the social secretaries, each Davila has a first name that begins with C. The new Honduran minister's name is Celeo; the retiring Chilean ambassador is called Carlos; and the Rumanian minister is Charles.

Former Ambassador Carlos Davila, a married man, did not care much about dancing when he was here. But Minister Charles Davila, an eligible bachelor, liked parties. So it used to irk him a little when Washington debutantes, confused by the names, sent the invitations they meant for Bachelor Davila to Benedict Davila.

And it certainly irked Benedict Davila when the newspapers, printing the rumored engagement of a Davila to the daughter of Financier Bernard Baruch, used his name instead of the Rumanian Charles.

Altogether it was disturbing to the social life along the Potomac. And now, just as alphabetic relief was in sight with the resignation of the Chilean ambassador, comes a new Davila in from Honduras. He, too, is married. And he is a minister, not an ambassador, so the coming social season will have an additional complication.

A new departure in X-ray work, resulting in what is believed to be the largest X-ray picture ever made, has been successfully introduced at Field Museum of Natural History, Director Stephen C. Sims announced yesterday.

The new picture, made on a film 7 feet long by 2 feet wide, represents the first successful attempt to photograph an entire adult mummy in its casket on one film and at one exposure. It is believed to be the largest such photo ever made of any subject. The work is said to possess great value in diagnostic work.

Army and Navy Day at Ravinia Thrills Sally's Gang

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

The elements conspired to give us a perfect day for our party at Ravinia yesterday. One hundred boys and girls, sitting out under a cloudless blue sky, enjoyed a perfect "Army and Navy" day.

Marines entertained us with a bayonet drill, the infantry passed before us in review, and there was one stirring spectacle after another. Perhaps the physical drill without weapons and the two arm semaphore drill by the sailors from Great Lakes were the most interesting numbers in this "Army and Navy" day program, but surely to see a detachment of cavalry on the finest steeds hurdle a flaming barrier was the most thrilling.

There was music by both the Army and the Navy bands. When the sailors entertained us with some of the songs for which they are famous, so infectious was it we couldn't refrain from joining in. With a background of green lawn, wide spreading trees and luxurious shrubbery for a stage setting, such a performance could not help but be picturesque.

We forgot for a few hours that we had left a dusty city behind us before we were transported to this delightful haven, and if it weren't for the refreshing train ride back to town on the North Shore line we would have regretted the thought of leaving Ravinia.

Child's Nurse Needs Recreation as Much as the Office Worker

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A young woman wrote me a letter recently after a certain daily article had appeared:

"You are only making it harder for us," she said, "when it is hard enough already. I do the housework for a family and have most of care of three young children and hardly ever have any time off. I go to bed at night so tired I can't sleep. Probably the women who hire us will read what you say about our being careless and will get suspicious, and watch us and criticise us so life won't be worth living."

Whenever I have anything to say about mothers being careful to whom they entrust their children, I try to give credit to those many girls and women who are taking care of children better than their mothers would. But it is quite possible even so for some fault-finding mistress-employer to convince herself that she has some excuse to "put the screws on."

So perhaps this would be as good a time as any to make a few suggestions to all mothers who have to turn the care of their children over to a maid or nurse.

The most important thing you should do is to see that the maid or nurse has time for rest and recreation. The care of young children is a very insistent thing and everyone who has it needs relief from it. Nurses or maids should have time to see their friends, to go to theaters or movies, or to go to their rooms and be undisturbed for reading, sewing, or any personal interest.

First, of course, you owe them that much consideration, just because it's no more than decent for their sakes as human beings. And next, you should arrange it, because they can't be expected to be patient and wholehearted in their care of your children if they're stale and all tired out.

Ex-Secretary of War Cites Public Opinion as Creator of Peace

Williamstown, Mass., July 30.—[Special.]—A plea for political and economic disarmament was made today by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in President Wilson's war cabinet. Mr. Baker delivered the convocation address opening the eleventh annual session of the Institute of Politics.

Mr. Baker proposed that an international conference be convoked to plan for simultaneous horizontal tariff reductions over a period of years and thus diminish or put an end to that friction from which many wars have been generated.

On the political side Mr. Baker voiced the belief that the hope of the forthcoming disarmament conference "lies not in the statesmen of the world but in the peoples of the world and the strength of the peoples of the world at that conference depends not upon the knowledge or good will of a few elect and thoughtful spirits but in the extent to which popular knowledge is thorough and deep and so fortifies the representatives of the people with the support of an informed and resolute public opening."

Through the speech of the former cabinet officer, a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, ran the theme that public opinion, soundly formed on the basis of all the facts, was the powerful weapon which would bring about real disarmament.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

During the warm weather my sweetheart and I literally live at the beach. One evening we shared a bench with two women. It was so warm that Bill and I did not talk, therefore we could not help overhearing our neighbors' conversation. They anxiously awaited the arrival of the children and their fathers from the water. Suddenly they spied them. The children came running, and behind them were several men. One was a very fat man in a vivid green, striped, old fashioned bathing suit.

Bill remarked about the appearance of the man, and I added: "He has no pride, otherwise he would not come down in that suit."

That ended our conversation. The man in the vivid green suit came over to our bench. Bill and I looked at each other. But when one of the small boys said, "Daddy, that lady says you have no pride, otherwise you would not come down in that suit," Bill and I sprang from the beach and darted through the crowd to the other end of the beach.

Hereafter we shall know better than to make fun of people when children are about. E. E. S.

Young Man Feels He Is Paying Too Much for Loss of His Arm

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Do you think a fellow who has only one arm is out of luck with the girls? I lost my arm when I was a small boy and it seems as if I am paying the price now. I'm 23, I do not drink or smoke. I have a good education, a good position, and am well liked by men. I know some nice girls but it seems that I am just out of luck with them. I can't help but think that the missing arm is the reason. In fact, one girl told me I was a swell fellow and she would like to go out with me if I weren't crippled. What are your ideas on the matter?

"EDDIE."

Why be affected with the remark of one brainless idiot, Eddie? Of course, what really is at fault is a supersensitiveness of your own manufacture. I am not making light, naturally, of a loss such as you have suffered. Nor am I without feeling about your sensitive reaction under the circumstances you describe. But that one young lady isn't far removed, if any, from the savagery found among small children.

I'm willing to wager that there are countless numbers of girls to whom your affliction would not mean a single thing. In fact, I'll wager further that after this letter is printed I'll receive scores of letters from girls suggesting that a missing arm would be no handicap where the man measured up as you obviously do.

But in order to get out of life what you are entitled to, Eddie, you've got to take yourself in hand and do a bit of personal mesmerizing. You must put a different estimate on yourself. You must make yourself believe that nothing is impossible to you. That's not only good selling talk to the girls—but to the world in general.

I know several people, and, incidentally, they are most happily married, who have the sort of thing to combat physically that you have, or something of kindred nature. One of these, an ideally happily married woman is without her right arm. But what that woman accomplished in a day would put most of us so-called two fisted beings to shame. She never talks affliction or handicap. She won't recognize it as such. And woe betide anyone who would dare offer her sympathy.

But you know people yourself, Eddie, who are far more handicapped than you are but are able to sell themselves on merit, character, and disposition, and to whom the world of men [and women] pay highest tribute, including the thing you want—love.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Try to Win Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a girl whom another boy also loves. Would I interfere if I asked for a date?

J. K."

Don't think about the other fellow. You like the girl, so try to win her.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

POISON PRODUCING GRASS.

Thirteen cows in Calumet and Manitowoc counties in Wisconsin have died this week from prussic acid poisoning caused by pasturing severely drought stricken sudan grass. As a result warnings are being issued to dairy farmers to protect their cattle from danger.

Thousands of acres were seeded to the fast growing sudan grass this spring when it was evident that pasture lands would not be sufficiently recovered from last year's drought to provide normal grazing. In normal times the pasturing of sudan would offer no hazards, agronomists explain, but the present season has given the grass insufficient moisture to continue growing and as a result the dying plants have generated the prussic acid.

"When the growth of this crop has been arrested or stopped by hot weather, it accumulates sufficient poison to make it extremely dangerous," says George B. Mortimer of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture. If there is danger apparent, the recommendation is to let it continue to stand until it is fit to cut for hay. There is no danger from prussic acid poisoning in sudan grass hay, according to Mortimer.

Thirty head of cattle have been pastured since July 3 on 14 acres of the grass at the experiment station farm near Madison. None of the cattle has shown signs of sickness. The degree of drought is consequently pointed out as the difference between safety and the loss of the animals.

PERRY SMILES AS HE VIEWS SKULL OF SLAIN WIFE

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eagle River, Wis., July 30.—[Special.]—George W. E. Perry, bigamous Milwaukee brakeman, sat unmoved in the Vilas county courtroom today as a procession of state witnesses marched to the witness stand to present a mass of circumstantial evidence on which the state is asking the maximum penalty—life imprisonment—for the murder of Mrs. Cora Belle Hackett, third of his seven wives, on July 6, 1930.

DR. MILOSLAV CH.

Only once did Perry lose his mask of calmness and that when Dr. E. L. Miloslavich, Milwaukee pathologist, presented in evidence the skull of the victim. As the doctor assembled the skull to show the jury the course of the bullet which ended their honeymoon along the swamp road near the Lac due Flambeau reservation of the Chippewa tribe, Perry half rose to get a better view. The 40 year old Romeo has but one good eye—the left. Perry smiled as the audience gasped at the exhibit.

Trial May End Today.

The courtroom was thronged with spectators who filled every available place at an early hour. Late comers sat on the floor. Women predominated in the crowd pressing for a glimpse of the bald headed defendant. Circuit Judge C. M. Davison of Beaver Dam warned the spectators against possible collapse of the stairs. The state moved swiftly against the defendant. Nine witnesses were called during the morning session and two in the afternoon. Only four more are to be heard tomorrow, District Attorney Edmund H. Drager and Special Prosecutor A. J. O'Melia announced. Attorney John Dolan, representing Perry, said the defense will complete its case in fifteen minutes. Perry will undoubtedly know his fate late tomorrow.

The star witnesses for the state this afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Houston W. Parker, who rented a cottage to the Perrys on their honeymoon at Crawling Stone lake in July, 1930. Mrs. Parker twice collapsed on the stand as she identified articles of clothing belonging to Mrs. Hackett.

Mrs. Parker identified a photograph of Perry and his slain wife as one she had taken of them while on a trip. She also testified that Perry had borrowed a rifle from her husband and left the cottage with his wife for a hunting trip. She declared Perry returned to the cottage alone, stating his wife had gone on to Minocqua with some friends she had met.

Parker followed his wife on the stand and substantiated her testimony. He also said that when Perry returned the .22 caliber rifle he said, "It's a good shooting gun."

Tells of Finding Body.

The first witness for the state was Harry St. Germaine, Indian forester, who told of finding the body when his dog sniffed in the brush as he passed the swamp road. Witnesses William Karaful, Indian; Miney Snow, Indian; former Sheriff G. L. Carter and Coroner Pat J. Gaffney told of moving the body and finding a wedding ring, necklace, clothing and the boots.

Former District Attorney George O'Connor sought to explain the missing bullet. He said that after the skull was washed in a disinfectant solution he heard "a scratchy noise and a heavier noise against the pan" as the solution was flung into the Eagle river.

The doctor told of testing the rifle by shooting at the head of a freshly killed calf. A bullet penetrated the jaw bone, three times as thick as the skull of the slain woman, and also two inch pine boards, he said.

TREASURY SHAVES SIX MILLIONS FROM BUDGET ESTIMATE

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Slashing all unnecessary expenditures for the 1932 fiscal year, the treasury has complied with President Hoover's economy instructions by eliminating $6,000,000 from its budget.

This saving is exclusive of the federal building program which was enlarged by congress at President Hoover's recommendation to alleviate the unemployment situation. It calls for an expenditure of $120,000,000 in 1932 as compared with $60,000,000 appropriated this year and will make the total treasury outlay $214,000,000, or $54,000,000 more than was appropriated for the present fiscal year.

Deducting the public building program, the treasury's budget for 1932 will total $254,000,000, as compared with $260,000,000 in the present year.

COUNCIL ADOPTS CODE TO UNIFY TRAFFIC RULES

Expect Park Commissioners to Pass Law.

The city council passed a new traffic ordinance yesterday as a step toward uniform street regulations throughout the city. The ordinance was drafted by a council committee headed by Ald. John Massen [48th] with the aid of representatives of the various park boards. It is expected that the code will be adopted by park districts to cover the boulevard systems as well as the city streets.

ALD. MASSEN. [U. & U. Photo]

The ordinance does not make any radical change in the rules governing automobiles. Practically the only change is the incorporation of recent modifications in the state motor vehicle code.

Follows Hoover Code.

The regulation of turns, according to Ald. Massen, is an outstanding example of the city's need for uniformity. For example, a driver in the North Shore park district can turn left on a red light but if he were to attempt the same maneuver in the west park district it would mean an arrest. Left turns, under the ordinance, will be made from the center of the street on the green light unless there are directions to the contrary from policemen or from signs, such as those on Michigan avenue which prohibit left turns except on the red light.

Adopt State Sign Rules.

The ordinance also provides that the city shall use the standard traffic signs such as used on the Illinois highway system, the octagonal shape for stop, the tilted square for warning, and so forth. Some of the stop signs on boulevards and streets are shaped like shields, some are oval, some are square. So as not to cause any additional expense, the standard signs will be erected as new signs are needed.

"The present lack of uniformity," said Ald. Massen, "is confusing to drivers in Chicago whether they live here or are visitors. The confusion is responsible for some of the accidents that are taking a daily toll of lives."

No reference is made in the ordinance to speed limits. This is covered by the state motor vehicle code.

The ordinance was passed as drafted by Ald. Massen's committee with the single exception of section 22, which provided for a more strict regulation of parking by taxicabs, prohibiting the cabs from parking other than within the designated cab stands. On motion of Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] this section was referred back to the traffic committee and to the local transportation committee.

NEW GRAND JURY WILL CONTINUE SPEED TRAP QUIZ

More Village Officials Are Heard.

Two justices of the peace, a police magistrate, and a suburban policeman were called before the grand jury yesterday in its investigation of speed traps. At the same time, State's Attorney Swanson announced that his office will continue the inquiry when this grand jury adjourns. A new grand jury will be sworn in on Monday.

"We will protect the motoring public from any abusive treatment," said the prosecutor. "We will make a thorough examination of the conduct of some of the rural officials of Cook county against whom there have been complaints."

Question Evanston J. P.

Justice of Peace James Barber of Evanston was questioned regarding his reported issuance of warrants to aid automobile finance companies to collect delinquent payments on cars sold on the installment plan.

According to Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Seyfarth, who has charge of the investigation, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Finley, 3215 North Mozart street, told of being arrested on a warrant issued by Justice Barber, charging theft by bailee, when they were seven days late in making a payment on their car.

Refuses to Sign Waiver.

Justice of Peace Alexander Falk of Niles, against whom the Chicago Motor club has received speed trap complaints, refused to sign an immunity waiver, according to the assistant state's attorney, and he was not heard by the grand jury. Police Magistrate Hollis Reeves, colored, of Robbins, signed a waiver and was questioned regarding the number of arrests in his bailiwick.

Policeman Frank Zitek of Lansing was called before the grand jury in response to a complaint that he had been rough and abusive toward Mr. and Mrs. B. R. McNabb, 1342 West 105th street, when he arrested them on a speeding charge recently.

'OnlyPlaying,' Says Lawyer Fined $10 for Speeding

Attorney Paul O'Donnell, former assistant corporation counsel, who claimed he was "only playing" when he swerved his automobile and almost knocked Policeman Edgar Fellows of Evanston off his motorcycle July 22, was fined $10 and costs for speeding by Justice of the Peace Harry H. Porter yesterday.

BOYS HUNT IN VAIN FOR BANK ROLLS TO BITE

It's a Tough Life at Horse Tracks.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, July 30.—Just what it means when U. S. Steel cuts the dividend rate from seven to four and hints at a readjustment of salaries is not very clear to me, but when two Kentucky horse track corporations decide to abandon their fall meetings and some of the New York and Maryland horse track tracks decide to curtail their purses, it is quite apparent that easy money is coming hard to get.

This is a shocking realization. In a certain way of thinking, I had come to the notion that my friends among the habitually and resolutely unemployed would always be able to find some of easy money, come war, come panic and plague. Now, however, I hear that it is a good business policy to stay away from the little social gathering places of the habitual and resolutely unemployed.

They all want to declare dividends on all the money that anybody has and not any money at all. I am told that in one of the little clubs where members of the H. and R. unemployed pet are spending their time and money else these afternoons and evenings reading the horse papers and making mental four horse parlays a list has been posted on the bulletin board of all persons suspected of having funds. The heading on the list is: "Members are advised that the names listed below are reliably believed to be bites. All persons successfully gulling the bite on any of the names named below are in honor bound to leave 20 per cent of said bites with the treasurer." Thus the 20 per cent has been left with the treasurer.

Bradley Is Best Bite.

Col. Edward R. Bradley of Palm Beach, Fla., and Lexington, Ky., is listed as the one best bite of the current depression, but the colonel is not in New York at present, and it is very difficult to bite by wire or mail. Mr. Joseph E. Widener, also listed as a very good bite, apparently heard the boys gnashing their teeth for the last seven weeks ago, because he went to Europe abruptly. There is great anxiety about Mr. Widener's return, and one hears such expressions as "I hope nothing happens to detain dear old Mr. Widener, as I am planning to go down to the dock to welcome him home. Goodness, how I miss dear old Mr. Widener."

Mr. Bill Dwyer, the beverage magnate, is known as an excellent bite, too, but one has to find him to put the bite to him and for some time now Mr. Dwyer has been, to put it politely, inaccessible. It seems that the prohibition people took over a brewery on the west side not long ago and want to ask Mr. Dwyer if he happens to remember offhand whether it was his brewery. If it was his brewery, then Mr. Dwyer's bite ability must have been greatly reduced, unless it was one of the best breweries in the United States and the government's takeover would represent not only a great loss of invested capital but a dreadful curtailment of income, what with malt beverages selling at 25 cents per hoist and the weather as hot as it is. Mr. Dwyer owns the Jacksonville, Fla., horse and one of the New York hockey

They Even Bite Each Other.

I am told that in the absence of the two best bites on the list and with the secondary and lesser bites maintaining a cautious aloofness, some of the boys in desperation have turned cannibal, so to speak, and are trying to bite one another.

It is very tragic, but there is one cheering circumstance in the fact that, owing to the scarcity of workers, they are not confronted with the necessity of going to work, a fate which is worse than death. It is also most incredible to me because for many years I had been seeing the boys in Florida in the winter, in Saratoga in August and in other expensive places of pleasure and extravagance at all times, always unemployed and always fairly well upholstered with money. If a party didn't happen to have any money he had only to stand around the cigar counter or the desk at a good hotel until someone came by who had some and decide to bite himself a dividend.

BEEBE, WEILLER REACH FINAL OF WOMEN'S GOLF

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

June Beebe of Olympia Fields advanced to the finals of the women's Chicago district golf tournament with a 1 up victory over Mrs. Lee Mida of Butterfield yesterday at the Calumet Country club. Jane Weiller of Vernon Ridge became the other finalist by defeating Jean Armstrong of Indian Hill, also by a 1 up margin.

Miss Weiller and Miss Beebe are two of the youngest successful golfers in the vicinity. The final match today should be a battle, as both have been playing consistent golf throughout the tourney.

Mrs. Mida and June played careful golf, and at no time was either more than 1 up. June won the first hole with a par five, while Mrs. Mida, who was in a trap, holed out with a six. They halved the next five holes, each having fives.

Squares Match on Seventh.

Mrs. Mida squared the match on the seventh hole. Her tee shot bounced out of the creek and she laid a long iron shot on the green. Two putts gave her a par four. June had a 250 yard drive, but pitched into two sand traps.

A par three on the eighth, where June missed a putt and took a four, gave Mrs. Mida a 1 up lead. June was in the rough with her tee shot on the ninth, while Mrs. Mida's drive soared down the middle of the fairway. However, Mrs. Mida three putted and the hole was halved in fives.

June still was 1 down at the tenth, which was halved in 5s, but on the eleventh June made a good drive, had a good pitch shot, and took a birdie 4 to Mrs. Mida's 5, and the match was even again.

Mrs. Mida Leads Again.

The 162 yard twelfth was won by Mrs. Mida with a par 3, June missing her putt and taking a 4. On the thirteenth both had good drives, but their second shots were side by side in a trap. June had a good out and won the hole with a birdie 4, Mrs. Mida taking a par five. Mrs. Mida regained her 1 up lead on the fourteenth with a par 3, but June's par 5 on the fifteenth evened the match.

Mrs. Mida scored a birdie 4 on the sixteenth, while June took a par 5 and was 1 down. On the seventeenth both tee shots landed in the woods. June tried to slice around the trees and went into a trap. Mrs. Mida also was in a trap on her second shot. June made a splendid recovery on her third shot and took a birdie, while Mrs. Mida holed out in par 5.

They were all even starting the eighteenth. Both had good drives. June laid her second shot to the edge of the green, while Mrs. Mida, short on her second, was on the green in three. June's ball was four feet from the pin, while Mrs. Mida had a difficult down hill putt to sink, which she missed, taking a par 5, while June sank her ball for a birdie 4. Mrs. Mida's total was 86, while June's was 84, five over par.

Miss Weiller Rallies.

Jane Weiller was three down at the turn, but, swinging into her game on the final nine, she managed to subdue Miss Armstrong. Miss Armstrong was out in a par 40, but faded on the final nine holes, on which Jane took a 39. Semi-final summaries:

YOUNG BRITISH PRO WINS WITH 297 IN SOUTH

Greensboro, N. C., July 30.—(AP)—Eric Ball of Atlanta, Ga., 20 year old English born professional with only eight months' residence in this country, today won the 72 hole Medal Play Southeastern Professional Golf association open championship here with 297.

Ernie, the son of a golf pro at Lancaster, England, came to America less than a year ago to become assistant to his uncle, Frank Ball, at Bobby Jones' club in Atlanta.

Young Ball had to sink an eight footer for a birdie on the par 5 18th to win, for Eddie Miller of Gadsden, Ala., the defending champion, played right behind him all the way.

Irwins Win Father, Son Tennis Title

Earle and William Irwin of Grand Rapids, Mich., survived two spirited matches yesterday to win the annual western father and son's tennis tournament at the University of Chicago. At the same time Walter Hayes, 49 year old Chicagoan, defeated Dr. S. H. Thwaites, Grand Rapids, 6-4, 6-3, to win the veterans' championship.

The Irwins first eliminated Amos Alonzo Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago, and his son, Paul, 6-3, 6-4. Later in the afternoon they defeated Frank and Tim O'Brien, 6-3, 6-1, in the final bracket.

The O'Briens, who earlier had whipped Robert and Jack Doerr, 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-finals, fought doggedly against the Irwins, but lost when William, Princeton tennis captain, slammed smashing drives at them while his father, watching the baseline, returned the best offerings of either O'Brien.

Shaw, U. S. C. Guard, Signs with Chicago Cardinals

Los Angeles, Cal., July 30.—(AP)—Jesse Shaw, for the last three years guard on the University of Southern California football team, today signed to play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals. He will report Sept. 1.

MY DANDY COMES BACK; CAPTURES ARLINGTON STAKE

Outsprints Fast Field in Sioux City Purse.

BY FRENCH LANE.

An old familiar victory cry went up at Arlington Park yesterday after the running of the Sioux City purse, a sprint at six furlongs.

All the shouting was for My Dandy, who for the first time in nearly a year found his racing legs. When he went flying down the stretch to snatch victory by a length and a half from Calf Roper, in a comeback attempt, every one in the crowd of 12,000 was cheering for him.

Few greater Chicago turf heroes have come up in this generation than this one eyed sprinter owned by the Reichert Brothers of Belleville, Ill. It seemed those cheers had been saved up for some time, for My Dandy has received but few ovations that outdid the one yesterday.

He Fooled the Skeptics.

After having been one of the busiest race horses in America for several years, My Dandy went on a vacation early last fall. He didn't look at the inside of a race track until late last spring. His earlier efforts this year indicated the vacation had done anything but improve him.

He became about as busy as ever, but in his first six starts this year some horse was always showing him the way home. The skeptical began to say, "The old boy's all through."

He hadn't selected a soft spot in the Sioux City, for such a fast horse as Dedicate went out to make the pace for him and outran him until the field was heading into the stretch. Flyers like Eskimo and Karl Eitel also were in the race, but My Dandy was something of the My Dandy of a couple of seasons ago.

Outsteps Calf Roper.

He had conquered Dedicate turning into the stretch. Then Calf Roper began moving up with a fresh challenge. But My Dandy, with Jockey Renick pushing him hard, shook off Calf Roper, something a lot of good horses haven't been able to do this year. My Dandy was running easiest of all in the late stages.

He ran his six furlongs in 1:11 2-5 and no wonder the crowd cheered, for he had been made a very short priced favorite, paying $4.68 to win, $3.48 to place, and $2.34 to show. Calf Roper paid $4.38 to place and Dedicate was at $2.84 to show. Jockey Renick didn't have to guide My Dandy into the winner's circle. The old chestnut knew he had triumphed and he knew the way to the honor circle.

The race was worth $1,600 and held a secondary place on the program to the Grand Rapids handicap. But My Dandy overshadowed even the performance of Martis, which scored in the Grand Rapids, with Ironsides running second and Sunvir third.

Martis Pays $8.88.

Martis also had Renick up. He outstepped his rivals right from the beginning. He ran a good fast mile, the time being 1:37 1-5. He paid $8.88. Sunvir and Sister Zoe had commanded most of the support.

Ironsides showed quite an improvement. He was no match for Martis and was beaten by more than three lengths.

PEPPIN DEFEATS RAY TRAMBLIE IN 8 ROUNDS

Laurie Peppin, Winnipeg, middleweight, won an eight round decision over Ray Trambile of Rockford, Ill., in the windup of last night's boxing show at Shewbridge field. Peppin piled up an early lead. A right to the jaw dropped Trabile in the fifth round.

Dick Sisk, Brighton Park welterweight, defeated Hamburg Wiskany in the six round semi-windup. Jackie Davis was awarded the decision over Johnny Paneck in another six round bout. Billy Baker won from Jack Moran in four rounds, and Bobby Allen whipped Mickey Mack in four rounds.

Mastro Beats Gregorio in Detroit Fight

Although Mastro was easily master of the Spaniard, the fight was never without action. The terrific pace in the first round gave the impression that the bout would not last long, but both boys were fighting at the end.

Gregorio Keeps Going.

Gregorio, although on the losing end most of the route, never stopped trying. He was aggressive and willing to mix. Most of his punches were aimed at Mastro's body.

Gregorio's nose was bleeding in the third round, and Mastro opened a bad cut over his left eye in the fifth. Gregorio rallied with bursts of speed in the first, fourth, and seventh rounds, but with the exception of the seventh, which was about even, Mastro was able to outfight him.

7,000 See Bout.

The semi-final saw another Chicago fighter, Barney Ross, defeat Jimmy Amarando of Los Angeles, Cal., in eight rounds.

In the preliminaries, Jack Elverillo, Detroit, scored a technical knockout over Babe Minella, Linton, Ind., in four rounds, and Joe Pallazzola, Detroit, was awarded a six round decision over Jimmy Powell, Macon, Ga.

GEORGE JENNINGS IS VICTORIOUS IN KENTUCKY MEET

Louisville, Ky., July 30.—(AP)—All but one of the seeded players advanced to the quarter-finals today in the Kentucky state tennis tournament singles.

Hemsley Fails to Tag 2 Runners.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

St. Louis, Mo., July 30.—Those aging Cuba, the shell of a one time formidable machine, were bubbling over with misdeeds again today. They didn't hit the pitching of Burleigh Grimes. Their own pitching with Bob Smith as Exhibit A, was none too good, and they made it worse by their fielding blunders. So the champion Cardinals moved on toward their third pennant by achieving an easy 10 to 3 triumph. They now have defeated the Chicagoans nine times in fourteen attempts and are leading the National league by nine games.

BURLEIGH GRIMES.

There was one time when it looked as if the Cubs really intended to strew rocks on the Cardinals' pennant path. One of their misdeeds helped the champions to get away to a two run lead, but in the fifth the Chicagoans picked up a run and followed with two more in the sixth. They promptly went into a tail spin in the home half, however, and a parade of five Cardinal runs ruined the spectacle. Later three more were assessed against Red Lucchesi.

Cubs' Fire Missing.

Here are some of the things the Cubs did to make it easier for the victors and tougher for Smith. Hemsley missed a runner at the plate in the first inning and without this two runs might have been avoided. In the unhappy sixth he lost another runner in the same way. And in this same inning an easy short fly was permitted to fall safe, whereas if any one of three athletes standing close by had grabbed it the episode might have been confined to two runs and the Cubs still would have had a chance.

As for Cub hitting, it was so futile that only Hornsby and Cuyler deserve mention for trying to halt Grimes' 13th victory of the campaign. Each came through twice. The faded and almost desperate Hack Wilson flied out gently three times and grounded to the pitcher in four appearances. Capt. Grimm was equally impotent. And Vin Barton, the new fielder batting in the clean up post, singled once, but fanned three times. By tomorrow he probably will be back on the bench, a shattered phenom.

It will be Pat Malone against Wild Bill Hallahan in the second and final of the bob tailed series tomorrow.

Cubs' Early Drive Fails.

The Cubs started their half of the first inning as if they were going to embarrass Mr. Grimes. Blair, who was on second base because of Grimm's return to first after a rest occasioned by a sore leg, opened with a fly to center. Watkins lost it in the sun, and Blair profited by a double. English fouled out. Blair dashed over to third when Cuyler beat out a high bounding single to Frisch. Prospects of run producing then faded rapidly when Barton looked at a third strike and Hornsby grounded into a force-out.

The Cardinals got on a productive basis as soon as the first batter appeared in their half. Adams doubled to center. Watkins popped out and Frisch grounded to Blair. The latter made a perfect throw to the plate, but Adams in some way wriggled around Hemsley and got his hand on the plate before being tagged. Collins singled to right, Frisch taking third. Hafey lined against the left field wall for two bases, Frisch scoring and Collins halting at third. Smith escaped further damage when Collins was nailed at the plate on Orsatti's ground-

Voting blanks in THE TRIBUNE poll have been distributed to seven clubs, including Olympia Fields, Flossmoor, Glen View, Knollwood, Chicago Golf, Elmhurst and Park Ridge.

Members are urged to make use of these blanks to express their preference, whether it be the old ball or the new. Results of the poll on these courses will be made known next week.

2. My average drive with the new ball is.....yards.
3. My average drive with the old ball was.....yards.
4. I [like] or [do not like] the shot to the green with the new ball.
5. I [like] or [do not like] to putt with the new ball.
6. I [would like] or [would not like] to see the old ball come back.

Tribune Canoe Tours Fox River for Play Sites

BY BOB BECKER.

This morning a TRIBUNE 16 foot canoe, propelled by two swinging paddles, will start from Fox lake, Illinois, on a midsummer tour of the Fox river to survey this beautiful river valley as a playground for the canoeist, outboard motor fans, camper, and fisherman. This small craft will cross Fox lake, enter the river and then continue down stream at a leisurely pace until the whole river has been covered between the lake country in the northern part of the state, and the picturesque Illinois river valley region near Starved Rock, the stream which receives the water of the Fox.

What attractions the Fox river has for the canoeist, how much the river is being used by speedy motorcraft, the situation with respect to rod and line fishing, the difficulties that the many dams present to river travel, pollution, camping sites, and other features of the valley will be checked up by this inquisitive canoe which will finally be beached at Starved Rock.

The Fox river, being close to Chicago, is today one of the major recreational water areas for thousands of outdoor fans. In fact it is one of the important drainage systems in the state. The river finds its source in Wisconsin, a little northwest of Milwaukee. Then it flows south and southwest to join the Illinois river at Ottawa. Its drainage basin is about 130 miles in length and averages nearly 20 miles wide.

One of the curious physical features of this river, one which interests the canoeist, is that from Elgin to Yorkville the river bed is alternately rocks and mud. This is due to the fact that the course of the river lies almost at right angles to a series of pregiacial valleys which were cut by streams that formerly emptied into Lake Michigan. The present river cuts through the divides and valleys of these old rivers, thus producing a river bed that changes from rock to mud over considerable mileage.

Another characteristic of the Fox which is of interest to the water traveler who likes to swing a canoe paddle in live water, involves the fall of the river bed per mile. In the upper reaches of this river the stream bed drops only about three feet per mile. But near its mouth the river speeds up its pace to please the canoeist so that in La Salle county it drops five feet per mile.

TRACY COX WHIPS EDDIE ANDERSON IN FIERCE BATTLE

Cubs' Misdeeds Give St. Louis 10-3 Triumph

Cubs Finally Score.

After the first inning the Cubs had to wait until the fourth before getting a man on base. That happened when Hornsby singled to right after both Cuyler and Barton had fanned. Hack couldn't assist the manager to advance. Then with one gone in the fifth Hemsley walked. Smith shot a single past Gelbert and Hemsley, being a speedy fellow, raced to third. Blair slapped a fly to Hafey and it was so deep that the bespectacled outfielder didn't even attempt a throw to the plate. This permitted Hemsley to score.

The pleasure of instigating the move which gave the Cubs two runs and a temporary lead in the sixth went to Cuyler. He led off with a line double to center. Barton, who in his two previous attempts against Grimes had struck out, then singled over Frisch's head to score Cuyler. Hornsby hit one to the deep center field fence for two bases and Barton scored. Then Hack filed to right, Grimm was thrown out by Frisch, and Orsatti went back to the fence to pull down Hemsley's drive.

Cards Keep on Scoring.

Watkins' single to center was the opening incident in the painful home sixth. Frisch also singled. Collins aimed a liner against the right field screen for two bases, Watkins scoring and Frisch stopping at third. Frisch scored on Hafey's fly to Wilson. Cuyler, Barton and Blair gathered in a huddle in short right center and let Orsatti's popup fall among them for a double. Collins went to third on it. A pass to Jim Wilson filled the bases and Gelbert singled driving home Collins and Orsatti. May relieved Smith and Grimes bunted to Grimm, who threw to the plate. But Hemsley failed to tag J. Wilson. Then Adams walked, but a double play by way of the plate brought relief.

Even though the Cardinals had the bases filled on Teachout in the seventh, they didn't score, but they made amends with their needless outbreak in the eighth. Adams doubled down the left field line with one out. Watkins walked and was forced by Flowers, who took Frisch's place when the latter was ousted for talking harshly to Umpire Klem about a strike on Barton a few minutes previous. Then Collins exploded his fourth hit, which winged its way into the left field bleacher for three runs.

PROFITS OF LINKS HAVEN'T WOODED PERKINS AS YET

New York, July 30.—(AP)—If Thomas Philip Perkins, the former British amateur golf champion, has any thought of turning "business man golfer," like George von Elm, he hasn't as yet revealed it.

Perkins, commenting today on published reports that he intended to forsake the amateur ranks for the profits of the links, declared he had neither discussed nor considered such a move.

Since he came to the United States two years ago to establish business connections in New York, Perkins has become recognized as one of the best amateur players in this country. Recently he won the New York state amateur. He was the leading amateur in the national open, at Toledo, and qualified this week for the national amateur, to be played at Chicago, starting Aug. 31.

The final round of women's doubles also will be played tomorrow, with the women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles marking the close of the tournament Saturday.

Help for Bush

LARRY KESSENICH, 18 year old pitcher for the Milwaukee Red Sox, a semi-pro team, has been signed by the White Sox. Kessenich is a left hander. He will report to Manager Bush upon the team's arrival home from the present road trip.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newark, N. J., July 30.—The weary Chicago White Sox stopped off here today to enrich the club's exchequer by furnishing opposition to the Newark Bears in part of a double header. The Chicagoans, with Wilbur Wehde pitching, lost 7 to 6.

After the receipts had been placed in Secretary Lou Barbour's satchel, the team went on to Detroit where on Saturday they will open a four game series with the Tigers for possession of last place in the American league standing.

The Sox will return to their home acreage on Aug. 7 to start a series with the St. Louis Browns. Aug. 7 is an open date on the original schedule but a single game will be played, followed by double headers on the two succeeding days. The score by innings of today's game:

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Raymond Workman occupied the spotlight at Empire City this afternoon, scoring with three winners and including the best events of the program in his sweep. Among his victories was that on Chicatie, one of the hardest of horses to handle.

Chicatie ran and won in the colors of Mrs. John Zoeller in the third race, which was at a mile and 70 yards. In his previous eight starts Chicatie has been left at the post three times because of his meanness.

Chicatie 7-5 Choice.

Chicatie went to the post the favorite at 7 to 5 after opening at even money. Spanish was heavily backed at 3 to 2. When the break came Skid and Chief's Warrior were off fastest of all, but Chicatie broke with his field.

The five year old son of Chicle and Stilti closed steadily down the backstretch and was running with the front ones on the bend. Coming into the stretch Workman called on Chicatie and he drew off as he pleased.

Workman's first winner was L. B. Cassell's Xylophone in the second. This horse was the 9 to 5 favorite and had set such easy time as Chicatie. He broke well, but had to drive his mount to get up in the last sixteenth and snatch the victory by a head from Wonderful, an 8 to 1 shot.

Loses to Glenno.

In the fourth Workman was up on Glenno which was made the 9 to 10 favorite. Third was the best that Glenno could do, trailing Royal Tree and Misnomer to the wire. Royal Tree was 3 to 1.

VAN DER POOL OUT OF TRAINING WITH SWOLLEN ANKLE

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Van der Pool, the Tennessee stable's sensational 3 year old, was in temporary retirement today as a result of a swollen ankle which will keep him out of the Empire City Derby on Saturday. Trainer D. G. McDaniel had planned to send him after his 16th consecutive victory and a new turf record, but when he pulled up lame after working a mile and an eighth in 1:54 3-5 McDaniel decided to rest the colt until the Saratoga meeting.

McDaniel is confident Van der Pool will be in shape to meet Twenty Grand, Mate, and Jamestown in the Saratoga handicap.

FRENCH HONEY could not keep up in the early stages but raced gamely to the end. KNEE HIGH broke slowly but came fast in the stretch and was going strongly on the outside at the finish. SUN FIRE gained gradually and, finding a opening in the last quarter, got to the front and lasted to hold PLAY BIRD. Latter was badly outrun but closed in immediate fashion in the final quarter and was gaining but could not last. WINDLASS FIELD shuffled back during the back stretch run but came again and showed a good effort. CHERRY MAY, OUR DOCTOR and THOMAS SETH had early speed but all tired. MY DANDY, held under mild restraint in the early running, moved up on even terms with DEDICATE at the stretch turn and, drawing into a smart lead when DEDICATE was used in making the pace and barely lasted to win handily. CALF ROPER, in close quarters CATO tired, held sway to the finish to win handily. CALF ROPER, in close quarters in the stretch run, was forced to come to the outside but was going well at the end. DEDICATE was used in making the pace and barely lasted to save place. ESKIMO was in close quarters second last two turns but raced well and showed a good effort. The others were outpaced.

SUNVIT displayed improvement over his last effort, followed the pace of MASTIS and, taking a good lead rounding the stretch run, drew away from latter when straightened out for home and won easily. IRONSIDES, although off slowly at the barrier, showed improvement during the back stretch run, drew away from latter when straightened out for home and outfinished SUNVIT. Latter tired in the final run after making a game bid for the leadership on back stretch. PANCHIO was going fairly well at the finish. WHO WIN was strong. SISTER ZOE ran below her best form and did not display her usual closing speed.

BLACK CLOUD, showing improvement over his last effort, followed the pace of BETON under restraint in the early stages and, taking a good lead rounding the stretch bend, was never fully extended. DABSTER was shuffled back after the start, then made up much ground and, despite being forced wide on the final bend, outfinished the others. PAULA L. acted badly at the barrier and was at a disadvantage at the start. She was in close quarters during the run and, although coming fast in the final quarter, could not outrun DABSTER through the stretch. BETON tired after making the pace. WATERPORT also weakened.

VERMICULITE saved ground around the first turn and, coming on the back stretch and, resisting the challenge of GARNISH at the far turn, drew out in the stretch to win easily. BRIGHT DAY was outrun to the final quarter when came fast to dispose of the others. PAL TO PAL was never far away and held on fairly well. GARNISH tired after making a game bid at the far turn. EVERGREEN QUEEN could not keep up.

COUNCIL ADDS 2 TAG DAYS; NOW THERE ARE SIX

Upsetting the precedent which heretofore has restricted Chicago tag days to four a year, the city council yesterday voted to permit the sale of tags to the public at street corners by two more organizations.

Unless Mayor Cermak vetoes the council orders, the Chicago Babies' Free Milk fund, sponsored by Mrs. W. R. Hearst of New York, will sell tags all over the city on Aug. 15 and George Washington post, No. 1, of the Polish War Veterans will sell them in the neighborhood of Polish churches on Sept. 27. The council approved the milk fund tag day by a vote of 34 to 5 and later the Polish veterans' proposal went through without a roll call.

Hold Up Disabled Vets' Tag Day.

Before the council meeting the finance committee sidetracked an order previously approved for a tag day for the Disabled American Veterans of the World War on Sept. 26. The committee had this order withheld from passage pending further investigation of the organization. Since the council adjourned until Oct. 21 it will have no opportunity to act on the order except at a special meeting.

Orders for the two new tag days were adopted in the face of warnings by a minority of the aldermen that once the bars were let down hundreds of other organizations would demand the same privilege and that protection of the public against tag sellers would be ended.

"You can't favor one and turn down another," declared Ald. Sheldon Govier [9th], chairman of the tag day subcommittee of the finance committee. "They'll all be in on your necks and you can't refuse them. Tag days are a nuisance and an imposition on the public, especially in times like these. I'm against any letdown in our policy."

Vote on the Milk Fund.

FOR.
Coughlin	Moran	Sloan
Schreiber	Corr	Leahy
Healy	Morris	Kelly
Sutton	Northrup	Terrell
Bowan	Pacelli	Bostenkowski

AGAINST.

Ald. James B. Bowler [28th], who said he opposed tag days for anybody but nevertheless voted for the milk fund day, said he understood the money collected was to go into the charity funds of the Hearst newspaper in Chicago. Aside from his statement there was no discussion of the purposes for which the new tag days are to be held.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

STATE PROBATION BOARD BUSY ON VISIT TO LONDON

Learns About Sporting Crooks and Cops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 30.—The Illinois commission of prisons, probation, and parole, which is trying to find out how Europe deals with crime and criminals, had a busy week in London and is now beginning to collect its impressions.

DENIS E. SULLIVAN

Judge Denis Sullivan today said that the Illinoisans were astonished at the efficiency of the British prison system, from which they got a lot of new ideas. They commented upon the shortness of sentences imposed by British courts and the fact that sentences were always served when imposed.

The members of the commission were also astonished at the fact that neither the police nor the criminals carry pistols. Lord Byng, chief commissioner of the metropolitan police, explained that the police did not carry guns because if they did the criminals would get them also.

The Americans also were impressed by the system of "finger printing" of guns. No gun is sold in England except by a licensed dealer to the holder of a license. The gun is then inspected by the police, who fire a bullet from it and list all the peculiarities of the arm. From these records Scotland Yard is able to identify the gun from which any bullet is fired.

The whole tendency of the British system, Judge Sullivan said, was to reform the prisoner and return him to society as a useful member, and the system has been 34 per cent successful, while in America the idea of mere vengeance seems uppermost on both sides.

The commission, of which Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling is the leader, will leave Sunday for The Hague.

WILLIAM L. M'LEAN, PUBLISHER, DIES AT PHILADELPHIA HOME

Philadelphia, Pa., July 30.—[Special.]—William L. McLean, owner and publisher of the Evening Bulletin, died this morning at his home on Indian Queen lane, Germantown. He was in his eightieth year. He had been in failing health a year and practically bedridden for six months.

Mr. McLean married Miss Sarah Burd Warden on Nov. 9, 1859. Mrs. McLean died on May 4, 1921. The surviving children are Robert McLean, vice president of the Bulletin company; William L. McLean Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Sarah McLean Williams of Hewlett, L. I.

The veteran publisher was born in Mount Pleasant, Pa., May 4, 1852. As a boy he was a carrier for the Pittsburgh Leader. At 20 he obtained a position in the circulation department of that paper. In 1878, when Calvin Wells bought the Philadelphia Press, Mr. McLean came here as secretary and treasurer of the paper.

In 1895 Mr. McLean purchased the Evening Bulletin. The year following he was elected a director of the Associated Press and was active in this organization until 1924.

LOOP CLEANING SHOP WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

A powerful explosion, supposedly from cleaning fluids, wrecked the interior of the basement shop of the Pittsfield Valet service in the Pittsfield building, 55 East Washington street, last evening. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Vernon L. Brown, 50 years old, of Wilmette, owner of the shop, was burned on the arms and body. He was given medical aid by Dr. George L. Perusse and taken home. Two employes, Miss Helen Cox, 24 years old, 938 Oakdale avenue, and Sam Glenn, Negro, 3937 South Wabash avenue, were jolted but uninjured.

The Valet service occupies a section of the lobby and part of the basement. The explosion occurred just as Brown was about to close, and started a small fire in the basement. Brown was near the blast. Glenn was a few feet farther away. Miss Cox was upstairs. The explosion spread havoc in the basement shop, and shattered a large window in the basement rooms of the Brentano Book store opposite. Jack G. Morris and C. P. Green, employes of the book shop, rushed into the Valet shot and helped carry out Brown.

COUNCIL VOTES SALE OF $6,965,000 TAX WARRANTS

The city council yesterday authorized the sale of $6,965,000 of the 1930 education fund tax anticipation warrants, now held in the city's surplus funds, and the subsequent purchase of an equal amount of 1931 education fund warrants. The council's action must be approved by Mayor Cermak.

The procedure, which was proposed by the Chicago Teachers' federation is designed to make available funds for the payment of two months' salaries due regular teachers and three months' salaries due substitute teachers.

According to Miss Margaret Haley, business representative of the federation, negotiations are under way for the purchase of the 1930 warrants by large tax payers, who can use them for tax payments. Miss Haley expects the sales to be completed in a few days.

Funds obtained from the sale of the 1931 warrants to the city, combined with $325,000 due the school board on Aug. 5 from the rental of school fund land, will pay the approximately $7,000,000 in overdue salaries of teachers.

M'VICKER, NOTED IN THEATER, DIES OF AUTO INJURY

Son of Founder of the Chicago House.

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Horace McVicker, 78 years old, one of the oldest members of the Friars club died today at his summer home at Seabright, N. J., as a result of having been hit by an automobile yesterday when he was crossing the street between his front door and the ocean.

Mr. McVicker was the son of the late James H. McVicker, owner of McVicker's theater in Chicago. His sister, Mary McVicker, was the second wife of Edwin Booth, the actor. He was born in Boston and educated at the Jonathan Edwards school at Stockbridge, Mass., and at Notre Dame university. From the time he left college until he retired a few years ago Mr. McVicker spent his entire life in the theater.

After a brief apprenticeship with his father in Chicago he came to New York as personal manager for Edwin Booth, then playing under the management of the elder McVicker, and he was associated with Mr. Booth for many years. When Henry E. Abbey and Robert Goelet built Abbey's theater [later the Knickerbocker] in 1893 Mr. McVicker became manager, and was there during the years when Sir Henry Irving, Ellen Terry, Sarah Bernhardt, Mme. Rejane and other international stars were first introduced to American audiences on that stage.

When Ethel Barrymore was sent out as a young star, the Frohmans sent Horace McVicker along as her personal manager, and that association lasted for many seasons.

His widow is the former Alice Weaver, whom he met when she was playing ingenue roles in his father's theater.

DEATH TAKES 2D "SIAMESE TWIN" BORN ON JULY 7

Baltimore, Md., July 30.—(AP)—Death of the second "Siamese twin" today brought an end to one of Baltimore's most strange medical cases.

Dorothy Forster, the surviving one of the conjoined pair, died at the Mercy hospital, where she and her sister, Mary, were born July 7, to Mrs. Albert Forster. Mary died last week.

Death came to both of the children when they were reported to be gaining strength for a second operation, planned by physicians to restore them to normalcy after their strange birth.

When born, Mary and Dorothy were joined by a common intestinal tract. It was severed and the baby girls were parted by one of few such operations known to medical science.

Bethlehem Goes on $2 Annual Basis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 30.—Directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, the nation's second largest producer, today voted a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, placing it on a $2 annual basis, against $4 in the previous quarter and $6 last year.

EUGENE G. GRACE.

At the same time Eugene G. Grace, president, told directors that operations in August could not possibly match those of July and the 37 per cent rate of operations this month undoubtedly would be reduced.

He declared that wages and salaries had been maintained by the company, but many salaried employés were working only half time and the hours of all wage earners had been reduced materially.

The only bright spot in the picture, Mr. Grace said, was that steel prices appear to be stabilizing, although production volume still is on the wane.

Operate at 37 Per Cent.

"Operations are at 37 per cent of capacity," he said, "but new business is not supporting operations, and we do not expect August to be quite as good a month as July.

"There has absolutely been no pick-up in the volume of business. At the present time I do not see anything to indicate an improvement."

Coincident with the dividend announcement, the company released its earnings for the June quarter, showing net income of $1,452,743 after all charges, equal to $1.45 a share on 1,000,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, against net income of $1,941,942, equal after preferred dividends to 6 cents a share on 3,200,000 shares of common stock for the previous quarter and net of $7,691,495, or $1.96 a share on the same number of shares for the second quarter last year.

Reduction Anticipated.

Wall street had anticipated a dividend reduction by Bethlehem, in view of the unsatisfactory showing by the industry this year. The announcement followed a reduction by United States Steel's board on Tuesday and omission of the common dividend by Jones & Laughlin on the same day.

Despite the reduction in the quarterly results, Bethlehem did better than many of its important competitors, due chiefly to the previous activity of the management in bringing down costs wherever possible.

Operations for the first half of 1931 resulted in net income of $3,394,685 after all charges, equal to $3.39 a share on the preferred stock. This compares with net income of $17,768,481 in the corresponding period last year, equal, after preferred dividends, to $4.46 a share on the 3,200,000 common shares outstanding.

Steel on hand shows a contraction of approximately 73,000 tons, compared with the close of the previous quarter. The total on hand on June 30 was about 422,400 tons, compared with 495,800 at the close of March and 454,000 tons at the close of the second quarter last year.

Shares Rise in San Francisco.

San Francisco, July 30.—(AP)—Encouraged by the earnings report of Bethlehem Steel, traders on the San Francisco curb exchange traded shares in that stock at $1.12 over the closing price on the New York Stock exchange when word of directors' action was received here today.

Feeling that the adverse had been so heavily discounted by recent reductions, traders advanced the price to $36.37 here as compared with the closing price in New York of $35.25 Nearly 1,000 shares changed hands.

Container Corp. Reports 6 Months' Loss of $44,983

The Container Corporation of America for the quarter ended June 30 reported a net loss of $44,083 after interest, depreciation and other charges, as compared with a net loss of $124,411 in the preceding three months and a net profit of $180,796 in the second quarter of 1930, equal after preferred dividends to 6c a share earned on class A dividends to 6c a share earned on 582,789 shares of class B stock. For the six months ended June 30 the net loss was $168,602, in contrast with a net profit of $316,185 in the same period of 1930, or equal to 5c a share on the class B stock.

Net Profit of Hungarian Bank Drops to $375,000

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 30.—(AP)—The semi-annual statement of the Hungarian Credit bank, issued today, shows the net profit, as compared with a year ago, decreased from $600,000 to $375,000. The decrease was attributed to economic depression and slower turnovers. All other items show a proportionate decrease. Savings deposits and current accounts declined from $41,600,000 to $32,200,000, or 13.5 per cent, while on the other hand the total of debtors decreased 13.3 per cent.

July Corn's Performance Is Board of Trade Headliner

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Corn was the all star feature of the grain board yesterday and kept the trade constantly on edge, owing to its frequent and wide fluctuations.

The July delivery, which again showed congestion from the start at around 2c to 3c higher than Wednesday's close, jumped to 72½c, which brought out a lot of selling and created an impression among traders that leading holders were willing to sell all that was wanted at that figure.

This brought in general selling, with a drop to 64¾c, a rally to 69c, another break, and a final close at 68@68¼c. As compared with the previous day's finish prices were unchanged to ¾c higher, after a range of almost 8 cents, or almost 15 cents in two days.

At times the pit seemed full of corn and at others there was an apparent absence of offerings, creating sharp fluctuations. At the extreme July corn was 21c higher than wheat and 22½c above the low price on September.

Deliveries on Contracts.

Commission houses had a great deal of corn to buy and to sell at times, and pit traders also were unusually active. Deliveries of cash corn on July contracts were 1,206,000 bu, making 6,592,000 bu delivered so far this month. The open interest was reduced 1,080,000 bu on Wednesday to 5,207,000 bu and it was estimated that the day's business, including the deliveries, would cut down the open interest more than 2,000,000 bu. This, it was figured, would leave enough trades open to make an interesting market in closing up the July trades today.

At the close opinions were expressed by men who were in the pit all day that they believed the squeeze was over, while others thought that there might be more fireworks to wind up the month. It has been apparent for several days that July was in strong hands and belated shorts might find it difficult to get in at the last.

Directors Hold Meeting.

The squeeze in July corn, in which Thomas M. Howell figured, was the occasion for a special meeting of the Board of Trade directors, at which, it was said, nothing was done. The directors are said to have discovered that a large part of the open interest in July was mainly a hedging proposition and that deliveries of 1,206,000 bu of cash corn during the day had cleaned up the bulk of the trades. Receipts were 274 cars. It was also announced that the directors will hold another meeting today. Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, in charge of the government's grain futures administration, was on the exchange floor watching operations, but declined to discuss the situation.

While July corn in the pit was jumping around 65 and 70 cents, No. 2 yellow corn was offered at 2c over September, according to one cash handler, and for 5 days shipment from the country was at 1c or more discount, with No. 3 yellow 3c over September on 5 days shipment, the September being around 18c under the July.

Deferred futures of corn were active and up around 1c over the previous day's close at the best, meeting selling on all bulges on expectation of rains over the dry sections of the corn belt, and the close was at net losses of ⅛@⅜c, with September 50½@50⅝c and December 42¾@44c.

Spring Wheat News Bullish.

Spring wheat news was bullish from the American and Canadian northwest. A report from Duluth estimated that the four northwestern states in the American northwest would not have over 110,000,000 bu of bread and durum wheat, as compared with 192,000,000 bu last year.

Advices from western Canada also were of poor prospects owing to drought and heat, with no indications of a breaking of the drought. Nervousness in corn kept the wheat traders uneasy. Hedging sales were liberal at times and fairly well taken. Receipts at the 11 markets were 2,304 cars. At their best futures were only slightly higher than the previous day and the finish was at losses of ¼@⅜c, with July 51@51½c; September, 50⅝@50¾c, and December, 54½@54¾c.

Oats had a bulge early and a break later. Resting orders absorbed the offerings on the decline with the close ⅛@⅜c lower. Rye was off ¼@½c, with the northwest on the selling side of July.

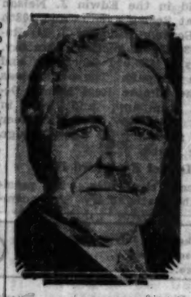
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 30.—A new giant in the oil industry was created today when the stockholders of both the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Vacuum Oil company formally ratified the plan for consolidating those organizations into a billion dollar corporation.



C. F. MEYER.

Besides approving the merger plan the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of New York adopted a resolution authorizing an increase in the capital to 40,000,000 shares of $25 par value each and changing the name of the company to Socony-Vacuum corporation. The company will issue 14,067,250 new shares in exchange for the stock of the Vacuum Oil company in the ratio of 2½ new shares for each Vacuum share.

It also will issue 17,849,436 shares in exchange for stock of the old Standard Oil of New York stock in the ratio of one share of new stock for each of the old. Altogether the Socony-Vacuum corporation will issue forthwith 31,923,073 shares.

At the meeting of the Standard Oil company of New York, C. F. Meyer, president, reviewed the development of the merger plan and assured the stockholders that the terms of the consolidation were the best possible.

The plan approved by the Standard of New York stockholders provides for the incorporation of a new company, called the Standard Oil Company of New York Inc., while the Vacuum stockholders voted to create the Vacuum Oil Company Inc. By creating those companies the good will attached to the names of the old companies will be preserved.

U. S. Steel's Cash Reservoir Barely Tapped for Dividends

The excellent cash position of the United States Steel corporation has been emphasized in comment on the recent reduction of the common stock dividend rate from $7 to $4 annually. The new rate means that the corporation will retain $19,584,654 in cash this year, which if the old dividend basis had been maintained, would have been distributed to stockholders of the company.

J. P. MORGAN. [A. P. Photo.]

At the close of 1930 the company had cash on hand of $117,203,283, marketable securities of $71,066,206, and special bank deposits of $9,527,425, or total liquid assets of $197,807,923. This would have enabled the company to maintain the old $7 dividend rate on the common stock for more than two years if not a penny had been earned in the meantime.

Effects Big Saving.

Quarterly dividend requirements on the preferred stock amount to $6,304,919 and under the old $7 rate on the common stock the quarterly requirements amounted to $15,222,510. The amount required for common stock dividends under the new rate is $8,704,293 making total quarterly requirements of $15,009,211, as compared with $21,527,429 formerly. This is a savings to the company of $6,518,218 quarterly, or $26,112,833 yearly. Because the first quarter dividend this year was paid on the basis of $7 yearly the savings this year will amount to $19,584,654.

Efforts to learn how the steel corporation will employ the funds which it retains through the lower dividend rate or in what depositories they are placed have been unsuccessful. Inquiries at the executive offices of the steel corporation brought the reply that it is against the company's policy to give out such information. It is also contrary to the policies of other Morgan enterprises.

J. P. Morgan Is Chairman.

While seldom appearing in the news in connection with the affairs of U. S. Steel, J. P. Morgan holds the title of chairman of the board of directors. Before the public the company is usually represented by President James A. Farrell or Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the finance committee.

The corporation has no direct funded debt other than $943,500, consisting of noncallable bonds or bonds which have been called and not presented for payment for which special provision has been made. The two bond issues of the company formerly outstanding, amounting to $271,462,000 at the end of 1928, were wholly retired in 1929 from the proceeds of stock issue and other cash resources.

Subsidiary Debt Reduced.

Subsidiary funded debt was reduced from $139,258,000 in 1928 to approximately $100,876,000 in 1930. This is exclusive of $20,785,000 mining royalty notes. The parent corporation has guaranteed $55,140,000 of the subsidiary bonds.

Until the action of the directors this week the common stock had been on a $7 basis since the second quarter of 1926. For two years previously the company had paid $5 annually and $2 extra. Subsequent to the 40 per cent stock dividend in 1927 the $7 rate was equivalent to $5.30 a share on the stock as previously outstanding. An extra dividend of $1 a share was paid on Dec. 31, 1929. The cut voted by the directors this week was the first downward revision of the rate in sixteen years.

STEEL OUTPUT RISES SHARPLY AT YOUNGSTOWN

Operations of steel plants in the Youngstown district at mid-week rose to 45 per cent of capacity, an increase of 3 per cent from the beginning of the week and 5 per cent from a week ago, Dow, Jones & Co. reports. The 45 per cent rate for the district compares with 32 per cent reported for the industry as a whole.

"Mill managers," the report says, "are unwilling to attempt a forecast of mill activities in August, although one large independent expects to maintain its present rate until early September. The likelihood of any August shutdown in valley mills has disappeared and operators express the belief that 50 per cent operations will be seen in the steel industry within eight weeks."

Treasury Bill Offering Heavily Oversubscribed

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Acting Secretary Mills of the treasury today announced applications totaling $221,171,000 had been received for $60,000,000 of 91 day treasury bills dated Aug. 3 and maturing Nov. 2. The highest bid was 99.896, equivalent to an interest rate of .41 per cent, and the lowest bid accepted was 99.854, equivalent to an interest rate of .58 per cent.

WESTINGHOUSE AIR REPORTS FOR JUNE QUARTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 30.—The Westinghouse Air Brake company issued today its report of earnings for the June quarter and first half of 1931, which showed net income of $963,241 for the former period, equal to 30 cents a share on 3,172,111 no-par capital shares, against $990,529, or 31 cents a share, for the preceding quarter, and $1,827,459, or 57 cents a share, in the 1930 quarter.

Results for the first half were substantially below profits for the same period last year, amounting to $1,953,770, against $4,014,809, or 61 cents a share and $1.26, respectively.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, July 30.—Pool activity in Chrysler and one or two other issues provided the bulk of today's dealings on the New York Stock exchange. Volume did not go far beyond the million share mark, however, and the scope at no point extended enough to give much significance to trading.

The market apparently has settled once more into the doldrums where something of extraordinary importance will be required to stir it to action in either direction. The effect of the United States Steel dividend reduction has obviously spent itself and foreign developments receive scant notice. News of the further increase in the bank rate at London today, for instance, the second in a fortnight, failed to create the slightest ripple on trading sentiment. German affairs have long since been crossed off as no longer market factors.

Some interest was manifested in a number of imminent dividend meetings, including those of Bethlehem Steel and Nickel Plate, but the street got its house in shape for any unfavorable announcement either of these boards might have to make by taking a few whacks at the stock of each several days back.

Chrysler Is Feature.

The activity in Chrysler made that stock the outstanding feature of the day. A total of 132,300 shares of the issue were traded in, more than 10 per cent of the total for the entire market. The price was pegged up about 2 points to a new high for the movement and within a fraction of the peak of the year. Report had it that the pool reported to be working in Chrysler was attempting to make capital out of the impending Ford shutdown, on the theory that the cessation of this big independent would take one of the leading low priced producers temporarily out of the field and thus open the way for increased

NICKEL PLATE, REBUILT BY VAN SWERINGENS, OMITS $1.50 DIVIDEND

Cleveland, O., July 30.—(AP)—For the first time since the financial genius of O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen put the once floundering "streak of rust" on a paying basis, the New York, Chicago and St. Louis [Nickel Plate] railroad today omitted its dividends.

O. P. VAN SWERINGEN. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The Nickel Plate thus interrupted a $6 annual rate [$1.50 quarterly] which had been a fixture on common since 1924 and became the first of the eastern trunk lines to pass its dividend.

Nickel Plate common dividends were initiated in 1923, seven years after the Van Sweringen brothers, then unheard of in the railroad game, purchased its 513 miles of unprofitable operations from the New York Central railroad for $8,500,000. They added three more struggling lines and consolidated them with the Nickel Plate in 1923.

New equipment was added and the line reorganized until it became a veritable gold mine. Its common stock rose from $10 a share in 1917 to $140 last year, when it was split into smaller units. Dividends were paid in 1923, and since 1924 rates on both classes of stock had stood at 6 per cent annually. The road also paid extra cash dividends of $2.75 in both 1926 and 1927. Another special dividend in the form of 1.7 shares of Chesapeake corporation stock for each share of Nickel Plate was approved in 1927.

The Nickel Plate has figured prominently in the recent negotiations toward a consolidation of eastern trunk lines. Its control now rests with the Alleghany corporation, organized by the Van Sweringen interests. It is estimated that the omission will cut the income of Alleghany corporation around $1,000,000 a year.

John R. Thompson Co. Six Months' Sales $6,950,441

Sales of the John R. Thompson company for the six months ending June 30, 1931, were $6,950,441, it was reported last night. The net income for this period after all charges, depreciation, taxes, etc., amounted to $403,497 exceeding dividend requirements. Net for the first six months of 1930 was $533,027.

World's Supply of Coffee Drops 400,000 Bags in June

The world's visible suply of coffee declined about 400,000 bags in June, the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange reports. The total visible supply July 1 amounted to 26,020,794 bags, compared with 26,428,070 bags as of June 1 and 28,509,125 bags as of July 1, 1930.

COTTON LOANS BY U. S. UP TO JULY 1 TOTAL $117,000,000

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Carl Williams, cotton member of the farm board, said today stabilization supplies of cotton would be withheld from markets pending preparation of a new statement of policy.

The period during with the board agreed not to sell any of its holdings expires tomorrow. Williams said he doubted whether a new statement would be ready at that time.

He said the board had loaned up to July 1 $117,000,000 to cotton cooperatives and the Stabilization corporation, which a year ago bought 1,300,000 bales from the 1929 crop surplus.

This does not represent the full amount of board money invested in cotton holdings, as a large volume of the financing has been done through intermediate credit banks. These figures were not available. Williams added that at present prices the cotton holdings were worth slightly less than $50 a bale, a price considerably under that paid for the cotton.

COAL · HEAT · COSTS · LESS

that Coal is better fuel

· You don't have to ·

JUST two years after he had started burning a fuel other than Coal, the owner of this home at 4130 South Parkway sat down to figure what the experiment had cost him.

In his old books he found the yearly expense he had been put to when he burned coal. It totaled $480.70, including every incidental expense. Against this, he noted the bills which accumulated during one year of burning fuel B—adding in a moderate factor for depreciation. The contrast amazed him. Fuel B had increased his heating bills approximately 66%.

Had it been worth the extra cost? His decision showed what he thought. He took out the costly equipment he had put in to burn fuel B and went back to Coal.

"Wise men," said Bismarck, "learn by the experience of others." If you want to know how much more it would cost you to burn a fuel other than coal you don't need to pay with comfort and cash. Call any member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association; he will help you estimate the costs fully, fairly, and accurately.

You can increase Coal's savings right now!

At this moment market and weather conditions have combined to bring down the price of coal and coke. Everything points to the fact that within the next few months every grade of coal and coke will advance from 8% to 20% in cost. So add this extra margin to your fuel savings by taking advantage of today's prices.

CHICAGO SHARES SHOW MODERATE GAINS IN TRADING

U. S. Radio Again Is Most Active Issue.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading on the Chicago exchange continued fairly active yesterday and stocks made a moderate recovery under the leadership of a few issues which were given good market support. The United States Radio shares was the main attraction again. This issue, which has given the only real bull demonstration which has been seen on the market in weeks, was in good demand toward the close and recovered all its early loss and closed slightly higher.

The unusual activity in the stock has led to discussion over the prospects of the issue being placed on dividend basis. It is variously estimated that the company will show net income of $6 or $7 a share for the fiscal year which ends today. Despite this fact, however, persons in touch with the company's affairs state that the question of dividend has not been discussed by the directors.

Borg-Warner Income.

Borg-Warner shares were moderately active and slightly higher as the street awaited the corporation's report on six months' earnings. After the close of the market the company reported that earnings for the half year period amounted to $946,887, equivalent to 78 cents a share on the 1,216,734 shares of common stock outstanding. The per share earnings, the announcement said, were arrived at after deduction for federal taxes, depreciation, preferred dividends, and minority interest in subsidiary companies. The calculation does not include stock held by the company nor the dividends paid on such shares, it was stated. For the first six months of 1930 the company reported net earnings of $2,364,372, which was equivalent to $1.84 a share on the common stock.

At the end of the six months' period the company had current assets of $16,681,810, and current liabilities of $3,359,164. The cash position of approximately 5 to 1 compared with 4.2 to 1 on March 31 this year.

Shows a Profit.

The ability of certain types of concerns to come through periods of depressed trade with better earnings is demonstrated by the semi-annual report of the Reliance Manufacturing company.

The firm, which manufactures certain types of garments, yesterday reported that net income for the first six months of 1931 was $324,479, as compared with $172,767 in the first six months last year. After preferred dividends the earnings were equivalent to $1.04 a share on the common stock. While the first six months of the year are ordinarily better from an earnings viewpoint officials anticipate that the final half of the year will not result in a loss as was the case in 1930.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE STOCKS

Volume of trading increased slightly and stocks held strong throughout the session yesterday, as at the close, at 12. Board of Trade bonds sold up to 62, a gain of 2 points.

BROKERS' LOANS OFF $26,000,000 TO NEW BOTTOM

Total Lowest on Record Since 1926.

The volume of credit devoted to speculation in the stock market is now at the lowest level recorded since the present method of compiling loans was adopted in 1926. The weekly report on brokers' loans, issued yesterday, showed another decline of $26,000,000. This brings the total down to a new low figure of $1,390,000,000, which is $16,000,000 under the previous low record established in the week ended June 24.

The new life injected into the market by the Hoover moratorium proposal has been dissipated, the report indicates. The loans of the interior banks and the nonbanking lenders, including those of corporations, both showed moderate increase but these were more than offset by a withdrawal of $31,000,000 by the New York banks.

Credit Demand Improves.

Credit for commercial purposes was in slightly betetr demand last week, the weekly report of the federal reserve system shows. Member banks increased their borrowings by $2,424,000 bringing the current total of such borrowings to $183,636,000. The reserve banks sold $497,000 bankers' acceptances and disposed of $224,000 of government securities. Deposits increased $19,000,000 and note circulation expanded $4,749,000. Reserves increased $20,612,000, but the reserve ratio was unchanged at 84.3 per cent.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its rediscount rate despite the action of the Bank of England in increasing its rate to 4½ per cent. The report shows that its member bank borrowings now stand at $24,145,000 which is an increase of $2,664,000 over the preceding week.

Deposits Show Shrinkage.

The bank purchased $6,553,000 of bankers' acceptances while its holdings of government securities remained unchanged. Deposits declined $43,361,000. Reserves increased $6,061,000, but the reserve ratio declined to 84.3 as compared with 91.1 per cent a week ago.

The report of the Chicago reserve bank showed an increase of $1,756,000 in member bank borrowings. The Chicago institution sold $329,499 bankers' acceptances, but retained its holdings of government securities. Deposits increased $9,714,000. Reserves increased $10,968,000 and the reserve ratio remained unchanged at 89.3 per cent.

RAISE ENGLISH RATE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, July 30.—A clear indication that London's financial masters consider a strong corrective is still necessary to rectify the abnormal position resulting from the heavy drain on the Bank of England's gold reserves was seen today when the Bank of England directors raised the official discount rate from 3½ per cent to 4½ per cent, following the 1 per cent increase of a week ago.

Successive weekly rises of the bank rate are rare here, but the continuance of gold exports and the rise in the market rate's discount virtually forced the action upon the bank. It has become almost as cheap to sell bills of exchange to the Bank of England as in the market. Last week's rise prove insufficient wholly to check the flow of funds from London.

Some Below Export Point.

Gold withdrawals to France have temporarily ceased, but some of the continental exchanges are still below gold export point—Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland could all take gold from London. Uncertainties regarding Germany also influenced the Bank of England to take precautionary measures against possible contingencies.

Since the bank's last return nearly $54,350,000 in gold has left London, while approximately $195,000,000 gross—principally for the continent—has been taken since the drain started about the middle of July. The Bank of England's total gold holdings is now below $670,000,000. Although financial experts regard this as sufficient support for present currency requirements, there is a possibility of a further depletion in gold stocks at a time when it is essential that the Bank of England should be in a strong position to face the expected autumn drain to America.

STOCKHOLDERS OF CONTINENTAL SHARES TO MEET

Columbus, O., July 30.—(AP)—George L. Gugle, Columbus attorney and a stockholder of Continental Shares Inc., today issued a call for a meeting of stockholders of the company in Columbus Aug. 12 for the purpose of forming a stockholders' protective committee.

The results of an audit of the records of the company by Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery of New York will be submitted to the stockholders at the meeting, Gugle told stockholders in a letter mailed today.

Gugle said the right to make the audit accounts was obtained in an injunction suit filed in Baltimore just preceding the annual meeting of the stockholders to ratify actions of the officers and directors of Continental. The Baltimore suit sought an accounting and the right to examine the records. The right to examine the records was granted by the court, Gugle said.

Large Producers of Copper Maintain Price at 8c Pound

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Copper for early domestic delivery is available from custom smelters at 7⅝ cents a pound, and some speculators are reported already to have offered the metal at 7⅛ cents a pound. Large producers, however, continue to hold their metal at 8 cents delivered, and most custom smelters quote 7⅞ cents. Foreign buying was somewhat better today, with sales during the forenoon totaling 2,500,000 pounds. Demand in the domestic market continues small and the prices are nominal. Lower copper output for August appears likely. The Quincy Mining company plans to stop production for five weeks starting Aug. 1. Work in all departments will resume Sept. 8.

Yearling steers reached a new high mark of $9.35 on yesterday's buoyant market for light steers and yearlings. This price stands highest since May 5. In the scramble for light weight animals to satisfy the growing demand for smaller cuts of beef, buyers were forced up to $9.00 in the butcher stock market, fancy baby beef heifers averaging 740 lbs going at that price. The highest paid for heifers since late in April. Outsiders were more aggressive yesterday. A Detroit house bought one load at the new top, which was also paid by Armour. Nebraska heavy steers went to Wilson at $8.65, highest of the day for that weight.

The market for cattle was a two way affair again, although the proportion of plain quality steers and "grassy" stock is not large enough to cause any drastic cut in prices at the bottom of the range. Plain quality steers of beef merit ranged down to $5.75, but inferior ill bred natives occasionally had to sell as low as $4.00. A shipment of "yellow hammers" averaging 880 lbs brought $4.90. Best grades of cattle are selling fully 25c higher for the week, while poorer grades show that much loss and "grassy" cows and heifers are off as much as 50c for the week. Corn fed butcher stock show gains of fully 25c since a week ago. Calves were scarce yesterday and gained fully 50c. Stockers and feeders were firm.

Monday Hogs Bid $8.50.

Light weight hogs for next Monday's delivery were offered at $8.75 on the "to arrive" market, but no bids were posted over $8.50. There was more activity in the futures market at about steady prices. Contracts for two carloads of September heavy hogs sold at $7.25. October hogs averaging 170@310 lbs were offered at $8.90, but no bids were reported. September mediums were bid $7.65 and offered at $7.85. December medium and heavy hogs were offered at $6.90. Bids for August light weight hogs ranged upwards to $8.50 late in the day.

Additional gains were scored in hogs on the cash trade on abbreviated receipts yesterday and closing sales were as high as any time of the day in view of the light supply in sight for today. The extreme top at $8.40 equaled Wednesday's top and compares with $7.60 at the middle of last week and with $6.20 nine weeks ago. Outside demand increased, but more orders swung to packing grades of hogs which showed most strength in spite of the relatively low market for heavy pork loins, particularly at eastern distributing centers.

Extremely heavy loins are selling down to 10c per lb and below, while lightest weights are bringing 25@26c. Three months ago the range was 14@20c. Outsiders obtained 26 per cent of Chicago receipts during the first four days of this week, against 17 per cent a year ago. Receipts have been exceptionally small during the last three weeks. The total at Chicago for this month is expected to fall short of 460,000, the smallest July total since 1919. Only three have been smaller since 1895. The trade looks for continued light supplies for the next two months. During the last 17 years the receipts in September have been smallest for the year about 45 per cent of the time.

Demand Slows Down.

An accumulation of fresh lamb at some of the leading points in the east curtailed demand here yesterday, and prices ruled weak to 25c lower, a big share of offerings showing the full cut considering heavier sorting. Packers took the bulk of good grades of natives at $7.75@8.00, although city butchers were forced up to $8.25 for their selections, due to the scarcity of choice grades.

Aged sheep were scarce and steady, while yearlings weakened some. Outside demand has been narrower this week, taking about a third of the number that was shipped from Chicago during the first four days of last week. Although surveys indicate that a record crop of lambs has been produced for August, September and October markets, the receipts lately have been exceptionally small. The total for Chicago this month is expected to be less than 250,000. Only three July totals have been smaller since 1889.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep, against 2,249 cattle, 11,838 hogs and 5,068 sheep the previous Friday, and 2,066 cattle, 18,226 hogs and 5,995 sheep a year ago.
